INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF GOVERNOR EARL WARREN

Delivered to the Senate and Assembly in Joint Session

Monday, January 4, 1943

Members of the Senate and the Assembly of the State of California

We meet here today under conditions which strip the occasion of all gloss and pompous ceremony.

We meet as men and women assembled to undertake an emergency task—a task which for fulfillment will require that adherence to unity of purpose which we find in our fighting men as they respond to the call to their battle stations.

We meet here as representatives of the people of California in an hour of crisis. Hourly, thousands of those whom we represent will be offering their lives to protect our right to meet.

I feel that you legislators sitting before me will rise to a man in seconding the declaration that we must not leave these halls without a record of accomplishment in keeping with need. I know we are in agreement in the abstract thought that we have a patriotic duty to perform. But, more than that, I believe we are in agreement that we must immediately remove all mental barriers and get to work.

Thus, as we assemble at our battle stations, I appear before you, not only in compliance with statute, but because of an earnest wish to give you an understanding of my own thoughts in regard to our critical problems. I want to work with you. What we undertake and accomplish here during the next few months will radiate an influence upon the present and future well-being of every Californian and will contribute to the strengthening of the position of our Nation which is, in its entirety, being harnessed to the requirements of unprecedented mechanized global warfare.

The meaning of war—its compulsions, its disruptions, its distortions and its cold inclemency already shadows our lives and encompasses our thoughts. This Nation is, I repeat, caught in its entirety in the current of global strife. Where the ship of democracy sails we will sail for we are an integral part of the ship. We in California constitute a vital part of the ship structure—the exposed side of the ship at water's edge.

Clear Thinking Required

As representatives of the people of California, we have been entrusted to find ways of gearing the machinery of State Government so as both to absorb the shocks imposed by war and to alleviate the severity of postwar uncertainties.

In rising to the abnormal responsibility imposed, it is obvious that we must cut out all the dry rot of petty politics, partisan rick-rack, inaction, dictatorial style, bourness and opportunistic thinking. We must seek with singleness of purpose to make use of every fiber of energy that can be tapped to close the niches of weakness which exist and harden the resistance to impacts to come.

There has never been a period in our history when the need for understanding and appreciation of the true concepts of democracy was so important. Nor, has there been a session of the California Legislature at which the full use of democratic processes was more imperative.

We are in the midst of an era in which doubt has been cast upon the efficiency of democratic government. We are at war because in another land a power mad sign painter capitalized upon the distress of a depressed and confused people to seize dictatorial powers. Once mobilized he raised his challenge to face man the world over in the belief that the Achilles heel of free government would be its indecision and slowness to act.

Our fighting men are disproving his false theory on far-flung battle fronts today but the theory will not be repudiated with finality until a decisive victory has been achieved. We glory in the caliber of our fighting men but let it never be misconstrued that they alone are carrying the responsibility of our day. Confronting us here on the home front is an equally imperative challenge—the challenge for perfection of that for which they fight—the broadening of popular understanding, faith and relevance in the machinery of democracy and its religious ideals.

We gather here in accordance with the democratic principles for which young men from our home towns are manning guns in Tunisia, over North Africa, over Burma, on Guadalcanal, in Iceland, England, over all continents of the world and on each of the seven seas. We have seen the signs of confusion arise over the slowness of democracies to function. Ours is an opportunity to restore confidence in those who have become distraught and misguided. Ours is an opportunity to strengthen faith in men's ability to work together for the common good.

I would not be here addressing you today if the people of this great State had not made their own analysis of their common problems and ordered a change in administration. They sent you here as legislators and honored me with the Governorship for one reason alone—they expect us to work together and produce results. They rely upon our ability to fix our minds upon common objectives which are in their interests and reach achievement in goals through cooperative action.

I share in this reliance. It is one of the reasons I have said many times that the immediate restoration of good will in California will be one of our primary objectives. I want to see State Government achieve a balance obtainable only through warm cooperation and courteous consideration. I recognize you, the Legislature, as a coordinate branch of democratic government, possessed of the dignity and the right to meet when you desire, and to plan and initiate legislative action as just as much in keeping with the public wish as that which I may suggest. I want to restore and maintain a balance of understanding and confidence which, through mutuality of effort, facilitates action in behalf of the people as a whole.

Californians Are Not Timid

As we approach our respective tasks let me say: This State has never been afraid to be progressive. It has never been afraid to try new things which it understood. I know that you as legislators are responsive to the ideals, principles and forward outlook which has so pronouncedly dominated California thought and that you share in the belief of the voters that no clique, no faction and no party holds priority on all the rights of helping the common man.

I come before you today with a list of suggestions which I consider in need of immediate legislative attention. In making these suggestions, let me say at the outset that I believe we must, in facilitating the war effort, pursue what might be termed a policy of first things first. That which is involved in the war effort must of necessity be given preference.

There has accumulated in California a wide range of subject matter which, broadly interpreted, comes under the heading of "wartime legislative needs." Some of it calls for remodeling and streamlining existing social and humanitarian endeavors which show the strain of war conditions. Some of it calls for progressive innovations which correct abuses and advance the considerations given those engaged in war effort. Much of it calls for the introduction of broad protective programs which will blossom forth with their peak benefits after the war has ended. And, some of it is strictly martial in character, the direct result of our specific position as a theater of war.

The impelling force of your session will be the need for action in compliance with the needs of war. In part, these war-time needs arise from aggravations of longexisting needs among the people. They loom as emergency in character today but they do so primarily because they have so far failed to win proper evaluation in our long-range planning. Ours is the challenge of so streamlining government that its efficiency meets the need of the day and at the same time moves forward in the recognition of older problems which we see accentuated by war.

In the latter we will meet the test of our knowledge of needs and also the test of our progressivism.

Must Protect Public Health

There has arisen in California since the conditions of war became so manifest, a tremendous problem involving public health. Long established cities have found themselves transformed by population shifts into communities with burdens exceeding all previous conception. Even more startling has been the transformation of mere trailer camps into communities faced with the sanitary responsibilities of large cities.

Behind the outward veneer of these remarkable developments lurks a problem which must be given recognition by government. The strain upon sanitary facilities, the arrival of new peoples, and the extra hours of human effort required by war needs join in creating a health problem of undeniable magnitude. As we approach this problem, we must keep in mind the necessity of long range planning for the day will come when California becomes the funnel through which men, now fighting in strange lands throughout the world, will be returned to normal contacts. The tests of our ability to control and resist disease are destined to increase.

Nor is the broad consideration of the present and future protection of health the only problem accentuated by the rush of war workers to our State and the return of fighting men from disease-infested lands. Among those workers in production in this State are thousands undertaking tasks with which they are unfamiliar—tasks at which they are at first unskillful and without full appreciation of hazards. We must act to protect them, to protect our war production man power and to protect our structures which cushion, at least to some degree, the human suffering which is entailed.

New Problems Confront Women

In our efforts to build protective services to the highest point of efficiency, we must direct new thought to those unprecedented considerations forced upon us by the emergency participation of women in war effort. We have seen women, by the thousands, respond patriotically to the call to relieve men needed elsewhere in war activities and, as they have responded, we have recognized the imposition of new strains upon our social structure. We must recognize that women have assumed their emergency burdens at the sacrifice of normal home life, normal family contacts and also, at the as yet unmeasured risk of impairment of health.

We must survey this field in its entirety to determine the extent to which human values are involved, for numbered among its deeper aspects is the question of stability of family influence. There must be no weakened generation in California chargeable to failure of the State to recognize the strains of this emergency upon either child welfare or sacrifices called for on the part of our women.

While our schools must, of necessity, perform services in connection with the war effort, we must guard against being sidetracked from appreciation of their fundamental purpose. We must remember that the schools are maintained for the training of our youth. Democracy is not a static form of government. It is maintained by constant struggle. Every generation finds a new assault being made against it by new forces with new devices and the struggle for freedom is always the greatest task of the future as it has been throughout the past. The permanence of a democracy will therefore depend upon the training and inspiration provided for its youth.

Nor should we permit the hysteria of war times to cause neglect in our responsibility to such of our youth as loses its way in these times of uncertainty. We want a program for child welfare designed to bring out the best in every child.

In this field there lies a neglected opportunity through which we can make a great additional contribution of future welfare. From out of a long experience in law-enforcement work, I have come to feel with certainty that we have been making a wrong approach to our crime problem. I am convinced we must revise our programs so that the emphasis is placed upon prevention instead of suppression. If we can bring our juvenile courts, our trial courts, our law-enforcement agencies and our penal institutions into harmony with such an approach, I am confident we will have made a definite contribution to our future welfare.

We have, I feel, already agreed upon the necessity of expanding the influence of the California Youth Correction Authority. I visualize such transfers and consolidations of existing agencies as will streamline, under this authority, all services in the interests of youth in dire need of a helping hand. In broader aspect, I visualize adherence to a policy in all government activities which reflects a sincere desire to help men, women and children to develop and unfold the best that is within them—something that can never be done under a policy which places reliance almost entirely upon crime suppression.

Penal Reform Necessary

In our efforts to rehabilitate those whose missteps in adult life have led to State assumption of responsibility, I want to take every bit of politics out of the parole system and the pardoning power. I shall appeal to the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles only men of character, experience and a healthy normal approach to our prison problems. We must make certain that those who are putting their spot to society are not ground further into the mire by the pressure of the cruel heel of politics.

People, men, women and children, can not develop the best that is within them without doing useful work. Our practice of matter of fact confinement of people without affording them, through work, an outlet for body and mental energy, is wholly wrong. I want to stimulate the employment of all people in our penal institutions. I want to see them engaged in activities which develop their bodies and spur their desire to be restored to society.

I shall later ask you to consider a new approach to the parole problem. There lies within most men who have been removed from ordinary contact with society, a desire to prove their right to the confidence of their fellow men. Procedures could be established under which these men could be restored to community life and permitted, through rightful living, to earn pardon recognition from the courts in the community in which they have demonstrated a right to such consideration.

Local Government

As we approach the serious emergency problems which have arisen as a result of the war, I want to express the hope that there can be developed a new correlation between the efforts of cities, counties and State agencies. I believe that the very essence of democracy is the right of people to govern themselves and this starts in local communities. Our State administration must be responsive to the needs of the people and it must counsel with and be ever respectful of the thoughts of smaller units of government. I say this because I believe it to be fundamental. People retain their interest in government only as they are encouraged to participate in it, and it is in local government that we find the greatest opportunity for participation and therefore the greatest reflection of public will.

Man-power Utilization

We must, in our State Government, increase the flexibility of all agencies which are not yet fully participating in the war effort and break down those barriers which retard decision and action. In accomplishing this we will be doing no more than accepting the responsibility of leadership which is expected. We face no greater immediate challenge than to turn loose the full power of State energy in search of solutions for which farm, industrial and labor groups are now groping as they strive to meet unprecedented production demands.

We have desperate need at the moment of advancing in the solution of our critical farm labor problem. Our contribution to the better utilization of such manpower as is available will come only after study of the participation that can be expected of our men, women and children and of possible supplemental labor from sources developed in cooperation with the Federal Government. We must make certain that this study is not prolonged beyond the present brief seasonal respite from peak demand.

Our State has mushroomed in industrial growth and at the same time made heavy contributions to the armed forces. Proper emergency utilization of all labor otherwise available is becoming a matter, not only of State, but of National concern. It rises as a problem which we must recognize as far too serious to be hampered by false conceptions or the delays of red tape.

Supplementing this urgency consideration of man-power utilization there must be launched a companion study of postwar utilization. Patriotic duty is now causing dislocations which will later sorely test our recuperative powers. Yet, I hold that it is possible to plan now in a manner which will add to our strength when these postwar tests occur.

California of the Future

The California I visualize after the war is not one which we have so far known. It is a greater California—a California which has recognized its resources and opportunities and made them ready for peacetime utilization.

There have been introduced into California during recent months vast shipbuilding, aircraft and war material industries which came here, not as a result of normal competitive advantages, but as a result of Nationally directed war effort. Regardless of how they came, they are shaping the destiny of our State and changing our economy. Whether these sources of man-power utilization and productive energy remain with us after the war will depend, in a large measure, upon our appreciation of opportunity.

If we are to move forward rapidly after the war, we must do those things required to attract and hold these and other industries in competition with the rest of the world. To hold them we must make for ourselves every advantage which our geographical position, our climate, the rich deposits in our hills and our many other resources permit. We must probe beneath the surface and exploit those advantages which have heretofore been but vaguely recognized.

Proper development of these and other resources will inescapably call for new considerations in connection with highway planning. Here again is an activity of State Government which I hope can be raised to a scientific level far above the hindrances of petty politics. In substitute for a wholly political highway commission, I believe there should be set up a division of highways which will utilize in the full the research and planning done by our capable State engineers.

Ours is the task of so planning the conservation and development of our resources that industry feeds upon them for its own peacetime recovery and in so doing increases the utilization of our man power. In pursuance of this task we will be adhering to what I believe to be a fundamental principle of democratic government—the encouragement of free enterprise in a manner which benefits the people as a whole. I hold to the conviction that government and industry share joint obligation in this connection. It is the obligation to so plan and organize that our people have assurance of security and adequate return for services rendered—the opportunity to work.

As safeguards against extremes which may cause a lag in the full realization of our peacetime development, I urge the preparation of a manpower utilization program which can serve to take up the slack. We must avoid a return to the dole. We must set ourselves to the scientific preparation of a backlog of construction projects which coordinate in purpose and service the physical improvement of our State and the bolstering of morale through beneficial utilization of surplus man power.

Pension Study Planned

In supplement to these studies, it is my hope that a way can be found of improving the lot of our elder citizens through the broadening of our approach to the pension problem. They are the first to suffer in periods of labor surplus and the last to receive the benefits of industrial activity. They are therefore entitled to our consideration.

It is my conviction that our pension system should not be based upon the requirement of pauperism. I want it to be based upon social right. I believe, as most of you believe, that the ultimate solution of the pension problem will come through advances made on a National scale. Yet, we should not permit this thought to delay our own efforts to build and maintain a pension structure within the limits of our ability to pay.

No sound contribution can be made by us in the advancement of our own and National thinking on the pension problem without removing the issue from the field of politics and propaganda. There must be a correlation of all sincere thinking on the subject in order that we may move in unison toward the most practical goal obtainable. In furtherance of this thought, I am preparing to appoint a representative committee whose duty it shall be to examine the entire problem and prepare a basic report for your immediate consideration.

Reorganize Civilian Defense

California is caught, not only in the economic grasp of these uncertain times but faces specific uncertainties arising from actual military conflict. We reside in a theater of war. State leadership has no patriotic alternative but to assume responsibility for assisting all agencies in the protection of life, home and property.

We must guard against the emotional fluctuations produced by daily variances in the news of the war and proceed to place government in a position to perform with promptness and thoroughness all emergency services which may be required. We must offer the people a positive type of leadership—one backed with authority to act and advise—one which invites full public cooperation and confidence.

In making an approach to the reorganization of procedures surrounding our civilian defense efforts, we are all aware that there must, in the interests of speed and complete efficiency, be some further emergency power and authority in the State Government. In this connection, however, I would want you, as legislators, to satisfy yourselves in full measure that the innovations adopted will not destroy that fine balance between the executive and legislative processes which our National and State Constitutions contemplate.

There must be a new analysis made of the general scheme of civilian defense and law enforcement and it must be made with new conceptions of the need for closely knit action on the part of all city, county, State, National and volunteer agencies. We must achieve a new balance of responsibility and cooperation between State and local governments.

It is my intention to treat the entire subject of civilian defense more fully in a special message to the Legislature and ask that you give its proposals your prompt consideration. It will be my request that you reorganize the entire existing defense structure in a cooperative effort to clarify, revitalize and complete our emergency protections.

It shall be my purpose to afford you the benefit of factual information developed in separate studies encouraged by my office and to urge your consultation with many men and women whom I have found possess broad understanding of specific phases of the problem. I take occasion now to commend to you the efforts of the officers and men of the State Guard who have labored under conditions to build and maintain that important branch of protective service. No amount of encouragement be omitted for that body of efficiency which has shown a patriotic willingness to mobilize for auxiliary law enforcement and other war services in home communities.

Must Protect State Surplus

California is now favored with a sizeable surplus. It has come to us very largely from taxes upon war industry. It comes to us in trust, for it is the money of all the people of California.

This surplus, by its very existence, constitutes a constant temptation to everyone to spend it just because it is there. Everyone sees, according to his own lights, a way, a place and a need for spending it and in some instances even for purposes that have never before been considered State purposes.

I hold to the conviction that this money must be lifted above the disparting reach of grabbing tactics. If we yield to such temptations, this surplus will soon be transformed into a deficit by processes which will result in an actual drain of the interests of the people as a whole. I want to see this money either committed for essential State projects or conserved. It is my firm belief that we must use this money for the war effort which produced it and for essential services of government or conserve it faithfully for purposes which will relieve the distress which invariably follows wars.

Budget-Making Policies

Later this month there will be presented, for your analysis, the Administration recommendation in regard to budgetary allotments. I can say to you now that the principle under which this budget is being prepared grants recognition to the cause, both in proposed curtailment of expenditures unrelated to war effort and in extra allowance to efforts which can be made the forerunners of better times for our people when the war has ended. We will make provision, not only for war needs but also for the humanitarian services which will keep our structure strong.

We are undertaking moves toward general economy at a time when our tax structure is producing revenue in surplus amounts. It follows, therefore, that we must, in the interests of already burdened taxpayers, proceed immediately to the examination of possibilities for tax reduction.

It is my belief that taxes can be reduced. In evaluating our financial position, however, I see danger signs which we can not afford to ignore to the point of extreme action. We must bear in mind that the conditions which have created our favorable revenue balance are of a highly transient nature and of a type likely to leave a swirl of new problems in their wake. It is not wise, under such circumstances, to blindly trade tax stability for temporary advantage.

It is my intention to render all service and assistance possible to the Legislature as it examines the opportunities for altering and reducing our revenue claims upon the people. In an effort to expedite the development of factual information, I am preparing to appoint a committee of representative citizens which will be charged with the responsibility of submitting recommendations for general consideration. I am proceeding in this manner in the belief that there is need for full discussion of all phases of the problem. It is a practice I shall follow whenever possible in dealing with difficult problems for it is predicated upon my belief that democracy thrives best when it encourages the suggestions of all.

Civil Service Needs Protection

No State Administration can rise above the standards of public service which it maintains. In California we have endeavored to elevate and fix the standards of personnel through a comprehensive system of civil service. The provisions of our Constitution and the statutes on the subject entitle us to a position of leadership throughout the Nation.

There is a general consciousness today that the administration of these laws has, in recent years, been such that the entire structure of civil service is in danger. The situation is not the fault of civil service employees themselves for they have been zealous in trying to guard and respect the protections afforded them. It is the direct result of the brazen application of political pressure upon them. Such tactics must cease immediately. Civil service must be restored to its rightful place where the applicant for public service obtains a position through honest competition and merit and retains that position because of merit.

One can not probe, within the limitations of a single speech, into all the problems which lie before us, and it is not my purpose here to do so. It is my sincere hope that, through warm association and frequent exchanges of ideas, we can advance together in the solution of our common problems.

We meet at a time when the full might of our energy must be loosed to help rid the world of evil aggression which is ravenously feeding upon the rights of free men. Ours is the responsibility of organizing State efficiency in every direction which will help speed the military conclusion of the conflict.

Paralleling this endeavor must be the assumption of responsibility for preventing the backwash of emergency disruptions from undermining confidence in the structure of democracy itself. Our stake in the struggle is both the prevention of the eclipse of our right to improve our way of life and the prevention of the destruction of the way of life itself.

This is an era of crisis. Christianity itself will wander homeless over the world unless we fight for the right to harbor it in open covenant in our hearts and keep its light reflecting through our social, economic and political undertakings. These are times when the requisites for courage and cool deliberate action press upon us in inseparable demand. These are times when the formula of government must be derived from the deepest conceptions within men's hearts.

It is with this consciousness and with the determination to make our State Administration serve all the people that I assume my duties as Governor of California.

EARL WARREN, Governor of California.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH OF OFFICE

Hon. Frederick F. Houser took and subscribed to the following oath administered by Hon. Phil S. Gibson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of California:

I do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of California, and I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of Lieutenant Governor of the State of California to the best of my ability, so help me God.

INTRODUCTION OF LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR FREDERICK F. HOUSER

Hon. Charles W. Lyon, Speaker of the Assembly, then introduced Lieutenant Governor Frederick F. Houser to the Joint Convention.

ADDRESS BY LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR FREDERICK F. HOUSER

Lieutenant Governor Frederick F. Houser then addressed the Joint Convention as follows:

We are gathered here today for the convening of the Legislature and for the inauguration of our chief executive officers at the most critical period in the history of our Country, of which we are all so proud.

Attacked treacherously and in violation of all the rules of international law, by foes without principle, we were caught by surprise and, until the last few weeks, have been forced to beat a slow and dogged retreat. The very treachery of the attack however united the people all over the Nation, solidified them as nothing else could have done. We became 100 per cent united in a grim determination to preserve the liberty and freedom which our ancestors some 160 years ago won for us, at bloody cost, upon such sacred ground as Saratoga and Valley Forge and Yorktown. And we are likewise 100 per cent united in our determination to defeat our betrayers so completely and overwhelmingly that never again will they be in a position to turn the entire world into a battlefield in order to satisfy their personal ambitions.

Now, therefore, more than ever is the time for cooperation—cooperation between the Federal Government and each of the 48 States, cooperation between Republicans and Democrats, and between Legislatures and Governors. Cooperation is always practiced by real statesmen, but today if we are to win this war we must work together as a team.

Now by cooperation I do not mean for one moment a surrender of all power to the legislative branch to the executive, for this is contrary to our entire philosophy of government, although I think we can all agree that even so long as Chief Executive must be given the greater power than these things permit. By cooperation I mean a give and take on the part of both branches of our Government in settling down on the part of each to consider the point of the other and to reach a fair and just agreement. Only in this manner can we move smoothly and rapidly toward our goal.

You have heard Governor Wagner today describe in detail his own attitude to State affairs. This inauguration should be brought to a rapid close but I can not conclude without stating some definite views on the functions of state and our views on certain important problems affecting our beloved State of California.

In my opinion there is tremendous work for State government. The Federal Government has been collecting money from our people since 1862 from California citizens where only four years ago it was collecting from California Indian Indians and the world as yet to come. If our efforts are to be any use in paying the Federal taxes which are necessary to run the war, and to the great post-war problems that looms, then State and local taxes must be cut to the bone. The State of California can well afford to cut taxes with the Federal Government. The State of California has $100 million dollars each month and with a support of some $100 million dollars each month of today.

Old age pensions should eventually be paid entirely by the Federal Government and not by the individual States. For some 11 years, however, I have advocated an amendment to our Old Age Pension Law by California providing for the payment of pensions as a matter of course and not as charity and the amount of the pension should be automatically increased while the pensioner should be allowed to earn additional income.

I sincerely trust that, in the next few years, both here in Sacramento and in Washington, great care will be exercised in separating the wheat from the chaff. We should recognize that good ideas can and do originate with both parties. Let us be sure to keep and implement those particularly good and valuable ones which have demonstrated their worth.

Another thing which we must be sure to plan for the future. A country without out products of wealth while people are working and the resources of our natural resources should be all ready to go into high gear just as soon as the war is won. As a Member of the Legislature in 1931, I introduced a bill along this same line, and have been preaching it ever since. A program of the State Legislature could now well be set aside and worked for the specific program.

The ideal for which our men are fighting here and dying there is not the money is to preserve the rights and liberties which are the essence of Democracy as you can't have a true Democracy without an independent Legislature that elected by the people. Our Legislature and our Congress are the only source of Democracy.

Having served as one of our six years I can assure you I have never regretted leaving, even though I will continue to be a part of the public affairs of the State of California and for the United States."

Knowing now as I do what Governor Wagner as I do I am convinced that we will all accept the great responsibility which is ours at this time and that California will have the finest session in its history. I sincerely hope the people can point with pride at these years and truly say: "They did more than for California and for the United States."

Senate Resolution No. 9

Relative to the death of William J. Farrell

An extremely worthwhile and active life ended very unexpectedly at the close of the year in the passing of William J. Farrell of Petaluma, who at the time of his death was filling a place of great importance in the maintenance of civilian defense and identified with many other outstanding public activities.

When he stepped from a year of fine accomplishments as State Commander of the American Legion of the Department of California, Mr. Farrell was selected to supervise, in Northern California, volunteer observation lookout stations located in each of the counties of the State; earning high commendation for the patriotic and efficient manner in which he discharged his duties and at the same time best encouragement to those performing this service. Death found him right in the midst of his work.

During his occupancy of the post of State Commander of the American Legion, Mr. Farrell did much to strengthen and advance the objectives of the organization of former service men and was particularly solicitous of the well being of the widows and orphans of those who made the supreme sacrifice or were injured in World War No. 1. At the time of his passing he was patriotically and enthusiastically doing his part to promote the early and triumphant winning of World War No. 2, therefore, in the tribute to the memory of William J. Farrell, be it

Resolved, That when the Senate of the State of California adjourns this day, it do so out of respect to the memory of William J. Farrell, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be and he is hereby directed to have a suitably engrossed copy of this resolution prepared and delivered to members of the family of William J. Farrell.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was presented by Hon. Frederick F. Houser, read, and on motion of Senator Deuel, ordered printed in the Journal:

THE FARMERS' EDUCATIONAL AND CO-OPERATIVE UNION OF AMERICA

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA, December 7, 1942

Annual meeting of Members of the California Division of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America

We, the members and officers of the California Division of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union of America in annual meeting duly assembled on this seventh day of December, 1942, send our greetings and extend our sincere good wishes to our former State Senator John Phillips who is now a Congressman from California.

We take this occasion to make public acknowledgment of the sincere, intelligent and consistent service he rendered to our agriculture while a Member of the State Legislature. He believed in and was the consistent friend of the working farmer. During the tragic years of 1939-1940, John Phillips gave much of his time and well directed efforts to the problems of the debt burdened farmers. Many are the farm families who are still on their farms because of John Phillips and his associates and colleagues in the Legislature.

The loss to California agriculture by his retirement from the State Legislature is only mitigated by our confident knowledge that as a Member of Congress he goes to larger opportunities for service to agriculture generally and to the working farmer specially.

Our State secretary is hereby instructed to send a copy of this resolution to Congressman John Phillips. And we hereby also instruct our State president, R. V. Garrod, to personally deliver a copy to the President of the State Senate and to the Chairman of the State Senate Committee on Agriculture.

The foregoing is a true copy of a resolution unanimously passed at the time and place and on the occasion indicated.

MYRTLE TALBOT, Secretary

Senate Resolution No. 29

Relating to the death of John McLaren

Today the City of San Francisco pays tribute to John McLaren. For many years the city has every spring set aside a day for honoring him. On those occasions, in the beautiful parks created by him, across the green lawns and among the flowers which out of his knowledge and his love of them he made to grow from shifting sands, children joined in pageantry to pay joyful and loving tribute to "Uncle John," while in the press and wherever people met together was told again the story of the young Scot who brought to San Francisco his youth, his art, and a great vision, and of how nothing could daunt him through the more than 60 years in which he made that vision a reality.

The man was no less miraculous than his works, and at the age of 96 John McLaren's works were manifold. Throughout the city stretches the great park and playground system. There is the memory of the magnificently beautiful Panama-Pacific International Exposition, unforgettable after almost 30 years. There is the matchless Golden Gate Park. His great genius won for him innumerable honors, including the George Robert White Medal, presented by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. He was made an Associate of Honor of the Royal Horticultural Society of London. One of the fine parks of the city bears his name.

To the home the people of San Francisco built for him in Golden Gate Park, death came on January 12th. Today, not in the parks and playgrounds, but in its great city hall where his body lies in state, San Francisco pays a final tribute to John McLaren; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That when this Senate does this day adjourn, it do so out of respect to the memory of, and as its tribute to John McLaren; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary be and he is hereby instructed to have suitable engrossed copies of this resolution forwarded to members of the family of John McLaren.

Resolution read, and unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

To the Honorable Members of the Senate of the California Legislature

GREETINGS: I am about to appoint a Citizens' Tax Committee which will be charged with the responsibility of making a detailed analysis of California tax and financial problems with the view of developing suggestions for gearing our fiscal system to the exigencies of war.

I would be happy to have your committee meet with this Citizens' Committee whenever possible and am anxious that both the Senate and Assembly avoid themselves of all background material which may be offered the committee during hearings which will be held during the month of February.

It is my hope that through its hearings the Citizens' Committee will develop a broad background of factual information which will be of definite assistance to the Legislature in weeks to come.

Respectfully,

Created by Senate Resolution No. 27, adopted January 17, 1942

Committee: ROBERT W. KENNY AND JOHN PHILLIPS

Legal Counsel: PERRY H. TAFT

Introductory*To the President and Members of the California Senate

The Senate resolution by which this committee was created last January charged us to gather and analyze facts relating to the transfer of peacetime industry and man power to war production, to aid in securing complete utilization of California's industrial capacity for wartime purposes, to encourage well conceived planning by labor, management, and government for the war effort and the postwar adjustment; and, finally, to report its findings before March 15, 1943, and to recommend such legislative measures as would further these aims.

The members of this committee did not realize at the outset how many serious problems would come to our attention, or how much study and activity would be involved in carrying out our assignment. As we have pointed out in our preliminary reports, California has a tremendously heavy threefold assignment in the winning of this war.

We must produce vast quantities of food and fiber from our farms.

We are No. 1 State in the production of war equipment from our factories and shipyards.

We were far on the way, when the figures became secret, toward becoming No. 1 State in the production of fighting men from Army, Navy, and Marine Corps training centers.

Besides all this, we are in the combat zone, required to protect ourselves against the constant danger of enemy attack. From our seaports huge convoys must carry men and supplies to all parts of the Pacific, returning to our harbors with men and ships injured in battle. Thus California citizens must cope with more varied and more difficult wartime problems than most States are having to face.

This report is the result of 34 public hearings held throughout the State, as well as a great deal of correspondence and personal contact with business men, industrial workers, manufacturers, farmers, and public officials. We have published four preliminary reports dealing with specific problems of outstanding importance.* We have been in close touch with organizations representing industrial management, agriculture, labor, and government. We have worked in cooperation with various Federal agencies, and with committees of the House of Representatives and the United States Senate investigating wartime conditions in California.

To these committees, to all the public agencies and private organizations, and to the hundreds of individual citizens who have given generously of their time and knowledge to assist us, we desire to express our very great appreciation. Without their help we could not have obtained the comprehensive picture that forms the background of this report.

We are grateful also to the California Senate, which gave us this opportunity to receive such intensive education in the wartime economic problems of our State.

Four Major Problems of 1943

Shortages of MANPOWER, FOOD, GOODS, and TRANSPORTATION will head the list of economic problems facing every California citizen in 1943, and all four will be more serious than in most other States, for reasons that are not yet widely understood.

Chief among these reasons is that the burden of feeding, housing, transporting, and otherwise serving our out-size population is far greater than any published figures have yet revealed.

The Census of April, 1940, gave us a population of 6,885,000 civilians and 22,400 in the armed forces. Today the total of these two categories is well in excess of 8,000,000, and still rising. Even without any National shortages of labor, food, goods, and transport it would have been extremely difficult to adjust our economy to serve the needs of so many new people in two and one-half years. It would have been doubly difficult because these people have had to be served on a scale all out of proportion to their numbers, great as those numbers have been. They have not moved into all parts of the State evenly, but are located in heavy concentrations, some of which are in hitherto small communities like Barstow and Benaica, or in comparatively small cities like San Bernardino and Richmond. These people have more money to spend for goods and services than any previous large groups of newcomers have ever had. They need more laundry work, for instance, especially the soldiers—and they eat more restaurant meals. In fact they've upped the State's food consumption nearly 50 per cent, as will be mentioned later in this report. They are continually on the move—to and from their daily jobs, hunting better jobs and better housing, going on leave over weekends, or traveling to distant points on ships and troop trains.†

It would be a difficult job, at best, to meet such demands by so many people—even without rationing, priorities, price ceilings, or dim-outs. That's why California's war-time economic problems are tough.

Although the four major problems listed in the first paragraph of this report are closely inter-related, it may be useful to review them one at a time, beginning with MANPOWER because it has strong claims for first place.

Manpower Demands Can Not Be Met

Mr. McNutt's latest figure of 65,000,000 for the total United States working forces and General Hershey's latest figure of over 10,000,000 (counting officers) in the armed forces by the end of 1943 do not convey what this will mean in the State of California. With the aid of the Division of Labor Statistics of the State Department of Industrial Relations, and with the cooperation of Federal agencies, we have tried to secure well-founded figures reflecting California's manpower problem. Here they are in concise form:

* On Transportation, issued last March; on Agriculture, issued last June; on Small Business, issued in August; on Child Care, issued in December.

† While freight revenues of the four main railroads operating in California increased over 50 per cent in 1942, their passenger revenues increased over 120 per cent!

Estimated Distribution of Labor Force in California

Manufacturing -----	472,000	980,000	1,230,000
Government <sup>(2)</sup> -----	282,000	404,000	480,000
Other nonagricultural <sup>(3)</sup> -----	1,270,000	1,246,000	1,115,000
Total nonagricultural -----	1,924,000	2,630,000	2,825,000
Agricultural workers (family and hired) -----	353,000	385,000	325,000
Proprietors, self-employed, domestic, etc. -----	410,000	265,000	215,000
W.P.A., N.Y.A., and other limited employment -----	306,000	100,000	90,000
Total labor force -----	2,993,000	3,380,000	3,455,000

Withdrawals from our available labor force to military service during the past two years have been in the neighborhood of 275,000, and Selective Service proposes to withdraw about the same number additionally in 1943. This number, together with the additional labor demands indicated in the table above, total more than twice the number added to our labor force in 1942. Even by the most extreme dislocation of "nonessential" workers, and the fullest use of women, youths, and elderly persons, these demands appear impossible to meet. Some of them will have to be scaled down.

Senator Sheridan E. Downey, speaking on the floor of the Senate in Washington on December 11th after holding joint hearings with our committee at Sacramento and Los Angeles, described the California manpower problem in these terms:

Beyond any doubt in California * * * we are moving into a condition of such extreme gravity, of such extreme danger, that unless the most active and energetic steps are taken we may expect serious consequences not only to the farmers but likewise to the civilian population and to the military program.

Consequences of the manpower shortage on our farms will be discussed under the heading of FOOD in this report. Consequences in other areas of our economy are already evident to every citizen. Breakdowns in transportation service and garbage collection for lack of manpower may be just as serious as breakdowns in aircraft or shipyard work. Measures thus far adopted by the War Manpower Commission have been weak and spotty in their effect, as recent reports of the Tolan and Truman Committees have set forth.

One small answer to the manpower problem, an answer that will fast grow bigger, is the reemployment of discharged Soldiers and Sailors unfit for military service. Many of these will have serious physical handicaps, but many will be adaptable to a wide range of not-too-strenuous jobs. No special channels for placing these men in civilian employment have been developed by Federal agencies, but the State Department of Education, through its rehabilitation program, is working on the matter with the Red Cross and military authorities.

Better Use of Existing Manpower

Our greatest reserves of manpower, however, are still in the ranks of workers already on the pay rolls of war industrial plants and Government agencies. Much has been said about lengthening the work week, but the fact is that California's 600,000 war industry employees are already putting in an average of over 45 hours weekly, while a number of "bottleneck" plants are working more than 50 hours. By Presidential order the hours per week of Federally employed workers are raised to 48. There are, however, three other sources of tremendous potential increase in the effectiveness of our working force:

1. Increased efficiency through better planning, supervision, plant layout, and training.
2. Decreased turnover of labor through better personnel practices, housing, transportation, etc.
3. Decreased absenteeism through higher morale and stricter discipline by labor unions and employers.

Absenteeism averages almost 10 per cent daily in most of California's war plants, twice the normal peace-time figure for large industries. Man hours lost through absenteeism at the Consolidated Aircraft Plant at San Diego are equivalent to 36 Liberator bombers per month, according to President Harry Woodhead.

Man power, like every other major wartime problem, can not be dealt with by itself—it involves food, housing, transportation, and many other factors. We shall therefore continue with a brief review of some of these factors before offering recommendations for constructive action.

Food Shortage Will Increase

Mr. Wickard's guarded words about the Nation's 1943 food supply do not reveal the concern which the Department of Agriculture and other Federal agencies should feel regarding the situation in California.

Some of the food shortages we are now experiencing are aggravated by unfair quotas, price ceilings, by Government hoarding against future military needs, but the most important fact to keep in mind is that we face a decreasing production to meet an expanding consumption—not for a few months, not for 1943, but for as far ahead as we can see.

While our State's civil population has increased by over half a million in the last two and a half years, our food-consuming populace has expanded by what amounts to 3,000,000, or nearly 50 per cent. This calculation, based upon various reliable indices is most simply explained by two apparent facts—first, men in military camps eat nearly twice what they did in civil life; second, war industry workers, partly because they need it and partly because they can afford it, eat 50 per cent more than the previous average per capita. Besides this tremendous jump in our food consumption, there is an undiscussed but enormous amount of food being shipped from California ports to Hawaii and the South Pacific.

If there were no lack of farm labor, transportation, or agricultural machinery, California would still be short of food for the duration. We would need to bring in large quantities of food from other States; States which are now experiencing shortages of their own.

It becomes doubly important, therefore, to maintain California's food production and distribution at the highest possible levels. Our ability to do this depends upon labor supply, transportation, farm machinery, and farm prices.

What is the outlook for an adequate farm labor supply in 1943?

In our special agricultural report issued last June, we said:

Farm labor is building planes, ships, and army cantonments. Farm labor is serving in our armed forces on sea and land and in the air. Farm labor is confined in Japanese relocation areas. Farm labor is going back home to other States where jobs are now to be had. As peak harvest seasons arrive and as further inroads are made on the farm labor supply, serious crop losses will be inevitable.

In spite of phenomenally favorable weather, which permitted the fall harvests to be extended over a much longer period than could normally be expected, crop losses directly attributable to labor scarcity last year amount to more than 130,000 tons of food, valued at $3,500,000. So testified Arthur Shultz, economist of the Agricultural Extension Service at the University of California, before a joint hearing of this committee and Senator Downey's Farm Labor Committee at Sacramento.

To understand what this foreshadows for 1943, the following essential points should be kept in mind:

1. Decreased production appears inevitable this year because of the severe shortage already existing in key farm men—truck and tractor drivers, irrigators, milkers, etc. The Farm Bureau Federation estimates that only half the necessary number of such men are still on the farms. For their services the farmer must compete with war industries in which the average wages have gone from $27 up to $52 per week.

2. Decreased production also appears certain this year on account of the growing scarcity of farm machinery—not only the scarcity, but the difficulty involved in getting what may be available. The questionnaires and procedures so perplexing to the farmer have been widely publicized, but little has been done to simplify them. Nor has there been effective recognition of the highly mechanized nature of California agriculture, and the fact that much of our farm machinery is used right through the calendar and around the clock.

Among the many problems facing farmers who need equipment is the securing of what is owned by Japanese evacuees. The War Relocation Authority has listed 754 pieces, as of last October, owned by Japanese farmers in Southern California alone—including 270 tractors, 126 disk harrows, 117 plows, 105 cultivators, 25 automatic spray machines, etc. While some of this equipment has since been purchased and put into operation, much of it is still idle, and no means exist for assuring its return to use. The War Relocation Authority is now considering how this might be done. Certainly the situation calls for prompt and vigorous treatment.

3. Decreased production, such as is already reported in meat, dairy products, and several vegetable crops, tends to accelerate toward disastrous outcomes. Slaughtered dairy cows can not produce milk or calves; neglected orchards can not be repaired in a single year; time lost in planting or harvesting in one season can not be made up in the next.

4. None of the Federal Farm Programs yet advanced has given the producer of food assurance or recognition comparable to what is given the producer of planes or ships under a cost-plus-fixed-fee contract and an efficiency rating system providing incentive for outstanding accomplishment. A farmer can not afford to hoard labor at high wages against the time when he will need it. No one awards him a flag for a heavy tomato crop or pins a medal on his best dairy milker. No Government official says to him in effect, "Just get out the food; we'll see that you're supplied with everything you need to do it."

When the necessity of some such help for the farmer is recognized, it may be too late to prevent widespread hunger. Already headlines in the California press have said: "Food Lack Curbs Ship Work"—reporting definite evidences of malnutrition due to empty grocery shelves.

5. Against the certainty of decreased production we must set the certainty of increased demand. Even with rationing our expanding population and military forces will need increased amounts of food, and the more territory we liberate from our enemies the more supplies we must send to feed starving peoples overseas. That is the National Program, and it is not a short-term program; it may extend far into the postwar period; days of abundance in California will not return when hostilities cease.

A great deal has been said about the new prosperity of farmers, and official statistics show that National net farm income for 1942 went up 45 per cent over 1941. A full discussion of farm finances as related to food production in 1943 would exceed the limitations of this report, but it should be pointed out that many price regulations affecting major California crops still prevent farm operators from paying wages for labor comparable to war industries, and that regardless of high food prices farmers are not likely to plant crops unless they can see a fair chance of harvesting them and getting them to market.

Impressive Warnings

An impressive warning has been voiced by Charles C. Teague of Santa Paula, President of the National Council of Farm Cooperatives, in these words:

Before this war is over, the production of food will be generally recognized as being of even more importance than the production of airplanes, ships, guns, and tanks. It is not being given the place that its importance warrants by those planning our war strategy.

Unless speedily remedied, the shortage of farm labor will seriously restrict future production of essential foods for the civilian population, the armed forces and our allies to an extent that may imperil winning the war.

Similar warnings have been uttered by many groups familiar with various phases of the food problem, from the House Agricultural Committee to the Butchers' Union. There is general agreement on two points—general food rationing should be instituted without further delay, and effective measures should be taken to assure farmers their essential man power and equipment.

Goods and Materials

The number of business establishments on record with the California State Board of Equalization decreased by 19,000 during the first 10 months of 1942. Casualties will be higher from now on, due to the fast-spreading shortage of things to sell and people to sell them. Sheets and pillowcases, infants' wear, garden tools, and fountain pens are among the present scarcities, and before the year is out there will be very few articles of common use unaffected by war limitations. As we turn to substitutes, they in turn will run short—much more rapidly than we have foreseen.

In our Report on the War-Time Problems of Small Business, issued last August, we said:

Priorities on goods and ceilings on prices, mounting taxes and shrinking stocks, long-term leases and short-lived tires, more red tape and less good help—these are the things that are causing gray hairs to sprout on many heads that thought war with all its horrors might possibly be good for business.

The shrinkage in the number of retail establishments has been somewhat paralleled by the closing of doors in small manufacturing plants, though here the situation has been relieved in many communities by the spread of war contracts from Government agencies and major industries. In Bakersfield, Stockton, Fresno, Sacramento, Lodi, Monterey, and San Diego there have been effective "facilities groups" organized with the assistance of the War Production Board, and these groups have been successful in obtaining numerous contracts. In Sacramento alone, in November and December, 52 war contracts were allotted to local plants.

In other cities this program has been less successful, but a checkup by our committee with the local chambers of commerce in the closing weeks of 1942 indicated that in general there was little distress amongst manufacturing plants which were able to turn out any sort of war material.

The effect of business close-outs may be more adverse upon the general public than upon the proprietors and employees, most of whom can readily obtain new jobs at increased pay. Many closed establishments produced only marginal incomes, some operated at an actual loss. Others were substantial concerns, kept up through years of painstaking effort.

At this date several Federal agencies are preparing orders that will close many more establishments, and are considering possible means of re-employment. Meanwhile serious difficulties are arising over houses and mortgages which require State action to adjust, as will be mentioned later in this report. And the re-entry of "liquidated" proprietors into business after the war will raise some important questions on our long range plans.

California Runs on Rubber

The most ominous news on the transportation front is the delay in the Synthetic Rubber Program, the causes of which have been aired in the press by Mr. Jeffers. Further and drastic curtailment of motor transport has already been shadowed by Eastman of O.D.T., and for California this would mean grave complication of the problems of food, manpower, and materials.

Highway carriers handled two-thirds of the total value of intra-State freight business in 1941. California has no rail network to replace these carriers if tires are not available, nor have we any such facilities for rail passenger traffic to exist in many eastern States. Troop movements have severely straitened the facilities we have; civilian travel between Los Angeles and San Diego is almost impossible.

California's truck and bus lines face grave problems not only in tires, repair parts, and the limited number of vehicles available, but also in manpower for maintenance and operation. All these problems are aggravated by the 45-mile speed limit. However desirable such a limit may be for passenger cars, it results in added wear on rubber and equipment when applied to trucks and buses. This fact has been established in careful tests by the State Railroad Commission, which reports that engines, gears, brakes, tires, and men are all wearing out faster as the buses and the trucks move slower.

It would seem logical for the Office of Defense Transportation to consult the State Railroad Commission regarding possible modification of Federal regulations to fit California's special conditions.

Commuter Transport Near Breakdown

In addition to the major railroads and highway transport lines, California's city and interurban carriers face serious difficulties in manpower and equipment. Staggered hours, extra maintenance crews, women operators, and the repair of old equipment to service have temporarily eased their problems, but as more automobiles are laid up and more of the carriers' equipment wears out beyond repair, new crises will occur, and greater public inconvenience will result. Already overcrowded cars and buses have increased the labor turnover at defense plants. In several cities the transit services are operating on the verge of critical disruption, and only the greatest care will prevent total breakdown.

To the management and workers in our transportation systems our committee desires to express profound admiration for the way in which they have been coping with their extremely difficult problems. There is a task as essential to victory as the building of ships and planes, and the ability with which they have handled their expanding assignment has been too little appreciated.

Other Problems

The four major problems reviewed on the preceding pages are by no means the only ones in California's wartime economy. We have dealt with them specifically because they are new and basic. Related to them are many others, some of which will be referred to later in this report where possible legislative action is discussed.

One of these problems is the care of the children of working mothers, which was the subject of our committee's latest preliminary report issued last month. Legislation to meet this problem has already been introduced in the Assembly, and its provisions have been given wide publicity. But the enactment of a statute is only one step in dealing with this increasingly difficult situation. Careful and continuous attention must be given to it by local leadership in every war industry center.

Another problem, which is not new but which war conditions have greatly aggravated, is the increase of crime, and more particularly of juvenile delinquency. War excitement, decreased home supervision due to absent fathers and working mothers, overcrowded housing and inadequate recreation, loss of trained police personnel, contributed to the sudden rise in crime and delinquency rates. In many of its aspects this is an economic problem, and it should be attacked vigorously by the ablest leaders of industry, labor, education, religion, and government.

Citizens' crime prevention committees have been established in various communities, and Governor Warren has made this significant statement in his recent inaugural address:

From out of a long experience in law-enforcement work, I have come to feel with certainty that we have been making a wrong approach to our crime problem. I am convinced we must revise our programs so that the emphasis is placed upon prevention instead of suppression. If we can bring our juvenile courts, our trial courts, our law-enforcement agencies and our penal institutions into harmony with such an approach, I am confident we will have made a definite contribution to our future welfare.

We have, I feel, already agreed upon the necessity of expanding the influence of the California Youth Correction Authority. I visualize such transfers and consolidations of existing agencies as will streamline, under this authority, all services in the interests of youth in dire need of a helping hand. In broader aspect, I visualize adherence to a policy in all Government activities which reflects a sincere desire to help men, women, and children to develop and unfold the best that is within them—something that can never be done under a policy which places reliance almost entirely upon crime suppression.

All Solutions Need Local Initiative

As we have pointed out in our earlier reports, there is more need today than ever before for resourceful and imaginative action on the part of individual business men and business organizations, farmers and farm organizations, and citizens and civic groups generally. This is true in spite of increasing regimentation by Government agencies, for these agencies operate on Nationwide programs that often overlook local conditions, and their regulations are often subject to change when these local conditions can be demonstrated to require changes or when a better plan of local administration is vigorously presented.

Among the many examples of effective local action that have come to the attention of this committee, the largest number have involved plans for the harvesting of crops. An outstanding case in point is Ukiah, where growers and town citizens despaired of replacing farm labor drained off by other wartime activities. Local leaders early recognized, however, that their problem must be solved in their own community—no help was likely to be sent them from other areas. Under the leadership of their chamber of commerce and their local press they developed plans for using the services of every person in the community at the time of greatest need, with the result that they were able to harvest all their crops without loss. They are now preparing to do the same thing again in 1943.

The San Francisco Regional Service Council and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce promoted citizen harvest programs which brought more than 20,000 city residents into near-by farm areas for part-time week-end and vacation work. The American Women's Volunteer Services conducted women's harvest camps in seven areas, with more than a thousand women taking part.

Three thousand Ventura citizens responded to calls through the local newspapers to work in the walnut groves, citrus orchards, and bean fields. In the Fresno area 10,000 city dwellers turned out over Labor Day and succeeding week ends for the grape harvest. In Kern County the schools were closed for a late fall vacation so that students could help save the cotton crop. At Chico a well-conceived student organization was set up early in the spring in the local high school and junior college, under student management, to secure maximum turnout for farm work. Effective local farm labor programs were developed in San Joaquin County, Stanislaus County, Los Angeles County, and many others.

In the industrial field the most striking results of local initiative have been where "facilities groups," or manufacturing pools, have been set up to handle war contracts. Fifty-two such contracts were placed with Sacramento firms in the last two months of 1942, and war production in very substantial amounts is being turned out by "small business" groups in Lodi, Stockton, Monterey, Bakersfield, Fresno, and San Diego. The Aircraft Parts Association of Los Angeles and the San Francisco Defense Works are examples of similar groups in the larger industrial centers. While much of the success of these smaller plants in getting war business has depended on the active help of the War Production Board and the military procurement offices, nothing could have been done until local plant owners had gotten together and taken vigorous, intelligent action.

Federal Wartime Agencies

While all solutions to wartime problems begin and end in the local community, Federal agencies centered at Washington usually set the formula by which these solutions are sought.

One of the most interesting and instructive phases of our committee's work has been its contacts with the W.P.B., the O.P.A., the O.D.T., the War Relocation Authority, the War Manpower Commission, the Department of Agriculture, the National Housing Agency, and others among the several hundred Federal agencies engaged in wartime administration. We have been alternately pleased, bewildered, amazed, and disappointed at what we have observed of the functioning of these agencies. Most of them are staffed by earnest and intelligent persons who are trying their best to carry out difficult and often confusing assignments. Sometimes the confusion in their assignments extends to the point where two agencies in the same building are doing identical work, each unaware of the other's activity. One such instance has come to our attention within the present month. A representative of our committee inquired about an important agricultural problem, and finally found an official who said that his office had the entire matter in hand. A few days later another Government agency, learning by accident of our interest in the problem, directed us to another Federal office which claimed to have sole jurisdiction, and which was proceeding in total ignorance of the existence of the agency previously contacted.

It is to be expected in wartime, with new and gigantic tasks daily confronting us, that a great deal of confusion will arise and a great deal of overlapping in Government activities will occur. The officials at Washington are not supermen; they are at best a cross-section of our general leadership in labor and management. They have not suddenly been endowed with greater ability; they have not suddenly acquired broader backgrounds of knowledge and understanding.

But there is one policy of Federal wartime administration in which we feel that a basic mistake has been made, and that is the by-passing of State and local government agencies. This may have happened partly by intent, and partly because urgent wartime problems, such as housing, manpower, and transportation, have cropped up in scattered areas not coterminous with political subdivisions. However it developed, this practice appears to be wasteful, confusing, impractical, and democratically unsound. We believe that the familiar Federal-agency pattern, which now consists of central offices at Washington, where all policy is made, regional offices in less than a dozen cities, where administration is partly decentralized, and scattered local offices, where details of administration are carried out, might well be revised to gear in with State, county, and municipal government departments.

Action by the State Government

In addition to the efforts of Federal agencies and local initiative to assist California's war production, it is evident that public agencies within the State itself must do their part. In this connection, serious thought should be given to the existing legal structure in California. Certain statutes enacted in peacetime may be impeding our war effort, in factory or field, and for want of essential new legislation we may be unable to meet some of our war-time problems.

It is gratifying to this committee to observe that much constructive thought has been given to this important problem by many organizations, including agricultural groups, civic clubs, women's organizations, chambers of commerce, trade associations, and public agencies. From their study a number of tangible suggestions have developed. These suggestions are briefly reviewed in this report, so that they may be considered by the Legislature during its first regular war-time session.

The State Chamber of Commerce held a war conference December 2d, the Motor Vehicle Legislative Advisory Committee met December 4th, the California Commission on Interstate Cooperation met December 7th, the California Teachers' Association convened December 12th, and the California Congress of Parents and Teachers held a session December 16th, all these meetings being held at Los Angeles. The California League of Cities convened at San Francisco December 18th, and the State Department of Agriculture held a legislative conference at Sacramento December 21st and 22d. Labor organizations and other groups have likewise included war legislation on the agenda of recent meetings.

The California Commission on Uniform State Laws has also developed legislative recommendations relating to the war effort.

Four representatives from the State of California attended a Federal-State Conference on War Restrictions at Washington in May. Meeting at the call of President Roosevelt, they considered State laws impeding the National War Program, and our committee submitted a brief on California statutes to the conference which was included in the published proceedings. Governor Olson attended a Governors' Conference at Asheville, North Carolina, last May to consider the particular problem of State Motor Vehicle Laws, and it should be of interest to the Legislature to know that in this field, as well as in others, California's statutes have been found to be among the most progressive and least in need of change.

The Council of State Governments held a Regional Conference on State War Legislation December 8th at Los Angeles, attended by State, local, and private officials from the five southwestern States, at which war measures were discussed.

Two Ways To Proceed

The war-time legislative suggestions arising from these various groups might be dealt with in two procedures. The first would call for code-by-code amendment and new enactments, upon the assumption that the Legislature, as the law-making body of California, should remove all impediments to full war production and hold itself in readiness for a special session should the measures now passed fail to meet every contingency. Where the amendment or enactment of any statute may seem to involve the surrender of social or economic values desirable to be retained, limited-term action can be taken in a manner assuring the restoration of those values upon the termination of the war. In other cases where there is doubt that proposed new war-time measures should remain in peace-time effect, similar statutory limitations may be provided.

The second procedure would be a quicker but more unusual method of accomplishing the same result. It would call for the passage of a few emergency laws placing in the executive branch, acting pursuant to prescribed standards and through designated officials, the power to meet any war situation that might arise, whether or not the Legislature were in session. It is for the Legislature to consider the wisdom and necessity of measures of such a broad and novel character.

Legislation That May Be Needed

With respect to the first procedure above mentioned, the following items cover most of the suggestions that have come from the groups previously referred to:

(1) Agricultural Code:

The existing testing and inspection laws for dairies, as well as the critical materials requirements for milk containers, involve problems because of the growing milk shortage.

The existing statutes on oleomargarine should be considered in the light of the butter supply problem.

The existing labeling and standards statutes for fruits, vegetables, nuts, eggs, and honey need to be reviewed in light of the labor supply and shipping problems.

The existing statutes on containers present problems because of the shortage of shoo, nails, and other critical materials.

The existing statutes on commercial feeds and fertilizers need to be appraised in the light of the existing shortages of supply.

The right of municipalities to amend State standards on milk and dairy products needs study in view of the shortages of these commodities.

(2) Business and Professions Code:

Amendment may be desirable to the statutes on nurses, dentists, and physicians to enable out-of-State persons in these professions to qualify more quickly to practice in California, in view of the growing manpower shortage.

Legislation may be needed to provide for the licensing and regulation of defense training schools to eliminate abuses that now exist in the operation of some of them.

Existing statutes relating to contracts in restraint of trade which have been held invalid from a constitutional standpoint should be viewed in the light of collusive bidding and contracting practices on defense work.

(3) Civil Procedure Code:

The existing statutes covering the acknowledgment of documents need be considered in the light of the problems faced by members of the armed forces who need to have documents notarized.

(4) Fish and Game Code:

The existing statute on sardine fishing seasons needs to be considered in the light of the demands for increased food and fish meal for poultry.

(5) Health and Safety Code:

Legislation might be needed for the establishment by the State Board of Health of sanitation and health zones, to take care of areas which may be severely damaged by enemy attack.

Legislation might provide for the establishment by the State Fire Marshal of rules and regulations for fire defense mobilization throughout the State to care for areas which may be exposed to fire damage due to enemy attack.

The existing statutes on vital statistics present certain problems faced by defense workers and members of the armed forces who need birth certificates.

The existing statutes on narcotics should be considered in the light of the need for greater protection to the members of the armed forces in California.

Legislation may be needed for the establishment of war housing authorities so that adequate housing can be more readily created for defense workers in California.

(6) Labor Code:

The existing statutes relating to the employment of women over eight hours a day or 48 hours a week should be considered in relation to the manpower shortage.

(7) Military and Veterans Code:

The existing statutes bearing on veterans' assistance should be viewed in the light of the increasing dependency problems of members of the armed forces.

The existing statutes covering the State Guard should be considered with a view toward making the Guard a more effective organization than presently constituted.

(8) Motor Vehicle License Tax Act:

The present requirement by statute of permit when hauling is done by one farmer for another needs to be considered in the light of truck and tire conservation.

(9) Probate Code:

Legislation to provide for the devolution of property where both husband and wife die at the same time should be considered in the light of California's status as a combat zone.

(10) School Code:

Legislation to provide for child care centers using school facilities needs to be given prompt consideration.

Legislation to provide for vacation harvest camps using school facilities should be considered in view of the agricultural labor shortage.

With respect to the above, the existing statutes covering the days of the week and the total number of days of school sessions should be viewed with regard to releasing students for work during peak harvests.

(11) State Bank Act:

The present loan limitations statute needs to be considered in the light of the recent amendment to the National Bank Act pertaining to loans on defense contracts.

(12) Vehicle Code:

The existing statutes covering the payment of license fees to operate motor vehicles should be considered with a view toward exempting from the payment defense workers who may be located in California only temporarily.

Legislation may be needed to assist California in conforming to the National speed limit of 35 miles per hour.

Legislation to vest in local traffic officers the power to enforce military orders should be considered in view of California's status as a combat zone.

Likewise, with respect to proposed legislation on lighting requirements in dim-out areas.

(13) Welfare and Institutions Code:

The existing statutes relating to the licensing of child care centers and nurseries need to be considered in relation to the man power shortage as well as the need for closer supervision of such facilities.

Legislation to provide for emergency aid and welfare service for those affected by disaster or enemy attack should be considered.

There is another wartime problem, so difficult that it may call for more than minor revision of existing statutes—the distress of lessees and lessors of property whose income is curtailed or cut off by war restrictions. In the early 1930's a somewhat similar problem was met in various States by moratorium statutes, most of which caused more distress than they cured.

A solution of the present problem has already been sought in California courts on the English theory of "economic frustration," and at least one such case is now before the appellate department of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County. If the theory is upheld that property leases may be canceled where Federal war regulations have severely curtailed business, relief may be afforded to lessees but abuses and more uncertainties may also result.

The Legislature rather than the courts may be the best source of remedy for this situation, which is rapidly growing more serious. Some form of debt adjustment procedure, rather than a general moratorium, would seem to be worthy of consideration. In any event the problem calls for very careful attention.

A War Powers Act?

The second approach to the problem is based upon the assumption that a war emergency may require legislative action when the Legislature is not in session, and that the Governor or his designated representative should be in a position to meet the emergency. Proposed statutes to cover this procedure have been broadly described as "War Powers Acts," and several types of such acts have already been adopted in other States.

New York passed a War Powers Act in 1942 which provided for the creation of a War Council composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, several appointees of the Governor, and representatives of the Legislature. The Council acts as a unit and adopts rules and orders to effect its policies. It can acquire property and dispose of it for the safety of the civilian population, with just compensation therefor.

Massachusetts passed an act in 1941, amended in 1942, creating an Emergency Commission in the executive branch. It differs from the New York Act in that the commission is only advisory to the Governor, who actually effects the purposes of the act. There is no legislative membership on the commission, suspension of existing statutes is permitted, and ratification by the Legislature is provided for.

The suggested war powers acts for California all embody the essential features of the New York or Massachusetts acts. An act suggested by the Council of State Governments in addition to its proposed war powers act is an Executive Statutory Suspension Act. These two appear to be combined in the Massachusetts law. The League of California Cities has drawn an act, similar to the Council of State Government's proposal, which includes machinery for the creation of protective regions where designated representatives of a War Council would administer the act, as well as certain home rule provisions. It has also been suggested that the Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court might be a member of the War Council.

It is apparent that this type of legislation, whatever form it may take, should be considered carefully by the Legislature in view of its broad and unusual character. It must be conceded that events move so swiftly that code-by-code revision may not provide for every possible emergency that may occur. The question may, therefore, reduce itself to a practical problem of either having the Governor and a War Council exercise certain broad powers when the Legislature is not in session, or to try to make all needed wartime legislative changes now and have the Legislature in readiness for a special session if the necessity arises.

Serious thought should be given to the legality of any war powers act in view of the conservative construction of the California Constitution as to the separate functions of the three branches of State Government. New York's provision for legislative participation would seem helpful in this respect, but the Massachusetts procedure of subsequent legislative ratification of the acts of the Emergency Commission and Governor would appear to ignore the possibility of judicial attack in a legislative interim.

War Problems Must Be Met Promptly

Above all, however, is the urgency of legislative recognition that wartime problems must be met fully and promptly. One has only to read the proceedings of the Federal-State Conference on War Restrictions already alluded to, and to examine some of the proposed Congressional wartime legislation, to realize that Congress or the President will not hesitate to act under their general war powers to deal with problems in States which fail to meet them in their own way. Our Legislature should move constructively now to demonstrate the ability of our State Government to act effectively. Governor Warren has stated this ably in his inaugural address:

There has accumulated in California a wide range of subject matter which, broadly interpreted, comes under the heading of wartime legislative needs. Some of it calls for remodeling and streamlining existing social and humanitarian endeavors which show the strain of war conditions. Some of it calls for progressive innovations which correct abuses and advance the considerations given those engaged in the war effort * * * The impelling force of your session will be the need for action in compliance with the needs of war. In part, these wartime needs arise from aggravations of long-existing needs among the people. They loom as emergency in character today but they do so primarily because they have so far failed to win proper evaluation in our long range planning. Ours is the challenge so to streamline our Government that its efficiency meets the need of the day and at the same time moves forward in the recognition of older problems which we see accentuated by war.

Interpreting Existing Statutes

Another remedial approach to the statutory problems is a constructive and imaginative interpretation of existing laws affecting wartime situations. The Attorney General must not subvert the intention of the statutes as set forth by the Legislature, because, as already stated, California's Constitution sets up the Legislature as the sole law making agency of the State Government. Consistent with the intent of existing laws, however, the Attorney General should make every effort to interpret them in a manner that will promote full participation in the war effort.

Action by State Administrative Departments

A final remedial approach to the problem here set forth is administrative action by the State departments. It is gratifying to observe the tenor of the new Governor's speech and the indication therein that the war effort is the paramount concern of the State at this time. No further elaboration need be made here, as Governor Warren has stated that he intends to utilize the various State administrative departments in a manner designed to meet war problems. Many departments have already been operating on this basis, with very constructive results.

We Should Make Post-war Plans Now

While we are working all out to hasten the day of military victory, we in California would be remiss indeed if we did not also give careful thought to solving the inevitably difficult problems of the post-war period. It is safe to say that no other State is experiencing greater war-time dislocations than California; no State will face a bigger task of readjustment when the war ends. To say that we should win the war first and face that readjustment when it is upon us is to disclaim all responsibility for wise planning; more than that, it betrays the trust of our fighting men and of our citizens working on the home front. They look to their State Government for leadership in safeguarding their future; we must not let them down. They will want real jobs; not apple carts in the park.

In considering how we can best provide for the guidance and coordination of post-war planning, both public and private, that is essential to any success, we believe that we should look first to existing facilities at our disposal. We have research departments in some of our industries, utilities, trade associations, chambers of commerce, labor organizations, and civic groups. We have large planning resources in our colleges and universities. We have a State Planning Board, an agency which might be strengthened and equipped to serve as a clearing house for well-integrated efforts. By whatever means such a clearing house is set up, we should do it now, by appropriate executive or legislative action, so that all existing sources of facts and plans may be fully and effectively utilized in this challenging task.

Recommendations

Having thus very briefly reviewed some of California's current economic problems and the means of meeting them, we desire to conclude this report with a few broad recommendations growing out of our year of hearings, research, and observation. These recommendations are supplementary to those which we have set forth in our earlier reports. They are offered for study not only by the Legislature but by every public official and citizen concerned for the winning of the war and the peace.

1. An appropriate Legislative Committee should continue the work which our Interim Committee has carried on, keeping in close touch with economic developments throughout the State and bringing them to the attention of agencies and individuals best able to deal with them effectively. Its first task should be to study the whole structure of regulative war agencies to determine how Federal, State and local machinery can be geared more closely into a smoother running set-up founded upon a theory of Federal-State partnership rather than the development of all sufficient Federal functions. In this study the Attorney General's Office could render considerable assistance.

2. A Round table Conference of representatives of Federal, State and local war agencies should be held, possibly at the invitation of the Governor to promote mutual understanding of functions, resources, and problems. The need for this has come to our attention repeatedly, and we believe that such an informal conference would be warmly welcomed by officials in every field of war-time administration. By the mere exchange of information it would have immensely valuable results.

3. The California Delegation in Congress can render extremely valuable service, as it has in fact been doing already, by bringing the particular problems of California's economy frequently and vigorously to the attention of Government departments. It would be impossible for the best intentioned and ablest administrators 3,000 miles away to understand them adequately. These problems are many and critical, and they are changing from day to day. In this war nothing is static, and California is very much in this war.

The present District Attorney, Hon. John F. Dockweiler, stated his office had no objection to the granting of a commutation of sentence; Honorable Isaac Pacht, President of the State Board of Prison Directors, with whom Mr. Hickok, investigator for the State Division of Criminal Identification and Investigation had discussed the case, wrote recommending the granting of clemency; and the Advisory Pardon Board, pursuant to the investigation, recommended that the sentence be commuted to time served. ## COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and, on motion of Senator Seawell, ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE LANDS COMMISSION
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 5, 1943

To the Senate of the State of California

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 6211 of the Public Resources Code (formerly Chapter 800, Statutes of 1917), we respectfully report that, according to advices received, certificates of title have been issued to August 1, 1942, by the registrars of land titles under the Torrens Law in 18 of the 58 counties of California as follows:

Alameda -----	179	San Bernardino -----	7,825
Fresno -----	119	San Diego -----	7,176
Humboldt -----	349	San Francisco -----	7
Imperial -----	548	San Luis Obispo -----	1
Kern -----	168	Santa Barbara -----	846
Los Angeles -----	120,300	Santa Cruz -----	288
Merced -----	1	Sonoma -----	656
Orange -----	9,286	Tulare -----	100
Riverside -----	312	Ventura -----	6

The Torrens Act provides that upon the original registration of any land a sum equal to one-tenth of 1 per cent of the assessed value of the land, including permanent improvements thereon as the same were valued for county taxation the last time said land and permanent improvements or either thereof were assessed for county taxes next preceding the filing of the petition, shall be collected by the registrar and paid to the State Treasurer to be credited to the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund."

The books of the State Treasurer show at the close of business June 30, 1942, a cash balance of $46.38 in the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund," and a net deficit of $7,164.50.

The State Treasurer in a letter addressed to this office January 6, 1939, stated that all of the assets of the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund" were liquidated in an effort to satisfy a judgment in favor of Thomas Edwin Gill and Myla Ritzinger Gill against the "Torrens Title Assurance Fund." The following excerpt from said letter is taken from the Biennial Report of the State Treasurer, dated June 30, 1938:

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Imperial, Department No. 2, the case of Thomas Edwin Gill and Myla Ritzinger Gill, Plaintiffs, vs. C. G. Johnson, as Treasurer of the State of California, and Friend James Austin, Defendants, came to trial November 18, 1935. The cause was submitted for decision on November 19, 1935, and the decision rendered on January 15, 1936, resulted in the Plaintiffs obtaining judgment for the sum of $65,000 against Charles G. Johnson, as Treasurer of the State of California, and directed payment to be made out of the Torrens Title Assurance Fund. However, on March 10, 1936, a modification of findings and judgment ruling on motion for new trial was made by the court, ordering that the judgment be amended to conform to the findings and conclusions by substituting the amount of $48,000 instead of $65,000; and motion for a new trial was denied. This judgment provides for interest to be paid at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on the unpaid balance from January 15, 1936.

As indicated in our Biennial Report referred to above, $46.88.48 has been paid to Mr. Gill on this judgment, leaving a remaining unpaid balance, according to our records, of $1,101.52, plus 7 per cent interest on the original amount of the judgment, or $48,000, from January 15, 1936, to the date of the first partial payment, and on the principal balances subsequent to the dates of the partial payments.

The final disposition of this litigation will be found in Volume 21, California Appellate Reports, at page 649.

Respectfully submitted.

Division of State Lands, Sacramento

Part I

Child Care

IMPORTANCE OF SUBJECT

Mothers and fathers who are employed have found it necessary to make arrangements for the day care of their children, and in many instances, for overnight care. For the most part, these children have been placed in private homes and nurseries. Prior to the entry of the United States into World War II, the facilities for the care of children of working parents were admittedly inadequate. Since December 7, 1941, there has been a greater number of mothers who have entered industry, and the number is expected to increase tremendously. The need for more and better facilities for the care of their children is one of the crying demands at present.

While there are many high-type homes that minister to the care of children, nevertheless, a certain type has sprung up which has shocked the sensibilities of all persons who have come into contact with them.

There are approximately 6,000 child boarding homes in California that have come to the attention of the State Social Welfare Department, according to Miss Martha Chickering, Director of the State Department of Social Welfare.

There are approximately 1,671 child boarding homes in the City of Los Angeles that have come to the attention of the authorities. Reliable sources of information indicate that there are many more of which the authorities do not have any record. The importance of the subject is demonstrated by the following typical statements and actions:

The Senate Committee on Economic Planning, consisting of Senators Robert W. Kenny and John Phillips, has called attention to the necessity of taking care of children of working mothers. The committee points out that it will be necessary to recruit an army of women to replace millions of men drawn from civilian occupations into the armed forces.

Resolution Adopted April 7, 1942, by the Santa Cruz Business and Professional Women's Club

WHEREAS, It has come to our attention that there is not rigid or uniform supervision over the conduct of boarding homes for minor children in the State of California; and

WHEREAS, If any crimes are perpetrated against children in such homes, said crimes are classified as misdemeanors; and

WHEREAS, If the owner or manager of such a boarding home for children commits a crime against any of the children, pleads guilty and pays a fine, there is no supervision over her to see how she conducts such a home in the future; and

WHEREAS, If the owner or manager of such a boarding home for children commits a crime against any of the children, and is put on probation and moves to another community, no jurisdiction is had over her future conduct of such a home, either by the Bureau of Child Welfare or other agency; and

WHEREAS, We believe that the conduct of persons managing boarding homes for children is a matter of vital importance; and

WHEREAS, We believe there is at present much opportunity for laxity in law enforcement in regard to matters of this kind; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That an investigation be made of existing laws concerning the conduct of persons managing boarding homes for children; and be it further

Resolved, That a recommendation be made that legislation be drafted to amend Section 273a of the Penal Code so that crimes against children in boarding homes be made a felony instead of a misdemeanor; and be it still further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., State Department of Social Welfare, State Bar Association, and Judges Association, for consideration.

Rev. Harry G. Earle, President of the Long Beach Council of Social Agencies, on May 10, 1942, announced the appointment of a special committee on adequacy of child nursery care, which would immediately initiate a study of child care resources in view of the enhanced employment of women in war industry.

Mrs. O. H. Spradling, of Glendale, Chairman of Juvenile Protection for the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Chairman of the Child Welfare Committee of the Los Angeles County Public Welfare Commission, stated, May 24, 1942:

Some of the most heinous offenses ever committed against children are taking place in some of these unlicensed homes and only by seeing that all foster homes are licensed and thus open to investigation by the State, can we prevent these offenses * * *. With so many women being drawn into war industries, this matter is more important than ever before.

The Los Angeles County Federation of Women's Clubs, on June 15, 1942, appointed Mrs. Paxton Lytle as chairman of a committee to participate in the investigation of children's foster homes in California.

Miss Thelma McKelvey, Chief of the Women's Labor Supply Service of the United States, has stated:

Mothers and grandmothers are today being utilized in defense industries, and by the fourth quarter of 1943, those industries will require 4,000,000 women as compared to 16,000,000 men, or a ratio of one to five. Women should assist in the social problems that will be entailed by the employment of women—housing, recreation, care of children, and establishment of day nurseries.

TYPES OF HOMES AND NURSERIES

There are four general types of homes which are used for the care of children:

(a) Homes where children are boarded overnight without the parents residing on the premises. This type will be referred to as "child boarding home."

(b) Homes where children are boarded and the parents live at the premises, but are gone during the day on account of employment. This type will be referred to as "parent-child boarding home."

(c) Homes where children are boarded overnight and the parents do not live at the premises, and which also board children overnight with parents living at the home. This type will be referred to as a "combination boarding home."

(d) Day nurseries and day care in private homes which provide day care for pre-school children and in some instances children of school age after school hours. This type will be referred to as "day nurseries."

STATE LAWS AND REGULATIONS

The Welfare and Institutions Code provides as follows:

SECTION 1620

Activities for which license required. No person, association or corporation shall, without first having obtained a written license or permit therefor from the State Department of Social Welfare or from an inspection service approved or accredited by the department:

(a) Maintain or conduct any institution, boarding home, day nursery, or other place for the reception or care of children under 16 years of age, nor engage in the business of receiving or caring for such children, nor receive nor care for any such child in the absence of its parents or guardian, either with or without compensation.

(b) Engage in the finding of homes for children under 16 years of age, or place any such child in any home or other place, either for temporary or permanent care or for adoption.

SECTION 1621

Department to make rules for government of institutions and services: Right of inspection and examination. The State Department of Social Welfare shall make such rules and regulations as it deems best for the government of any institution or for the performance of any service specified in Section 1620 of this code and the department may, by a member, or any duly authorized representative, inspect and examine any such institution, home, or place, or the performance of any such service.

SECTION 1622

Delegation of authority to county health or social service department. The State Department of Social Welfare may delegate such of its authority as it deems best to an approved and accredited inspection service. This service shall be either the health department of a county or other political subdivision which maintains at least one regularly licensed physician, or a qualified social service department, either of which has been approved in writing by the State Department.

SECTION 1625

Revocation: Notice of time and place of hearing. Permits or licenses may be revoked for cause after a hearing before the State Department of Social Welfare or an approved and accredited inspection service. Written notice of the time and place of such hearing and of the charges made against the holder of the permit or license shall be duly served on him not less than 10 days prior to the time fixed for such hearing.

SECTION 1629

Conduct of incorporated institution or service a misdemeanor. Any person, association, or corporation that maintains, conducts, or, as manager or officer or in any other administrative capacity, assists in maintaining or conducting any institution, boarding home, or other place or the performance of any service specified in Section 1620 of this code without first having secured a license or permit therefor, in writing, or refuses to permit or interferes with the inspection authorized in Section 1621 of this code, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The State Department of Social Welfare has adopted the following minimum requirements and standards for homes and nurseries (as revised in February, 1941):

CHILD BOARDING HOMES

1. Definition

A boarding home for children is a private family home which accepts one or more children to board with or without compensation, except that this does not apply to the boarding of nieces, nephews, grandchildren, brothers, or sisters.

2. Number and Type of Children

The license will specify the number, sex, age, and other limitations as to the children who may be boarded. No exception may be made without the approval of the State Department of Social Welfare or of the accredited agency which licenses the home.

(a) Since the boarding home is primarily a family home, the number of children in it shall not exceed the number which it is customary to think of as constituting a normal family group. The number of children under 16 years of age in the household of a licensed home shall not exceed six, except with special approval of the Department of Social Welfare.

(b) Age and sex will be determined by consideration of the sleeping quarters and other environmental factors affecting the safety and welfare of the children.

(c) Licensed homes are expected to board children whose religious background is the same as that of the foster parents, in order that all denominations may have the fair and just assurance of the religious training which the parent of the child would desire.

(d) No more than two infants under two years of age shall be allowed in any boarding home under the supervision of one adult. If two such infants are cared for, no additional children may be boarded unless there is another adult to share supervision.

3. Family Conditions

(a) The mother must be of suitable age, education, and temperament to care for children. The mental and physical health of each member of the family must be good.

(b) All members of the household must be of good character, habits, and reputation.

(c) The applicant may not be employed outside of her home.

(d) There shall be no mentally defective person in the family or household, either child or adult.

(e) No adult roomers or boarders shall be permitted.

(f) Homes where parents and their children are being cared for, can not be permitted to board other children without their parents.

(g) During the absence of the foster mother, children must be left in charge of a competent adult. If absence is to exceed 24 hours, the licensing agency and the child placing agency must be notified immediately, and, if possible, in advance.

(h) Children shall be boarded only in homes in which a suitable standard of care and comfort is maintained without the income derived from the board of children in the home. The money received for the care of a child above the amount required for such necessary food, clothing, and other supplies as the foster mother has agreed to provide, shall be regarded as legitimate profit.

(i) Satisfactory references must be furnished from persons who know the applicant in her own home as a housekeeper and homemaker, and who can vouch for her integrity and suitability as a foster mother.

4. Housing

(a) The home must conform in building and maintenance to the housing, sanitary, and fire safety ordinances of the State, city, and county, and be indorsed by the local health officer or a representative of the State Department of Social Welfare.

(b) The home must be in a residence district (not commercial or factory) with sufficient room to accommodate the family group and boarded children in a comfortable and sanitary way, and with yard space sufficient for a home playground for the children.

(c) The home must be in a district where the children can attend a school which is within convenient distance. Each child shall be given an opportunity to attend Sabbath school or a church of the religious faith of the parents.

(d) Sleeping rooms must afford at least 500 cubic feet of space for each occupant, and each bedroom must have sufficient outside windows. No child may sleep in a room opening onto an inner court.

(e) Children shall sleep in bedrooms, have individual beds, and must be under close supervision and within call of an adult at night. No boarding child shall sleep in a detached building, or in any unfinished attic, basement, stair hall, or room commonly used for other than bedroom purposes.

(f) Boys and girls over three years of age shall sleep in separate rooms. Children over three years of age shall not sleep in the same room with an adult of the opposite sex.

(g) Each bed shall have a good spring, a clean, comfortable mattress, adequate bedding, and rubber sheeting for infants and wetters. Each bed shall have but one occupant.

(h) Fireplaces and open-faced heaters must be protected by screens. Gas heaters must be vented and installed with permanent connections and protectors.

- (i) There must be adequate provision for the proper care of foods.
- (j) Rooms must be comfortably furnished, and provision must be made for the proper care of clothing and personal belongings.

5. Health of Children

(a) Before admission to the home each child should be taken to a physician or to a health center for a physical examination, results of which shall be given to the foster mother.

(b) Foster mothers are urged to take their children to health centers at regular intervals; infants no less than once a month.

(c) Proper medical attention shall be provided at all times.

(d) Every child shall have a bath no less than twice a week, and infants up to two years shall be bathed every day.

(e) Individual hair and tooth brushes, towels, and other necessary toilet articles must be provided, and each child must be trained in their proper use.

(f) Children under 16 years shall not be required to do work other than school tasks and simple home duties, providing these do not interfere with schooling, necessary recreation, and health.

(g) During the absence of the foster mother, children must be left in charge of a competent adult.

6. Diet of Children

(a) The dietary must be wholesome, nutritious, and suitable for the children of various ages; meat, eggs, or fish; vegetables (including leafy green vegetables); fruit (including citrus fruit); cereals (including whole grain cereals); sugar, butter, and milk shall be served daily. No butter substitute shall be served to children.

(b) Formulæ for infants shall be prescribed by a physician.

(c) Each child under six years of age must have at least one quart of milk per day. Each child over six years one pint of milk per day. Milk must be either pasteurized or from tuberculosis-free cows.

(d) With due consideration to age and special needs, children shall have their meals with members of the household.

7. Discipline

Corporal punishment must not be given boarding children. Foster mothers are urged to consult with the licensing agency for advice and literature on problems of behavior in children.

8. Reports

(a) The law requires that a register shall be kept in which the name of the child, the last previous address, age, nearest of kin, mother's maiden name, person responsible for his care and maintenance, amount of board paid, dates of visits to clinics or physicians, date of removal of child from the home, the name and address of person making the removal, and reason for removal. The parents of the child should be required by the foster mother to keep her informed of their present address. A record of children boarded during the past year is required before renewal of license is granted.

(b) Death or any illness of a child must be reported at once to the licensing agency and to the parent or guardian of the child. The law requires that the licensing agency must be notified in writing within 48 hours of any changes in the personnel of the home.

(c) Failure to make reports may constitute cause for revocation of license.

(d) Any change in the management or address of the home nullifies the existing license, and a new application must be made at once for another license.

(e) Newspaper offices have been requested to ask to see the license before publishing an advertisement for any home for children.

PARENT-CHILD BOARDING HOMES ACCEPTING MORE THAN THREE FAMILY UNITS

Definition

A parent and child home offers board and room, or room alone, to parents with their children, including, as a clearly defined part of the services given for the fee paid, the care and supervision of the children while the parent is away, either at work or elsewhere.

Licensing Requirements

The licensing function of the State Department of Social Welfare is defined in the following sections from the Welfare and Institutions Code:

(Quotations from Sections 1620, 1621, 1622, 1623, 1624, 1625, 1626, 1627, 1628, 1629, and 1630.)

Services Offered

The responsibility for the care and supervision of the child in a parent child home will of necessity be divided between the boarding parent, or operator of the home, and the child's own parent. The latter is present in the home for at least a part of the time and will expect to outline the general methods of care to be used, and will retain the responsibility for the major decisions. On the other hand, the staff of the home is responsible for the supervision, care, and safety of the child while the parent is away, and must be free to use their own judgment and apply their own knowledge, within the limitations set by the parent.

The staff and the child's own parent must plan cooperatively, therefore, in all matters concerning the child's care, such as diet, habit training, methods of discipline, etc., so that there will be a complete understanding as to what is to be done at all times, both when the parent is in the home and when he is away. This is essential in order to insure good care at all times and prevent confusion both in the minds of the child and in the adults in the household, and to maintain continued good relationships.

Where children are boarded without their parents, the boarding parent assumes a relationship toward the child which is much more parental, and becomes to all intents and purposes a substitute parent, assuming much more complete responsibility for supervision and method of care. For this reason, the two types of care should not be combined, and children without their parents may not be boarded in homes accepting parents together with their children.

Adult roomers or boarders who do not have children in the home must be excluded, since the emphasis in a parent and child home should always be on the care of the child.

Staff

(1) The operator of the home must be of suitable age, health, and temperament to care for children and she should be actively interested in their care and development. She must have sufficient understanding of human beings to meet the rigorous demands of a complicated household. She must have knowledge, ability, and experience in management of large households, including cleaning methods, quantity cookery, especially with reference to children's nutritional needs, and efficient buying. Knowledge of home nursing is also an asset since it will enable her to administer first aid, to recognize symptoms of childhood diseases, and to carry out doctors' orders in case they should be necessary.

(2) There must be a sufficient number of capable adults to assure constant supervision of the children. In order to insure such care, there must be at least one adult to 10 children, with a minimum of two adults in the home.

(3) There must be an adequate number of capable persons to insure proper preparation and serving of food and the maintenance of good house-keeping standards.

(4) Health and Medical Care. A physician's examination verifying good health and noninfection will be required for all members of the staff. The physician's recommendations must be on file to be reviewed by the licensing agency.

(5) There shall be no mentally defective persons in the household or on the staff.

Supervision and General Care of the Children

All of the details in connection with the care of the children should be carefully worked out with the children's own parents, who should be thoroughly informed of the routine which is planned for the children, the menus, methods of habit training, and necessary discipline. There should also be a competent understanding as to the role of the parent and the staff and the part each is to play in the child's supervision and training.

(1) Daily Program. The daily schedule for each age group should be planned in advance, and should be carefully carried out. This routine should allow for regular rest periods and regular hours for meals, with sufficient time for both free and organized play.

(2) Diets

(a) The dietary must be wholesome, nutritious, and suitable for children of various ages. Pamphlets on this subject are issued free of charge by the State Department of Social Welfare and may be obtained from the licensing agencies.

(b) Formulas for infants must be prescribed by a physician and followed carefully.

(3) Health. The operator of the home should, for her own protection, make sure that each new person coming into the home is free from infectious or contagious disease. It is desirable to have a health clearance or a written statement from a physician for each person before admission to the home. Any special instructions by the physician or clinic regarding the care of a particular child should be given to the operator so that she can carry them out.

She must have a clear understanding of the arrangements made by the parent for medical care in case of emergency, and should have a signed statement from the parent permitting her to obtain emergency medical care during the parent's absence.

(4) Personal Hygiene. Each child should have his own toilet articles and should be trained in their proper use. During the parents' absence, the staff should make sure that the older children wash before each meal, and should supervise the younger children in this regard.

There should be a definite agreement between the staff and the child's own parents regarding arrangements for bathing the children, both as to time and frequency of baths, and as to whether this is to be done under the parents' supervision or under the supervision of a staff member.

(5) Discipline. The methods to be used in disciplining the child should be carefully discussed by the staff and the child's own parents, and a definite decision arrived at as to when the staff has the responsibility for discipline and when the parent assumes this responsibility. Otherwise, there will be constant difficulty with the children, who will either become confused or will play one adult against another, with a consequent lack of any discipline.

Regardless of the methods agreed upon, the staff must never use corporal punishment.

(6) Religion. The primary responsibility for the child's religious training remains with his own family, but the staff must be respectful of the family's beliefs and observant of their religious customs as to holidays, church attendance, diet, etc.

(7) School. Children must attend school as provided for under State law.

Number and Type of Children

(1) The license will specify the number, sex, age, and other limitations as to children who may be boarded. No exception may be made without the approval of the licensing agency.

(2) No more than two infants under 18 months of age shall be allowed in any parent and child home under the supervision of one adult, and no more than four may be cared for at any time.

(3) The number for which a home is licensed will be limited by the size of the house and its adaptability for the purpose, the size of the staff, and the services which the staff is equipped to render. Overcrowding can not be permitted.

(4) No mentally defective children shall be cared for in a home with normal boarding children.

Location

The home shall be a residential community, always taking local ordinances and zoning restrictions into consideration. The home may never be in a commercial or factory district.

There must be:

- (1) Wholesome neighborhood influences.
- (2) Schools which are near enough to make attendance relatively simple.
- (3) Opportunities for church attendance and religious instruction.
- (4) Reasonable accessibility to facilities for medical care.
- (5) Safety as far as traffic hazards, fire protection, etc., are concerned.

There should be:

- (1) A library within a reasonable distance.
- (2) A playground which is accessible for the older children.

Housing and Equipment

(1) The house must conform in building and maintenance to the housing, sanitary, and fire safety laws of the State, city and county. Inspection by the local health and fire departments will be required before a license can be issued.

(2) All frame buildings used for this type of occupancy which are more than one story in height must have two widely separated exits from the second floor. Children can not be housed above the second story of a frame building under any circumstances.

(3) There must be adequate protection for the various types of heaters. Fireplaces, and heaters or stoves against which children might fall, must be screened. Gas heaters must be vented and installed with permanent connections and protectors.

(4) Sleeping rooms must afford at least 500 cubic feet of air space per occupant. (State Housing Act—Section 17705-17706.) There must be a sufficient number of outside windows (a window opening into a light well is not an outside window). (State Housing Act—Chapter 12, Article 2.) Beds must never be less than three feet apart.

(5) Children should have individual beds. Each bed must have a good spring, a clean, comfortable mattress, a mattress pad, suitable blanket, and rubber sheeting for infants and bedsores. Bed linen should be changed at least once each week and changed when necessary.

(6) Sleeping quarters must be arranged so as to provide for proper supervision of the children while at the same time insuring them at least a minimum of privacy.

(7) Sleeping rooms must be comfortably furnished. There must be a trunk, robe or closet for storage of clothes and space for the personal belongings of each person. These rooms should be cleaned regularly and these groups should be made to keep them attractive. This is very important as a person's mind and body cannot relax when the state of mind of the body will have to itself will probably be spent in these rooms.

(8) Bath and toilet facilities must be adequate in number and kept clean at all times.

(9) There must be suitable equipment for the preparation and storage of food. The ordinary kitchen range will usually be found satisfactory, provided the work is carefully planned. There should be either two refrigerators, one for meats, produce and one for meats, vegetables, and fruits; or, there may be not having the separate compartments in the refrigerator. Storage space for vegetables may be arranged in an outside corner, or vegetable bin, or a garden porch.

The kitchen should be clean and light and well ventilated, and the equipment should be adequately arranged in relation to persons. Garbage and trash disposal should be subject to local regulations and ordinances.

(10) There should be a dining room of sufficient space to permit the serving of meals in an attractive way. In those cases where it is possible for the children to have their evening meal with their parents, the use of such rooms may give an opportunity for some supper and family conversation, and should be encouraged.

(11) There must be ample space indoors and out. The standards of the United States Children's Bureau in this respect are as follows:

(a) Indoor—35 square feet of floor space per child, exclusive of beds, baths, and kitchen.

(b) Outdoor—a minimum of 75 square feet of space per child. Bath, shower and washing available during part of the morning and afternoon. Surface such that at least part can be used in wet weather.

Although many children will bring their own toys, some common toys and equipment must also be provided. Toys must be suitable for the age group, and must be suited to the age group being cared for. Information on this subject may be secured by writing the State Department of Social Welfare, 616 K Street, Sacramento.

(12) There should be at least one room which will serve for a general living and recreation room and which the older children may use for sleeping. Whenever possible, this should not be the same room where is used for indoor play space for the younger children.

(13) Responsibility for laundry and upkeep of clothing should be determined on an individual basis by agreement between the child's parents and the staff.

Reports

(1) The law requires that a register be kept with the following information:

- (a) Name of child.
- (b) The last previous address.
- (c) Age.
- (d) Nearest of kin.
- (e) Mother's maiden name.
- (f) Person responsible for his care and maintenance.
- (g) Amount paid for care.
- (h) Date of removal of child from the home.
- (i) Name and address of person making the removal.
- (j) Reason for removal.

In addition to this information, the staff shall keep a record of the place of employment of both parents, with addresses and telephone numbers at which each parent may be reached.

(2) Death or serious accident must be reported at once to the housing agency. The law requires that the housing agency must be notified in writing within 48 hours of any changes in the personnel of the home.

(3) Failure to make reports may constitute cause for suspension of license.

(4) Any change in the management or address of the home, violates the existing license, and a new application must be made at once for another license.

(5) It is advisable for one member of the staff to have an extra list of the children in the home with addresses and telephones of the parents so that, in the event of a wartime emergency, a quick check of the children may be made.

DAY CARE FOR CHILDREN IN PRIVATE HOMES

(As issued in October, 1942)

Day care may be defined simply as care given to children, who, for various reasons, must be cared for during the daytime by others than their own parents. This type of care differs from that of other child-caring institutions or boarding homes in that no overnight care is given.

The varieties of day care which have been developed are (1) foster-family care, (2) supervised homemaker service, and (3) group care.

Group care of children may be classified as:

(1) Day nurseries of a religious, benevolent or charitable nature which may make some charge for services rendered but do not expect to make a profit. For the most part, such facilities are incorporated on a non-profit basis.

(2) Community projects specifically designed for the care of children whose mothers are largely employed in occupations related to National defense, the expense of which may be partially or fully covered by the parents' payments.

(3) Commercial enterprises established by individuals with the expectations of making a profit.

The following standards apply to the group care programs set up as community projects and those established by individuals as commercial enterprises.

No attempt is made to offer interpretative justification for the procedures herein outlined. The standards are prepared as a concise means of presenting the basic elements which give adequate protection and will foster normal physical and mental development. As in the application of any standards material, these standards are intended as a guide. It may be expected that a degree of flexibility will be indicated in many situations. The decision of the State Department of Social Welfare authorizing the issuance of a license shall be based upon the total functional program rather than on merely the physical set-up.

Day care, in other words, means a simplified, harmonious environment in which a schedule of daily activities provides the child physical safety, healthy enjoyment, and satisfactory habit training. By this concept, it may be anticipated that children under this type of care will experience the abundant freedom and creative play which are so vital to any young life.

Day care programs should borrow freely from the best techniques already tested by accredited nursery schools. And finally, day care thus outlined should be regarded as a specialized service made important particularly under wartime conditions. It should never be combined with services which provide accommodations to:

- (1) Adult roomers or boarders.
- (2) Parents in residence with their children.
- (3) Children boarded for 24-hour care.
- (4) Other services which might confuse or obscure the issues in child care.

1. The licensing function of the State Department of Social Welfare is defined in the following excerpt from the Welfare and Institutions Code:

2. Number and Type of Children

The license will specify the number, sex, age, and other limitations as to children who may be offered day care. No exception may be made without the approval of the State Department of Social Welfare.

If it is necessary to provide day care for children under two years of age, this should be done in the child's own home through supervised homemaker service or in carefully selected and supervised foster-family day care homes.

3. Child Caring Personnel

Each member of the staff must be in good physical and mental health. They should be persons of good character, and adapted by temperament to work with children.

(a) Director

There must be a director or person in charge who shall be responsible for the administration of the day care program.

The director should be sufficiently mature yet flexible in thinking and adapted by temperament to work with children. The director should have the training and experience to:

(1) Plan a program which will insure adequate physical care (See Health Program) as well as the guidance needed by individual children and which, at the same time, offers opportunities for the development of this group.

(2) Gain the confidence and cooperation of the parents in order to effect a mutual understanding of the individual needs of children, physical, intellectual, and emotional.

(3) Participate in the community program of which the day care program is a part.

In order to perform these functions satisfactorily, the director should be a professionally trained person with educational background and training in one of the professional fields relating to child care.

Satisfactory references must be furnished from persons who can vouch for the director's integrity and suitability to work with children. The director must make provision for the daily personal reception of the child from the parents in the morning and for dismissal to the parents in the afternoon.

(b) Additional Personnel

(1) There must be capable adults of an adequate number to assure constant supervision of the children. In order to insure such care, there must be at least one adult to 10 children, with a minimum of two adults for any group, however small. One of these persons should be capable of substituting for the director and should have some of the abilities of the directors. One person should have some elemental knowledge of music. These persons should have a genuine liking for children and should have some knowledge of, and, preferably, experience in, the training and care of groups of young children. They should be capable of making suggestions for the children's entertainment.

(2) There must be an adequate number of capable persons for house-keeping and maintenance to insure proper preparation and serving of food and to maintain the plant in a safe and sanitary condition.

(3) Provision must be made for carrying on those parts of the health program which require specially trained personnel, such as a physician or nurse.

4. Plant and Equipment

(a) The equipment must conform in building and maintenance to the housing, sanitary, and fire safety ordinances of the State, county, and city; and be indorsed by the local health officer and a representative of the State Department of Social Welfare.

(b) The building should be easily accessible to the homes of the children whom it serves. It should be located where transportation facilities are good, and should be near other community facilities such as schools, clinics, and hospitals.

(c) There must be sufficient grounds to provide ample outside play space for recreation purposes. This will usually require a minimum of 75 square feet per child with suitable safety devices that will assure reliable protection. The ground must be so situated as to provide maximum sunlight and good air along with ample consideration for shade, as well as rainy weather. The play space must be suitably surfaced and have good drainage. There should be an inclosed yard. In event that priorities prevent the purchase of fence materials, adequate constant adult supervision must be provided at all times. This exception may not be made except on approval of the State Department of Social Welfare.

(d) There should be sufficient indoor play space to allow for segregation of the children by age groups in order to facilitate training and development. This will usually require 35 square feet per child exclusive of halls, bathrooms, and kitchens. The play rooms must be sunny and well ventilated.

(e) Provision must be made for daily rest periods. Rooms used for this purpose must have adequate ventilation. Children must have individual beds or washable cots for rest periods and must be under close supervision and within call of an adult. Each bed must have clean, adequate bedding, and rubber sheeting for enuretics. The bedding should be identified by each child's name and should be kept separate. Each bed shall have but one occupant. Beds used by staff or members of the household may not be used by children for rest periods.

(f) There must be adequate provision for the preparation, serving, and storage of food.

(g) Rooms must be comfortably furnished. Adequate provision must be made for the care of clothing and personal belongings, preferably through the use of individual compartments and lockers.

(h) A room with toilet facilities must be maintained, entirely separated from the other rooms, for the isolation of any child who develops any symptoms of illness during the day. This room must be adequately provided with heating, lighting, and ventilation. This isolation facility is designed to care for a child only until the parents can call for him.

(i) There should be a minimum of one toilet to 10 and one wash basin to eight children. Toilets and wash basins should be of suitable height and size so as to be reached easily by the children. Adjustable steps for young children should be available. Separate inclosed toilet facilities for boys and girls should be provided if school age children are cared for. There should be one bathtub.

(j) Fireplaces and open faced heaters must be protected by adequate screens. Gas heaters must be vented and installed with permanent connections and protectors.

5. Recreation

There should be provision for indoor as well as outdoor play space.

Since play is the most important part of a young child's day, an assortment of play materials and equipment should be provided. Emphasis should be placed on material which will stimulate activity on the part of the child rather than on mechanical toys which will suggest purely routine use. Sandboxes, swings, wheelbarrows, kiddie cars, together with an assortment of boxes, boards, and blocks which children can use for building purposes will be found useful for the out-of-doors. Crayons, pencils, spools, blunt scissors, scratch paper, scrap books, and building blocks are useful for indoor play.

Play periods should be planned for in the day's program. Weather permitting, these should include as much time as possible out-of-doors. There should be time both for physical activity and for quiet enjoyment, such as looking at picture books, listening to stories, etc. Under direction, the children, according to age group, might participate in the making of playthings.

6. Provision for Health Care

(a) Prior to admission, each child should be given a thorough physical examination. The findings and recommendations of the physician must be recorded on a medical record designed for that purpose. If examination can not be made before admission, a doctor's certificate must be presented stating that the child is free from communicable disease. This certificate must be kept on file in the director's office.

(b) There must be daily inspection of each child by a qualified person as the child enters the day care center and before he has mingled with other children. If a trained nurse is not available, the person making the inspection should receive instruction from a physician or a nurse as to how the inspection should be made.

(c) Provision should be made for the immunization of children for smallpox, diphtheria, and whooping cough.

(d) Each child should be given a complete reexamination at as frequent intervals as can be arranged and as deemed necessary by the admission examination. The findings and recommendations should be recorded on the medical record and be filed in the director's office.

(e) A health clearance should be secured from a person who is qualified before a child is readmitted when absent due to illness.

(f) Provision must be made for emergency first aid. The medicine cabinet should be out of the reach of the children and should be locked at all times. The contents of the cabinet may depend upon the type of person administering this aid and on the accessibility of a nurse or physician.

(g) Any child showing signs of illness must be promptly isolated until arrangements can be made to send him home.

(h) The director must at all times have current information as to how and where the parent or guardian may be reached in the event of illness requiring immediate attention. There should also be provision for medical attendance in the event of emergency. The name and address of the family doctor or clinic should be secured.

(i) Individual combs and tooth brushes, towels or paper toweling, and other necessary toilet articles must be arranged for, and each child shall be trained in their proper use. Individual compartments should be provided so that each child's toilet articles may be kept separate. Liquid soap or individual cakes of soap for each child must be used. A bottle with the type of top used for sprinkling clothes may serve as a cheap substitute for the liquid soap container.

7. Diet

It is wise to discuss with the child's own family the food which he will get in his own home during the day in order that this may be supplemented at the noon meal. The meals served in the center offering day care usually provide about one-third of the child's daily needs, or more if a mid-morning or mid-afternoon meal is served. Children who are very active or underweight benefit from a mid-morning lunch of fruit juice or a glass of milk, but this should not be given if it destroys his interest in his regular meals.

A general guide for the day's food for a pre-school child will include:

- (a) Milk—3 cups to 1 quart.
- (b) Egg.
- (c) Citrus fruit or tomato juice.
- (d) Green or yellow vegetables.
- (e) Whole grain cereal.
- (f) Butter.
- (g) Fruit other than citrus.

The noon meal should consist of:

- (a) Main dish of meat, eggs, cheese, or mild-flavored fish.
- (b) Milk.
- (c) Fruit or vegetable.
- (d) Bread and butter.
- (e) Simple sweets, such as cookies or pudding.

Where older children are cared for after school hours, an after-school lunch may be served. This may consist of milk, orange, or tomato juice.

8. Counseling Service

A day care program of itself does not solve all the problems of working mothers. For this reason, mothers who are working or who are contemplating employment should have someone to whom they can go for advice and help in planning for the care of their children.

Individual counseling service should be considered a vital part of the day care program and should be made available to mothers considering employment who need this assistance, and those who need continued guidance in order that the welfare of their children may be assured. Such service may be provided by the local welfare department, a habit-training clinic, a family or children's social work agency, or by the employment of a social worker with case-work training and experience. The latter method would be particularly applicable if the day care program is a community enterprise.

9. Finances

There must be sufficient financial support to insure an adequate day care program for the children in attendance. Financial records must be kept in order to show the amount and source of all income and its expenditure.

10. Discipline

There shall be no corporal punishment! The director should consult when necessary with the licensing or child-placing agency for advice on problems of behavior in children.

11. Reports

(a) The law requires that a register shall be kept in which the name of the child, the last previous address, age, nearest kin, mother's maiden name, person responsible for his care and maintenance, amount paid for care, date of removal of child from the home, the name and address of person making the removal, the reason for removal. The parents of the child should be required by the director to keep her informed of changes in address, home, and work. A record of children cared for during the past year is required before renewal of license is granted.

(b) Death and severe accidents of a child must be reported at once to the State Department of Social Welfare. The law requires that the licensing agency must be notified in writing within 48 hours of any change in the personnel of the home.

(c) Failure to make reports may constitute cause for revocation of license.

(d) Any change in the management or address of the home nullifies the existing license, and a new application must be made at once for another license.

12. Plans for War Protection

Adequate plans must be made for the protection of the children in event of air raid. Assistance in working out satisfactory plans has been made available in many communities by the local fire department and by the Office of Civilian Defense.

The State Department of Social Welfare has issued standards for day nurseries, which provide as follows:

A day nursery is a specialized agency which provides care for seven or more children not of common parentage, who for various reasons can not remain with their parents during the day. A nursery school implies an educational program for the preschool child. The differentiation between a day nursery and a nursery school depends on the purpose for which each shall be established and the objectives to be obtained. The name of "day nursery" or "nursery school" does not indicate that the agency definitely belongs in that group. The final determination as to whether the agency is a day nursery or a nursery school shall be based upon a study of the function, purpose, and program of the individual agency.

The standards set forth the requirements of the physical plant, furnishings and equipment.

LEGAL OPINIONS

Attorney General U. S. Webb, on December 9, 1921, at the request of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, issued a legal opinion as follows:

An institution, boarding house, home, or other place where children are received and cared for may come within the terms of the statute notwithstanding the fact that the mothers of such children also have rooms at such place; and they would certainly appear to be within the statute if the mother is away from the place during the day, and during her absence the care of the child rests with those in charge of the place who are boarding both mother and child.

I do not by this mean to say that any place where a mother and child find lodging is within the statute, for the statute contemplates those places which are primarily for the reception and care of children; but on the other hand, the place is not, in my opinion, without the statute merely because the mother is also lodged there at night or even for the entire 24 hours.

It should, however, be noted that the circumstances of each case must determine whether any particular place is within the terms of the statute.

Attorney General U. S. Webb, on July 13, 1926, and August 20, 1926, issued another legal opinion, at the request of the State Department of Public Welfare, which held that a woman who conducted an apartment house accommodating tenants with children and maintaining certain quarters in which day care was given to the children while the parents were employed, did not come within the then-sections of the Political Code prohibiting the maintaining and conducting of a place for the reception and care of children under 16 years of age without first obtaining a license or permit from the State Department of Public Welfare or from an agency approved or accredited by such State Department of Public Welfare.

Attorney General Earl Warren, on August 17, 1942, rendered a legal opinion at the request of the State Department of Social Welfare, as follows:

It is our opinion that the sections (1620-1-6-9, Welfare Institutions Code) contained in said chapter impose a general duty on the Department of Social Welfare to require compliance with the provisions of the sections. This responsibility, in our opinion, extends to investigating applications for licenses, determining that license holders are complying with the law, investigating for violations of the statute and compiling the necessary evidence seeking to prosecute violators. The extent of these activities is necessarily dependent upon the personnel and funds available for such work. However, it is our view that, within the means available, the department is obligated to investigate any home where it has reason to believe there is a violation of the provisions of the chapter. Thus information received by the department from complaints, anonymous letters, newspaper advertisements should, where possible, be investigated, if such information indicates to the department a violation of the chapter.

The extent of the investigation will, as in the case of any complaint made to a public officer charged with investigational duties, vary in accordance with the facts received and uncovered. If the preliminary investigation indicates a violation of the chapter, then, in our opinion, the case should be pursued, until, if reasonably obtainable, a prima facie case has been established to prove a violation of the law and the evidence presented to the district attorney for issuance of a complaint and for prosecution. Assistance in compiling evidence may, in many cases, be secured from local police departments, sheriffs' offices, or district attorneys.

It is our view that Chapter 1 imposes a broader duty on the department than merely to investigate homes that have made application for licenses. The extent of the investigations to determine if homes are operating without licenses necessarily is limited again by funds and personnel available and, as in the case of police work generally, discretion must be applied in determining cases for investigation and the extent of the investigations. If the department has reason to believe, however, because of its familiarity with the work, that violations in particular homes are likely. Investigations of such places would be proper.

You point out that in Opinion 4272, rendered by this office on December 9, 1921, we concluded that the law then required such homes to be licensed, but that in Opinions 5681 and 5681a, rendered in August, 1926, such homes were not required to be licensed. The two views were expressed by reason of the provisions of the pertinent statutes existing at the respective times. Statutes of 1913, page 73, required an interpretation as rendered in Opinion 4272. In 1925 (Statutes 1925, Chapter 18, at page 23), the 1913 law was repealed, and a new law enacted, requiring the interpretation rendered in Opinions 5681 and 5681a. The enactment of the Welfare and Institutions Code in 1935, containing Sections 1620 and 1630, inclusive, caused the law to revert more nearly to the provisions contained in the 1913 Statute.

Section 1620 now provides for the issuing of licenses to persons, associations or corporations, to:

1. Maintain or conduct any institution, boarding home, day nursery or other place for the reception or care of children under 16 years of age.
2. Engage in the business of receiving or caring for such children.
3. Receive or care for any such child in the absence of its parents or guardian.

Your question presents cases where the parents live in the same homes as the children, but the parents are away during the day, returning only at night or week ends. Specifically, we assume that the care of the child or children during the absence of the parents is understood to be a part of the contract between the parents and the operators of the homes. In our opinion such cases are within the provisions of Section 1620, and therefore within the jurisdiction of the Department of Social Welfare.

It should be noted that the standards for parent-child boarding homes were issued after Attorney General Earl Warren's opinion was rendered, holding that parent-child boarding homes were subject to the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code. In adopting the new standards, the Department of Social Welfare has provided:

The two types of care should not be combined, and children without parents may not be boarded in homes accepting parents together with their children.

This will prevent the lawful operation of combination boarding homes where children are boarded with their parents together with children without their parents.

This will also result in difficulties in enforcement problems, as it will be necessary to procure evidence that children are being boarded without their parents along with children who have their parents residing at the premises.

The minimum requirements of the State Department of Social Welfare covering children's boarding homes provide that:

Children shall be boarded only in homes in which a suitable standard of care and comfort is maintained without the income derived from the board of children in the home.

This prevents the operation of commercial children boarding homes, as the rule requires the operator to have a sufficient income without looking to the money derived from the boarding of children. However, representatives of the Department of Social Welfare have reported that the enforcement of this rule has been relaxed, because of present conditions.

CONCLUSIONS

(a) The child boarding home obviously comes under the statutes requiring licensing by the State Department of Social Welfare. This was admitted by Col. Archibald B. Young, Chairman of the State Social Welfare Board, in testifying before the Senate Interim Committee on Relief on July 13, 1942. (Trans. Vol. I, pp. 41 to 42.)

(b) There has been a difference of opinion whether the parent-child boarding home comes under the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code. The State Department of Social Welfare in exempting this type of home from regulation, inspection and licensing, did so on the basis of Attorney General U. S. Webb's legal opinions of December 9, 1921, July 13, 1926, and August 20, 1926. Attorney General Earl Warren, on August 17, 1942, held to the contrary, relying on changes in the statutes between the times of the former Attorney General's opinion and the present time. The State Department of Social Welfare made no attempt to obtain any further opinions on the subject since 1926 until the present Senate investigation brought the matter to the foreground.

(c) The combination boarding home would require a license as long as it boarded children without their parents residing at the premises—this was conceded by the State Social Welfare Department authorities. Their contention was that it was difficult to enforce the law in the combination boarding homes because it was difficult to obtain evidence that some of the children living at the premises did so without their parents.

It should be noted that investigators of your committee did not have any difficulty in obtaining evidence that children's boarding homes were operating illegally and in an improper manner. It was only necessary to read advertisements in the daily newspapers which advertised that homes were available to care for children. The operators of the homes were interviewed, the premises were inspected, and the records of the Department of Social Welfare were examined, which disclosed that many of these homes did not have a license.

(d) Day nurseries come within the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code, which was admitted by Miss Selma Zorn, Supervisor of Boarding Homes and Institutions, State Department of Social Welfare, in her testimony before the committee on May 26 and 27, 1942. (Trans. Vol. I, pp. 122 and 123.) Homes which provide day care for children were conceded by the Department of Social Welfare to come within the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code.

CONDITIONS IN HOMES

Evidence was introduced before your committee on May 26 and 27, 1942, and on July 13, 1942, which disclosed that many boarding homes for children were improper in the following particulars:

1. They were over-crowded with many children sleeping in the same room without proper ventilation;

2. There were many cases of malnutrition and improper food being served to the children;

3. There were unhealthy sleeping conditions, such as children being required to sleep in attics and basements, and many of the beds were insanitary;

4. There were instances of corporal punishment being administered to the children for trivial reasons;

5. Children were mistreated in that general living conditions were very bad and there was no supervision of their play or any proper attention being given to them;

6. Proper medical attention was not given to the children, and many of them became ill without receiving any attention, either from nurses or doctors;

7. Homes were in a dirty, dilapidated condition, without much effort being made to keep them clean; many of the kitchens where food was prepared for the use of the children were dirty, and excess garbage was allowed to remain in the room for an undue length of time;

8. Certain inferences were placed before the committee from the testimony submitted, indicating that immoral conditions existed in some of the homes.

The hearings of May 26th and May 27th were given extensive publicity in the metropolitan newspapers of Los Angeles; and when the committee resumed its hearings on July 13, 1942, it appeared that many homes had cleaned up their premises and that conditions were somewhat improved. However, it was pointed out by the City of Los Angeles authorities that there were still a large number of homes that required attention. The following are some excerpts from the testimony introduced before the committee. The names and addresses of the homes are omitted from this report, but are contained in the transcript of the proceedings before the committee as well as the exhibits introduced therein. For the purpose of this report the homes will be referred to by number.

At the time I was living at "Address No. 1" there were two other women with two children, and twenty-one children without parents living there. All together there were twenty-five children living there, ranging from three months to twelve years of age, of both sexes. Seven of the children were under two years. It is a seven-room house in which there are four bedrooms, occupied by six adults and the twenty-five children. One bedroom measured approximately 10' x 10' and housed nine children and one adult. . . . There was one little window in the room which was never opened and the odor from the urinating of the children was nauseating. The bedding, such as mattresses and covers, were always wet from the children's urinating and they never had a chance to dry out from one night to the next. I noticed that there were bedbugs in some of the beds. Boys and girls over three years of age did not sleep in separate rooms but slept all together. Adults of the opposite sex slept in the same room with children over three years of age. The house had a heater without a screen in front of it. While I lived there I observed a number of children having all kinds of sores on their faces and bodies. I also noticed that they were coughing badly. I asked "Mrs. A" why she did not call a doctor to take care of the children and she told me she did not want to call a doctor because he would cause her to close up the place, as there are always some children having measles, chicken pox and whooping cough. While I was living there I observed that the children were not bathed except on Saturday. "Mrs. A" would put four or five children in the bathtub at one time and bathe them all in the same dirty water. . . . "Mrs. A's" father, who was a very old and feeble man, was living with her. His sleeping quarters were in the dining room where the children would eat. There were times when he would have a bowel movement in the room while the children were there. This happened because he had no control over his bowels. . . . I paid $10.00 a week, which included my room and the care of my children. The way I happened to go to that house in the first place was that I saw an ad in the newspaper which gave the address and telephone number.

I went to "House No. 2" after reading an ad in the newspaper. . . . I knocked at the door, and a middle-aged woman answered the door, and I told her that I wished to place my child in her nursery. . . . I asked her how much she would charge me for the child's board and care and she said seven dollars per week. I also asked her if I would have to stay with the child and she said that I did not. I then asked her to show me the place where my child would sleep, and she led me through a hall which was dark and crowded with dirty clothes of the children. . . . The bedroom was 10' x 10'. There were five cribs in the room, one against the other. At the entrance to the room, almost at the door, there was a single bed for an adult. There were infants in each of the five cribs and in my opinion their age ranged from six months to one year. One of the children stood up in the crib and its entire body was smeared with its bowel movement, which looked so dry that it must have been on the body for hours. The scene and the odor of the room made me leave it without observing anything else. I then asked "Mrs. B" whether there was a backyard for my child to play in. She led me through another dark entrance into her kitchen. This place was just one mass of dirty clothes, dirty dishes, and dirt all over. Several children were playing there whose ages were between six and twelve. The sink was littered with garbage, as well as some children's dirty clothes. There was also a large bowl of spaghetti which looked almost black, and I could smell the sourness from a distance. . . . We looked through the screen of the back porch and saw the backyard, which was dirty and unfenced. The yard in which the children were playing faced a street without any protection from the passing traffic. I asked "Mrs. B" whether she had any parents living there and she said no.

I went to "House No. 3" and I was admitted to the house by "Mrs. C" and told her I would like to place my two children to board with her. I asked her how much she would charge me and she said six dollars per week per child. I asked her if I would have to stay with the children, and she told me it was optional. "Mrs. C" told me that there were three parents living in the house and 24 children. . . . She took me into a bedroom which was about 10' x 10'. This bedroom was crowded with nine cribs. The beds were untidy and the mattresses were very old. The odor was so bad that I had to leave the bedroom at once. There were four bedrooms upstairs. . . . Boys and girls over three years of age do not sleep in separate rooms. . . . While going through the house on April 6th to the backyard, I noticed a large number of children. Some of them had measles and chicken pox sores on their faces. The whooping cough was very loud. . . . I had visited the place about six times. On those occasions I noticed there was a boarder who was seventy years of age, and who was drunk all of the time.

I went to "House No. 4" in response to an ad which appeared in the newspaper. . . . A young woman who was approximately 17 years of age opened the door. She was wearing a robe loosely. I asked "Are you 'Mrs. D.'?" She said, "Oh, you want 'Mrs. D.' come in." We came into a front room and she asked us to wait, saying that she would get "Mrs. D." A few minutes later a woman who was in her early thirties appeared, and stated she was "Mrs. D." . . . I asked her how much she would charge me and she said $60 a month for the children. . . . I then asked her whether she had a nursery for the children and she said, "Yes, it is in the basement." . . . She led us into the hallway and we passed another room in which there were six girls. They were all seated and were dressed in the same manner as the girl who admitted us into the house. We then passed through a dirty kitchen. "Mrs. D" then led us down a dilapidated stairway which was dark and very steep. . . . When we reached the bottom we found a space which was approximately 12' x 15', in which there was a very large furnace with four large tin pipes leading into the ceiling of the basement. On one side were three large washtubs with double drainboards on each side. In the center and around the furnace there were thirteen double bunk beds, three cribs and a large double bed, which accounted for sleeping space for thirty-three children. All of the beds looked as though they had been used, as none of them were made up. There were four small windows about eighteen inches by thirty inches, leaning on the ground on the outside. The floor was bare cement. The entire basement was dark and had a damp and musty odor. I observed the corners near the windows, and while it had been several days since there had been rain, still some of the places were wet. . . . She took us into the backyard, which was only partially fenced. In the opposite direction of the house there was a double garage; one door was open, and I saw several girls from fifteen to eighteen years of age, wearing the same type of clothing as the girls inside the house were wearing. . . . It was during the lunch hour and the children were eating sandwiches in the yard. We came back into the hallway and "Mrs. D" said, "I am not the boss of this place. I am only managing it. The boss has several places like this."

I went to "House No. 5" in response to an ad in the newspaper. We were admitted into a small dark hallway about 4'x5'. The floor was thick with dust and dirty as though it had not been swept for some time. The walls and floor had a large number of cobwebs. On one side of the room there was a small-sized davenport which had parts of the stuffing pulled out and was so dirty that I did not want to sit on it. . . . The paper on the walls was so dirty that the original color was obliterated and the paper bulged out from the walls. The plaster was loose in several places and was on the verge of falling down. . . . I told "Mrs. E" that my work required that I be out of town from time to time and that I would not be able to live with my children all of the time. "Mrs. E" said that it was all right for me to leave the children with her. I asked her how much she would charge me for my two children and she said she would make a special rate of $13.75 per week. . . . I then asked her where my children would sleep, and she showed me a bedroom which measured about 10'x12' with four double bunks. She stated eight children slept there. She then took me to another bedroom which was very small and there were three double bunks in it. She said that six children slept there. She then took me out to a little porch which was about 3'x5'. There were two baby cribs in it and "Mrs. E" told me she had two babies sleeping in them. In this way she accounted for a total of sixteen children. "Mrs. E" was then asked by me how many children she had at present and she stated she did not know, but that yesterday she counted them and she had about twenty one or twenty-two, but that today she may have a couple more. . . . None of the bunks were made up and the bedding in them was filthy and dirty. I then asked to see the yard and we passed through a room where the children eat their meals. There were two large windows in the room but they were covered with cardboard and had a curtain over them. This made the room very dark. It was furnished with three improvised tables, each top being made of three boards and covered with oilcloth. . . . There is one toilet on the back porch in a room about 4'x4'. There was one bathtub upstairs, which was used for bathing the children as well as the adults. The upstairs did not have a toilet in it.

I went to "House No. 6" in response to an ad which appeared in the newspaper. . . . I told "Mrs. F" that my work required me to be out of town most of the time, and that I wanted to place my child where complete care would be taken of it in my absence. "Mrs. F" said that it would be all right. . . . we walked up a stairway to the second floor which consisted of four rooms and a bathroom. The walls, ceilings, stairway and, in fact, the entire house, was in a very dilapidated and filthy condition. I asked "Mrs. F" how many children she had at the present time. She replied, "Eighteen, nineteen, twenty—I don't know—maybe a few more." . . . She told me that the charge per week would be seven dollars. . . . The bedrooms for the children were in the detached building. There were seven children playing in the front room which had a heater burning. There was a rope strung around the heater on which some clothes were drying.

I went to "House No. 7" in response to a newspaper ad. . . . "Mrs. G" said that she would take perfect care of my child and would charge me $7 per week. . . . I asked "Mrs. G" how many children she had at the present time, and she said 17. . . . I asked "Mrs. G" to show me where my child would sleep, and she led me to the part of the room which was divided from the living room. There were five cribs and three single beds in it. The size of the room was about 8'x11'. . . . The beds were smelly and unmade. The floor was very dirty. The children that I saw there appeared to be underfed.

I went to "House No. 8" conducted by "Mrs. H." in response to a newspaper ad. I told "Mrs. H" that I had a little girl two and a half years old and would like to place her in her care for room and board. She told me the charge would be $8.75 per week. I told her that while I am out of the city for different periods of time, I would like to have a room on the occasions when I came to the city so that I would have a place to stay. She told me that she would give me a room to share with someone else and that the charge would be $2.50 per week. I asked "Mrs. H" to show me the room where my child would sleep, and she led me to a room which measured approximately 11' x 12'. There were nine cribs and two bassinets, which accommodated 11 children. The cribs and bedding in this room were extremely dirty. They were all placed very tightly against each other, except for a passageway in the center which led to another room filled with cribs and bassinets. . . . The two nursery rooms had very little ventilation, no heating facilities, were very dirty, and had a sickening smell. . . . She then told me the items that she gave the children for each meal during the day. She emphasized in particular that the 11.30 a.m. meal was the main one of the day. She enumerated a six-course dinner consisting of a variety of vegetables, soup, meat or fish, dessert and milk. We then went from the little porch, through the kitchen, back to the living room. It was exactly 11.30 a.m. I looked around the kitchen to observe the food, particularly since this was Sunday. I did not see anything on the stove, sink or any other place in the kitchen where food could be prepared or kept. I did observe a large pot with potatoes in it which was half-filled with water. There was a medium-sized pot with something cooking in it which had the smell of meat. There appeared to be about 25 children, most of them being infants up to one and a half years of age. . . . I asked "Mrs. H" how often the parents of the children came to see them, and she replied about once a week or month. She stated that it all depends when they have time. She said, in particular, "In one case I have a child that is now 17 months of age and the mother hasn't seen it for over a year." I asked "Mrs. H," "What does she do, mail you the check?" "Mrs. H" said, "No—that would be all right, but she left the child with me a year ago this month and never showed up. I have never heard from her and don't know where she is." I asked "Mrs. H" why she did not report the abandoned child to the authorities, and she said, "I don't want them to come around. They might give me trouble, so I just keep the child."

I went to "House No. 9," conducted by "Mrs. I" in response to an ad in the newspaper. While I was there she called out to one of the boys, "Go ahead and make the childrens' lunch." The boy made some jelly and butter sandwiches, and handed them to all of the children.

MRS. VERA HANSEN testified in substance and effect as follows:

She and a Mrs. Russell visited a home in August of 1941.

Q. And will you describe briefly and generally the condition of the home as you saw it when you were there?

A. We walked in and it was about 12.15 at noon; we walked in and you are not allowed in the kitchen or the nursery; Mrs. Russell said, "You come on in with me and I will take you through," so we went down to the kitchen. There wasn't a thing on the stove, nothing started for lunch. She took me in the nursery and all the way from 15 to 20 beds and cribs and buggies and bassinets were in there, ranging from newborn babies up to about two and a half years old; the room was dark, the curtains were pulled; all you could smell was the odor of diapers; and children were crying. Then we went out into the back yard and the children were in kennels.

Q. Will you describe these kennels that you are referring to?

A. They are just like you would fasten a cow up to in a stall; each child was in its individual kennel.

Q. Did you see children in these enclosures?

A. Yes.

Q. About how many children were there?

A. Well, I wouldn't say because I really don't know. We went through fast, and it struck me so hard I turned around and walked out.

Q. Did you notice the house as far as cleanliness was concerned?

A. Well, I wouldn't say it was clean. The nursery certainly wasn't clean.

MR. CHOTINER: I have no further questions.

CHAIRMAN PHILLIPS: I am curious to ask you what were these kennels built for originally, do you suppose?

THE WITNESS: To me it looked like just to keep each child in.

CHAIRMAN PHILLIPS: You mean built for that?

THE WITNESS: That's what it looked like to me; the children, when I walked out, came up to the front and looked through—I don't know whether it was pipes or boards, but they looked through and just cried and cried; they were filthy dirty. It was 12.00 o'clock noon then. When they took them in to bathe them, I don't know.

MRS. ELSIE RASMUSSEN who had a home where she boards three mothers and three children, testified:

Q. And have you any knowledge pertaining to any reports that you have received regarding "House No. 4"?

A. In December, 1939, I took a mother and two children in that had told me they had moved from "House No. 4." These youngsters were three and five. They had lived there about five months. The mother told me about the children sleeping in the basement, and I know when the children came they had severe colds that took me a month or six weeks to clear up. And the little boy, it was about a month before he ever really was filled up; it was a novelty for him to have whatever he asked for. I gave him his meal and then I told him he could have what he wanted more, and for about a month he couldn't get over that; it was a daily occurrence that he could have what he wanted. And he looked like he was frightened. Of course, it might be that way with any youngster that is moved around a good deal.

Q. And this mother did tell you that the children did sleep in the basement of this place?

A. Yes.

Q. That was as far back as 1939?

A. December, 1939, was when she moved into my place and she had been there four or five months.

Q. Have you heard reports of other places, generally, in the City of Los Angeles?

A. I have heard, yes, because I take the mothers and children in, and I have heard reports about different places.

Q. Generally speaking, would you say that the reports that you have received indicate that there are a number of these places that are not up to standard, shall we say?

A. I should say so, because they tell me they can't find a good place.

MRS. MAYBEL SHAEFFER is one of the neighbors of "House No. 1," and testified:

THE WITNESS: I know about two weeks ago I went out in the yard and they had a young baby, I should say about a year and a half old, in this crib out in the boiling hot sun. I felt like running right over but I didn't want to interfere, but the baby cried terribly, you know, there must have been something wrong to have it out in the hot sun in that crib.

Q. BY MR. CHOTINER: Did anyone come out to see the child?

A. Yes, they came out and just picked it up and went back in the house and still the baby cried.

Q. How long had the baby been out in the hot sun in that crib?

A. I would say over half an hour, about three-quarters, because I was really interested in it.

MRS. HELEN GILLETTE is a next-door neighbor of "House No. 5," and testified:

Q. What do you know about the place?

A. One day she was correcting one of the children and I told her if she didn't quit correcting them the way she was, I was going to call the authorities.

Q. How was she correcting the children?

A. There was a little fellow, he wasn't two, and he was out in the yard and he was alone and she said that there was no reason for his not going in the yard, he just didn't want to go out there alone and she wanted him out there, so she put him out and she didn't want him to cry so she held her hand over his mouth; she tried to stop him from crying and kept on holding her hand over his mouth, and I called over the fence and told her to quit it. I didn't know the woman at all.

Q. Do you know of any other instances regarding whether any other children have been whipped there at the place?

A. Yes, I have seen her whip them.

MARGARET GILLETTE testified:

Q. You are the daughter of Mrs. Gillette, who just testified?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell us anything at all as to what you know about whether the children are punished physically there at "Mrs. E's" home?

A. I have seen her spank them several times; just yesterday I saw her doing it. A little kid—I don't know what he did; I think he wet his pants—she come dragging him in the house and spanked him right there on the back porch.

Q. How old was the child?

A. Oh, I would say a couple of years old.

Q. Do you know of any illustration of any dispute between "Mrs. E's" daughters and another child there?

A. Oh, she always favors them. I don't think that is right.

Q. When you say she favors them, who does she favor?

A. Her own daughters.

Q. Has there been an occasion when there has been a dispute between "Mrs. E's" daughters and some other child in which the other child was slapped?

A. Yes; her own daughters started it, and I happened to be out in the yard at the time it happened, out in front of the house, and the other little girl just naturally stood up for her part, you know, and said something back. She didn't really say anything; I think she called her a brat; and "Mrs. E" turned around and slapped the little girl, but her little girl started it.

Q. Do you know of any instance when you were bringing the children home from Sunday School, about some bubble gum?

A. That isn't nothing; it is just that one of the little girls tells me those things because they like me. A couple of them bought bubble gum and they weren't supposed to, and took it home, and "Mrs. E" took it away from them, naturally, but she turns around and gives it to her two children, I don't think that was right.

Q. Who takes the children to Sunday School for "Mrs. E"?

A. I do.

Q. When you take the children to Sunday School, about how many are there that go with you?

A. About 20.

AGNES J. TALCOTT, Director of Nurses, City of Los Angeles Health Department, testified in substance and effect as follows:

We are sometimes called in as reports come into the department that children are being neglected, sometimes abused, etc. We send one of our nurses out to see what the situation is. Many of these homes where parents and children are boarded are very bad. There is evidence of children being neglected because they are not supervised. Some of this condition is bad; we have known it is bad for a long time, but legally we have not been able to do much about it. I think the health department as well as the private agencies have felt that there should be something done, but frankly, we don't know what to do.

EILEEN WILLIAMS, Executive Secretary of the Children's Bureau of Los Angeles, a community chest agency, testified as follows:

Q. Will you tell the committee what your experience has been and what reports have come to you regarding conditions of child boarding homes in the City of Los Angeles?

A. I have been working with children in boarding homes for the past 14 years and we continue to get complaints on these homes that are not licensed for the care of children taking one or two parents and then a great many children in addition. I don't think there is a week but that a parent comes to us asking our help in replacing his child; they always give the same story, that they didn't know where to go so they looked in the paper and through the newspaper ads they went out, and then when they got there the woman would say that she didn't have a room for a parent but she would take the child, so they would leave the child there.

Last October a father came to us who had placed his year old baby—the wife had deserted and he was looking for replacement because the child appeared to be neglected. So we went to visit the child and we were not allowed in the house; they brought the baby out on the porch for us to see. He was very dirty and appeared neglected. We told them the father wished to make other plans, and we made an appointment to take the baby to the clinic. On the morning when the worker appeared to take him to the clinic he was very dirty and had had no breakfast. The woman operating the place was not up, and when we said we would have him back about noon she said they always went out all day and there wouldn't be anybody there to take care of him. They were boarding nine babies.

When we got to the clinic we found his ears were so full of wax that the doctor thought his hearing was going to be affected. His eyes were crusted and there was a heavy discharge from the eyes. He was bleeding from the penis, which the doctor said was very rare; was badly undernourished and had a low hemoglobin count; so we replaced him in a licensed home, where he has been doing very well.

Last week a mother came who was living in one of the homes with her child, but said that even though she was in the home she was unable to protect her child from the kind of care he was getting there. There were 16 children in the home; part of them were sleeping in the basement; and that the woman would buy one pound of wieners for the 16 children and cook it up into a kind of a soup, though her own children were given steaks and quite adequate food. That is really quite typical of what we get all the time. The parent who is responsible sees that the child is being poorly cared for and comes to us or some other agency to ask for better help, but the parent who doesn't care just leaves his child there and we have no authority, of course, to help any child unless the parent comes to us and requests it.

Q. Over what period of time have you been receiving reports of those conditions in the City of Los Angeles?

A. Ever since I have been here; 14 years.

Q. In other words, that has been going on for 14 years to your knowledge, then?

A. And we get more complaints now than we did before. There are more people working. A great many people want to stay with their children, and this is the only plan they can make.

It should be noted that there were many more homes which were brought to the attention of the committee, where conditions were improper. However, to give more instances of them would merely be repetitious of the items already contained in this report.

On checking the records of the Social Welfare Department, it was found that none of the homes which were investigated had a license from the State Social Welfare Department. In some instances the department had a file pertaining to the case, showing that some investigation had been made but that no action had been taken. It is sufficient to point out that Miss Selma Zorin, Supervisor of Homes and Institutions of the State Department of Social Welfare, testified, on May 26, 1942, that the examples given to the committee appeared to be a fair sample.

(Trans. Vol. I, pp. 45 to 46.)

MISS MARTHA CHICKERING, Director of the State Department of Social Welfare, testified as follows:

Whatever they are today, there will undoubtedly be a tendency for them to increase; as there are more and more women employed there will be more and more necessity to board children. The tendency and the pressure to board them wherever they can will increase, and I think that ought to be borne in mind by the committee. The bootlegging of homes is bound to increase.

(Trans. Vol. I, p. 47.)

Q. Do you feel that conditions that have been testified to here regarding other homes actually do exist in the City of Los Angeles?

A. I don't think there is any question of it.

(Trans. Vol. I, p. 88.)

W. J. McFARLAND, Assistant City Attorney of Los Angeles, testified in substance and effect as follows:

After the first hearings of the Committee, a list of addresses was turned over to the City Attorney's office, and the City Attorney's office requested the Juvenile Division of the Police Department and the City Health Department to check the list and as many others as they were able to in the period of time that was available. All together they checked a total of sixty addresses. Of the total number checked, one was licensed. Approximately two-thirds of them were combination boarding homes. The homes had children varying from four or five to as high as twenty-five in each home.

Reports were received on fifty-two out of the sixty homes that were investigated. All except one could be prosecuted. They received information to the effect that there are approximately three hundred and seventy-nine homes that cater to needs of school-age children. Ninety-five per cent of the homes on which reports were received were commercially operated. As far as health conditions are concerned, ten per cent of the homes were well directed; fifteen or twenty per cent of them were very bad from the overcrowding angle. In some instances the food situation was not good; lunches were very bare, like a piece of dry bread or something of that sort. In other instances the food appeared to be excellent. Fifteen or twenty per cent of the homes were short on food. About ninety per cent of the homes could stand some improvement as far as health conditions are concerned.

ENFORCEMENT

Under the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code, the State Department of Social Welfare had the authority to delegate to the properly accredited agency the function of licensing and inspection of homes that required a license under the law. Prior to the hearings being conducted by your committee, the responsibility for homes in county territory of Los Angeles outside of the city limits of Los Angeles had been delegated to the public welfare commission of Los Angeles County. The responsibility for homes within the City of Los Angeles was reserved by the State Department of Social Welfare.

At the hearing on July 13, 1942, the committee was informed that the State Department of Social Welfare had delegated this authority to the public welfare commission of the County of Los Angeles to inspect and license children's boarding homes and day nurseries in the City of Los Angeles, as well as all homes in the County of Los Angeles. This delegation occurred on July 1, 1942, and its effective date was to be July 15, 1942. Representatives of the State Social Welfare Department stated that the plan to delegate the authority to the county public welfare commission had been under discussion from two to five years. They denied that there was any significance in the fact that the actual consummation of the delegation of authority was made on July 1, 1942, after the disclosure of the shocking and disgraceful conditions in children's boarding homes within the City of Los Angeles, over which the State department had exercised jurisdiction. It was pointed out to the representatives of the State Social Welfare Department that none of them had even mentioned the contemplation of delegating the authority at the time the hearings were held on May 26 and 27, 1942.

However, the delegation to the county does not cover children's boarding homes or day nurseries where more than 10 children are cared for, or any other type of home, such as parent-child homes.

It should be noted that complete authority for the enforcement of the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code has not been delegated to any one agency at present. All homes caring for children outside of the city limits of Los Angeles but within the County of Los Angeles, children's boarding homes, and day nurseries within the City of Los Angeles where less than 10 children are cared for, come under the public welfare commission of the County of Los Angeles. However, children's boarding homes and day nurseries where more than 10 children are cared for in the City of Los Angeles and parent-child homes are still handled by the State Department of Social Welfare.

It is significant to note that in spite of the fact that violations of the law had been known to exist over a period of many years, nevertheless no serious attempt was ever made to enforce the law. Miss Selma Zorin testified that there were only three prosecutions in a period of four years.

Lieut. Robert W. Bowling, of the juvenile bureau of the Los Angeles police department, testified that it is not hard to get evidence of violations of the law in cases where persons are boarding the children without having a license to do so.

Q. BY MR. CHOTINER: One other question: To your knowledge, has the State Welfare Department requested your department to go ahead and make an investigation in any other case during the past year?

A. I would say that, as a rule, the shoe is on the other foot, that we give information to the State Welfare Department.

DR. IRENE T. HEINEMAN, Assistant State Superintendent of Schools, testified as follows:

Q. What type of place are these that are evading the law and just merely using the word "school" after the word nursery?

A. As far as I know, I should say they are—I have not inspected one of them, but it is just because I am close to social welfare people that I know that there are such boarding homes evading the license, the law regarding licensing by the State Department of Social Welfare or its several parts through the use of the device of the word "school." That's all I know.

Q. Have reports come to your knowledge that conditions in these homes that are evading the law by using the word "school" are such that they should be regulated?

A. Yes.

Q. And has it come to your attention that a day nursery, if it is a day nursery, is subject, however, to the supervision of the State Social Welfare Department?

A. Yes.

Q. BY MR. CHOTINER: Mrs. Heineman, would you say that if there were a better enforcement of the present existing laws on the subject of day nurseries, that that would help clarify the situation?

A. Yes; I am for enforcing laws.

DR. HELEN CHRISTIANSON, Supervisor of Nursery Education, University of California at Los Angeles, testified as follows:

Q. Can you give the committee here the benefit of your knowledge and experience regarding the matter of day nurseries versus nursery schools and what ought to be done to correct it?

A. Well, it has come to my attention that there are many places operating which are called nursery schools, where there are not trained teachers, where they are not carrying on what we would consider an educational program for young children.

(Trans. Vol. I, p. 207, lines 12 to 20.)

Q. BY MR. CHOTINER: Would you say the conditions are such in the City of Los Angeles pertaining to day nurseries, where they take them in for day care and where they are masquerading as nursery schools, as to require that something should be done about it to remedy the situation?

A. Yes, I think it is a very serious situation.

At the hearings on May 26 and 27, 1942, representatives of the State Department of Social Welfare claimed that they had had difficulty in cleaning up conditions because it was so difficult to obtain the necessary evidence in order to prosecute cases, and that law enforcement agencies insisted that the State department obtain its own evidence. Your committee has already referred to the simplicity of obtaining evidence by its investigators. Representatives of law enforcement agencies, such as Los Angeles County district attorney, Los Angeles city attorney, and Los Angeles city health department, all testified that they have always been ready to render assistance, are ready at the present time, and will cooperate in the future as well. They further testified that they did not know of any instance when the State Department of Social Welfare had ever asked for their assistance, either in inspecting homes, obtaining evidence, or prosecuting violators of the law.

Evidence was submitted to your committee pointing to the conclusion that the counties are better able to handle the inspecting and licensing of homes as well as all other matters pertaining to the enforcement of the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code, than is the State Department of Social Welfare. The Los Angeles County public welfare commission, with fewer employees, is able to handle a larger volume of business than is the State department. Whereas it took the State department anywhere from four months to two years to inspect a home where an applicant had made an application for a license, it took the county public welfare commission only from three weeks to four months. It should be noted that a certain amount of delay is required in order to check the application, references and other matters, before the home is actually inspected. However, in view of the pressing demand for more homes for boarding children, every effort should be made to expedite the handling of applications for licenses.

It was apparent to the committee that there are too many governmental agencies dealing with the subject of boarding homes for children. As a result, in order to effect a remedy, there is too much shifting of responsibility when an effort is made to place the blame for conditions which exist.

Accordingly, there are too many instances of individuals and agencies claiming that the authority for correcting conditions rests with someone else, and that they do not have either the authority or the responsibility to do so.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Based on the foregoing facts, your committee makes the following recommendations:

1. Section 1620, subdivision (a), of the Welfare and Institutions Code should be amended to conform with Attorney General Earl Warren's opinion of August 17, 1942, to provide for the licensing of institutions, boarding homes, day nurseries, or any other place that is used for the reception or care of children under 16 years of age, whether the parents reside at the premises or not.

This would take care of the parent-child boarding homes as well as children's boarding homes, daytime care homes, and day nurseries.

2. Section 1622 of the Welfare and Institutions Code should be amended to provide that the counties shall have the authority and responsibility of licensing all homes that come within the provisions of the Welfare and Institutions Code, and the authority and responsibility of enforcing the pertinent sections of the Welfare and Institutions Code pertaining to this subject.

This would provide for local enforcement by local officials who are better able to handle this problem.

3. The Welfare and Institutions Code should be amended to provide that the State Department of Social Welfare shall act as a clearing house of information for the benefit of the various counties. Each county should be required to furnish such information as is necessary to enable the State Department of Social Welfare to have records of licenses that are issued, suspended, or revoked, as well as standards, rules, and minimum requirements adopted by the various counties.

4. The rules, requirements, regulations, and standards adopted by the counties for the operation of the various types of homes for the care of children should permit the operation of these homes on a commercial basis. There is such a demand for places to care for children that it is necessary that permission be granted to operate them on a commercial basis as it apparently will be difficult, if not impossible, to obtain enough homes to look after these children on any other basis.

5. An appropriation of funds should be made by the State of California to the various counties on a proper, matching basis, in order to enable them to set up day nurseries. These day nurseries should be operated by local officials, and a reasonable charge should be made for the care of the children, depending on local conditions and the earnings of the parents.

6. All other sections of the Welfare and Institutions Code should be amended to conform with the foregoing recommendations.

7. The policy of employing mothers of children who are of pre-school age should be eliminated except in cases of necessity. Every effort should be made to maintain the family unit, which is the foundation of our American form of government. Children should be cared for by their parents wherever possible instead of being placed in homes to be looked after by strangers. Employers should endeavor to fill their labor demands by hiring men who are exempt or deferred from military service, and women who do not have young children.

8. Your committee therefore recommends and urges that no mother of a child under seven years of age be employed in industrial plants.

Part II

Aged Care

During the course of your committee's investigation pertaining to boarding homes for children, Assemblyman Vernon Kilpatrick, of the Fifty-fifth Assembly District, appeared before the committee and stated he had evidence pointing to improper conditions in boarding homes and rest homes which cared for the aged.

An opportunity and facilities were presented to Assemblyman Kilpatrick for the purpose of submitting such evidence as he had in his possession pertaining to that subject.

On the basis of the evidence presented, there did not appear to be just cause for continuing an investigation into Assemblyman Kilpatrick's charges, nor did there appear to be any need for any recommendations in so far as changes in the law are concerned.

However, it was brought to the attention of your committee that private persons and private organizations hold themselves out to the public as being able to assist those persons who make applications for old age assistance. Many times fees are charged which are excessive and not commensurate with the amount of help furnished to these persons. Your committee finds that it is not necessary for anyone to enlist the aid of any individual or organization for the purpose of obtaining old age assistance, if the person is entitled to it.

It is therefore recommended that the State Department of Social Welfare inaugurate a program to give full and proper publicity to the fact that any person entitled to old age assistance may deal directly with the public authorities, and that the application will receive proper and prompt attention without the necessity of paying any fee to anyone.

Your committee further recommends that the subject of proper care for the aged in boarding homes, nursery and rest homes, and sanitariums is of sufficient importance that a further investigation should be made by a Legislative Committee concerning the types of homes and institutions, competency of the persons operating them, and the care furnished to the aged.

RESOLUTIONS

By Senators Shelley, Judah, Keating, Quinn, and Luckey:

Senate Resolution No. 35

WHEREAS, The State Senate of the Fifty-fourth Legislature, by resolution, created an Interim Committee of six Members of the Senate to study and survey all facts and acts in connection with the finances and operation of the Golden Gate Bridge, spanning the waters of San Francisco Bay, and report to the Fifty-fifth Legislature; and

WHEREAS, This committee has, by authority of the resolution, conducted hearings and developed pertinent information, relative to the bridge operation and maintenance, and its fiscal affairs; and

WHEREAS, The Golden Gate Bridge is a vital link in the highway system of the State of California, and an indispensable connection between the Presidio of

San Francisco and the United States Military Reservation at Fort Baker in Marin County, and a connecting link in the Alaska to South American Highway System; and

WHEREAS, The present war in which the United States is engaged, has created serious financial problems for the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, due to the rationing of gasoline and rubber which has seriously reduced toll revenues of the bridge; and

WHEREAS, There has been a tremendous increase in the volume of toll-free Government traffic across the Golden Gate Bridge, which has further depleted the bridge income; and

WHEREAS, The Senate Interim Committee of the Fifty-fourth Legislature is convinced from its investigation that there must be a progressive study of the problem of operating and maintaining the bridge in the interests of the people of the State of California as a whole; and

WHEREAS, The said Senate Interim Committee was concerned with the fact that the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District does not receive financial contribution or any assistance whatsoever from any governmental agency, directly or indirectly; and that therefore all fixed charges and all costs of maintaining and operating the bridge must be obtained solely from traffic crossing the bridge; and

WHEREAS, There is a vital need of carrying on further exhaustive studies into the affairs of the bridge district in order to safeguard thoroughly the interests of the people of California, since the bridge is now being deprived during this war emergency of revenue traffic through no fault of its own; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a committee of six Members of the Senate is hereby created to continue a thorough study and survey of all facts or acts, touching upon or relating to the operation and maintenance of the Golden Gate Bridge, and shall, prior to March 15, 1945, make a report of legislation recommended by it to preserve the best interests of the people of California, served by the bridge, and the needs of the Federal Government.

CONSIDERATION OF SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 35

Senate Resolution No. 35

WHEREAS, The State Senate of the Fifty-fourth Legislature, by resolution, created an Interim Committee of six Members of the Senate to study and survey all facts and acts in connection with the finances and operation of the Golden Gate Bridge, spanning the waters of San Francisco Bay, and report to the Fifty-fifth Legislature; and

WHEREAS, This committee has, by authority of the resolution, conducted hearings and developed pertinent information, relative to the bridge operation and maintenance, and its fiscal affairs; and

WHEREAS, The Golden Gate Bridge is a vital link in the Highway System of the State of California, and an indispensable connection between the Presidio of San Francisco and the United States Military Reservation at Fort Baker in Marin County, and a connecting link in the Alaska to South American Highway System; and

WHEREAS, The present war in which the United States is engaged, has created serious financial problems for the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, due to the rationing of gasoline and rubber which has seriously reduced toll revenues of the bridge; and

WHEREAS, There has been a tremendous increase in the volume of toll-free Government traffic across the Golden Gate Bridge, which has further depleted the bridge income; and

WHEREAS, The Senate Interim Committee of the Fifty-fourth Legislature is convinced from its investigation that there must be a progressive study of the problem of operating and maintaining the bridge in the interests of the people of the State of California as a whole; and

WHEREAS, The said Senate Interim Committee was concerned with the fact that the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District does not receive financial contribution or any assistance whatsoever from any governmental agency, directly or indirectly; and that therefore all fixed charges and all costs of maintaining and operating the bridge must be obtained solely from traffic crossing the bridge; and

WHEREAS, There is a vital need of carrying on further exhaustive studies into the affairs of the bridge district in order to safeguard thoroughly the interests of the people of California, since the bridge is now being deprived during this emergency of revenue traffic through no fault of its own.

Resolved, That a committee of six Members of the Senate is hereby created to continue a thorough study and survey of all facts or acts, touching upon or relating to the operation and maintenance of the Golden Gate Bridge, and shall, prior to March 15, 1945, make a report of legislation recommended by it to preserve the best interests of the people of California, served by the bridge, and the needs of the Federal Government.

The committee hereby created is authorized to act either during sessions of the Legislature or after final adjournment, but except as otherwise provided herein, no beyond the convening of the Fifty-sixth Legislature. The committee hereby created shall have all powers conferred upon investigating committees by the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly as they are now or may hereafter be amended, and may exercise such powers after final adjournment.

The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, or other persons designated by him, is hereby directed to serve any and all subpoenas, orders, and other process issued by the committee, when directed so to do by the chairman or by a majority of the membership of the committee.

The members of the committee shall serve without compensation but shall be allowed mileage at the rate of five and one-half cents ($0.05) per mile each way incurred in connection with their services upon the committee and other actual and necessary expenses for living accommodations and meals incurred in connection with their services upon the committee, or in lieu of such expenses for accommodations and meals an allowance of eight dollars ($8) per day.

The sum of two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby made available from the Contingent Fund of the Senate for the expenses of the committee and its members and for any charges, expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be paid from the Contingent Fund of the Senate and disbursed, after certification by the chairman of the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer, no committee member to be paid per diem for committee work on any day in which the Legislature is in regular session for which he draws his regular legislative remuneration.

Resolution read.

The roll was called, and the resolution adopted by the following vote:

AYES—Senators Biggar, Brown, Collier, Crittenden, Cunningham, DeLap, Denel, Dillinger, Donnelly, Dorsey, Engle, Hatfield, Jepsen, Judah, Keating, McBride, Mixer, Powers, Quinn, Salsman, Seawell, Shelley, Slater, Swan, Tenney, and Tickle—26.

RESOLUTIONS

By Senator Dillinger:

Senate Resolution No. 39

WHEREAS, January 24th is the official ninety-fifth anniversary of the discovery of gold in California, by James Wilson Marshall; and

WHEREAS, As a result of that discovery of gold at Coloma, there came to California those hardy immigrants who upon their arrival discovered that California held not only gold, but a wealth of other resources and of beauty as well; and

WHEREAS, During the period of nearly a hundred years that has elapsed, this great State has grown and prospered, and within that period has reached a high place in the aggregation of our several States; and

WHEREAS, We become more and more engrossed in our daily round of duty as the days go by, it becomes more and more fitting and needful that we should pause in the busy turmoil of our daily lives and turn our thought backward, to reflect for a moment upon the achievements and the high ideals of those pioneers of yesterday, who carved from the vastness of the forest and trackless plain this great State that we love, to draw, if we can, from their precept and example renewed inspiration that shall sustain and guide us as we face the problems that lie before us now.

Not all the pioneering has been done. We face today some of the most gigantic and perplexing problems that have ever faced any people. Soon we are returning to our respective homes, to counsel with our constituents respecting the wisdom of our acts, to reflect upon the tasks that lie before us upon our return, that our labors may find fruition in wise laws. So let us now, in the light of those high ideals, consecrate this day to the tasks that lie before us, that we may prove worthy of that heritage, and wisely administer that trust.

But it is not alone for the mere accidental discovery of gold that we mark the day. Rather it is for the momentous events that flowed therefrom and spread upon the fair white page of California's history, the stirring annals of an empire born to the world that day. The golden voice of the yellow siren called to the sunny slope by the broad Pacific the very flower of the Nation's manhood and womanhood, for none but those of the highest courage could dare the great adventure, and none but the fittest could survive its hardships; therefore, be it

Resolved, That when the Senate does this day adjourn, we do so in commemoration of the discovery of gold at Coloma, and out of respect to the memory of James Wilson Marshall and those rugged pioneers who, through their unquenchable spirit and lofty ideals, have bequeathed to us this priceless heritage.

Resolution read, and unanimously adopted.

MOTION TO PRINT SPEECH IN JOURNAL

Senator Crittenden moved that the following speech by Senator Dillinger regarding Senate Resolution No. 39 be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

Remarks of Senator Dillinger

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate

I know that you would all be disappointed if I failed to offer this resolution, which I have offered on some other occasions when we happened to be in session on the date.

I am not going to make a speech. The resolution speaks for itself. I merely wish to invite you to come to Coloma some week end during the session and visit this Shrine of California's History, as I imagine many of you have never done.

Those of us who live in California often fail to appreciate what we enjoy. The people of other States, in many cases, appreciate California more than we do. When I was a small boy, back in the Middle West, I attended one of those "Little Red Schoolhouses" that you read about in books. Of course, it was really mostly white, but you get the idea. In that schoolhouse we had a history textbook called McMaster's History, and in that book was a picture titled "Gold Mining at Coloma, in California." I can see it as plainly as if it were yesterday. In the springtime when the air was soft and warm and the gentle breezes blew, after the manner of all small boys since the beginning of time, I suppose, I used to look at that picture, when I should have been studying, and think that I would like to go there sometime. Of course, I never really imagined that my lot would some day be cast in that community, and that I would have the pleasure and the privilege of representing that bearded old miner in the Legislature.

Plan to visit this historic spot some week end. The State acquired the discovery site only a few months ago, after all these years, and the appearance is not yet what it should be, but we hope to get it improved before too long. It is only about a hundred miles round trip, the road is good, and it doesn't take much gas. You will find the trip interesting, pleasant, and profitable; and you will be well repaid.

I move the adoption of the resolution.

By Senator Hatfield:

Senate Resolution No. 42

Relative to the encouragement of harness racing in California

WHEREAS, The racing of trotting horses and pacing horses under harness is a distinctively American sport and one indulged in primarily for the love of the game rather than in the hope of financial reward; and

WHEREAS, Harness racing in California has been closely bound up with the racing of running horses under saddle, which in many respects is fundamentally different; and

WHEREAS, The glamour of running horse, or thoroughbred, racing, and the enormous betting pools, the $100,000 purses, and the fanfares of publicity incident thereto, have blinded not only the public, but many of the officials who administer the racing laws, to the fundamental virtues of the country folks' sport of harness racing; and

WHEREAS, Harness racing in the United States is governed by the Rules of the United States Trotting Association, which rules comprise a code of ethics and conduct devised to maintain harness racing as a sport and to eliminate everything which would make it a racket; and

WHEREAS, One of the more important rules of the United States Trotting Association is that harness racing at every point in the United States must be conducted under said rules or both the horses and the owners are subject to expulsion from the association, which is equivalent to expulsion from harness racing; and

WHEREAS, At many of the tracks in California the officials charged with the duty of supervising harness races have no knowledge either of harness racing or the rules under which it must be conducted; and

WHEREAS, Not only must the California harness horse owner take a great risk of expulsion from the association in racing his horses in improperly supervised races, but out-of-State owners very naturally hesitate to bring their horses to compete in such races; and

WHEREAS, The harness horse owners of California want only such recognition of their branch of the sport as is necessary for the survival of harness racing in California, and such recognition can be afforded without any change in the laws governing the subject; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the California Horse Racing Board is hereby requested to adopt such rules as may be necessary to provide that all harness racing in this State shall be governed by the Rules of the United States Trotting Association and that such races be administered by track officials qualified under the rules of said association and approved by it; and be it further

Resolved, That the Governor is hereby requested to give full consideration, when making appointments to the California Horse Racing Board, to the desirability of appointing thereon a member who is qualified to represent the interests of harness racing in this State; and be it further

Resolved, That certified copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Governor and to the California Horse Racing Board.

Resolution read, and unanimously adopted.

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Honorable Bradford S. Crittenden
 Senate Chamber, State Capitol,
 Sacramento, California

Statutes Effective Only for the Duration of the War—No. 6994

DEAR SENATOR CRITTENDEN: You request our opinion as to the legal effect of statutes which are to be effective only for the duration of the war, with particular reference to the effect of such statutes on older statutes. Your specific question is whether or not these old statutes which are suspended while the new provisions are in effect automatically spring back into operation.

In our opinion, there is no constitutional question involved, and we know of no reason why the Legislature can not suspend or change statutory provisions for a given time upon the expiration of which the original enactment again become effective.

Careful consideration should be given to the form of such statutes so that there will be no doubt that the Legislature intended the existing law to again become effective upon the expiration of the period for which the emergency legislation is enacted.

The case of County of Ventura vs. Barja, 202 Cal. 550, is enlightening on both phases of your inquiry. That case involved the construction of two sections in the portion of the Political Code relating to county government. Section 4290 provided that county assessors could retain certain fees unless some other section in that portion of the code provided otherwise. Section 4252 related specifically to Ventura County and at one time that section provided that all fees collected by the assessor be paid into the county treasury. By an amendment, this provision was omitted from Section 4252 and the assessor contended that he was entitled to the fees. The county treasurer contended that because Section 4252 had at one time provided for the payment of the fees into the treasury, Section 4290 had been impliedly repealed as to Ventura County, and that the elimination of the provision in Section 4252 could not operate so as to revive a statute which had been impliedly repealed.

The court held otherwise, and the following language of the court is pertinent:

The rule of law applicable to this situation is well stated as follows: "The statutory rule against the revival of a statute by the repeal of a repealing act relates to absolute repeals, and not to cases where a statute is left in force and all that is done in the way of repeal is to except certain cases from its operation. In such cases the statute does not need to be revived, for it remains in force, and the exception being taken away, the statute is afterwards to be applied without the exception; * * *" (25 R.C.L. 934.)

It seems to us that the making of special provisions of law to be applicable for a certain period are merely exceptions to be made in the application of the existing law, and that the above language of the court would apply to the situation.

As to the form of such statutes, we would advise against direct amendment of the provision which is to be temporarily changed or suspended but which is desired to become automatically effective after the emergency is over. It seems to us that a direct amendment with a statement that the amendment should remain in effect for only a certain period would be open to question. There are several bills that seem to us to offer a solution.

Reference is made to Assembly Bills Nos. 366 and 368. The purpose of those bills is to change for a two-year period the purposes for which certain highway revenues can be expended. This is accomplished by the addition of a new section to the law immediately following the section desired to be changed. It seems to us that the intention that the existing law should again become effective after the expiration of the period, is clear.

The same method was used in Assembly Bill No. 600, suspending for the period of the war the provisions of the Vehicle Code requiring certain signs to be made of metal.

Of course, no problem arises where a new law is to remain in effect for only a limited period.

Where a bill of the type under discussion may operate to suspend a number of State statutes, so that specific mention of the particular section to be suspended is impractical, it would be our suggestion that the bill take the form of a new law, with a statement to the effect that any existing provisions which are in conflict should be suspended, but upon the expiration of the period, the existing law shall again become effective.

We will be happy to consider any specific problems along this line you may care to present to us.

Yours very truly,

MOTION TO PRINT IN THE JOURNAL

Senator Powers moved that the following Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

Report of Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance Appointed Pursuant to the Terms of Senate Resolution No. 147 of the Fifty-fourth Session of the Legislature

Committee members:

HAROLD I. POWERS

H. E. DILLINGER

January 20, 1943

To the Members of the Senate

Your Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance, appointed pursuant to the terms of Senate Resolution No. 147 of the Fifty-fourth Session of the Legislature, submits herewith the following report:

Organization of said committee was completed at the State Capitol on July 18, 1941, membership being composed of the following Senators: Clarence C. Ward, chairman; Harold J. Powers, Thomas H. Kuchel, and H. E. Dillinger. Senator John D. Foley, originally appointed, was unable to serve by reason of his appointment to the superior court bench of Santa Clara County. Senator Kuchel, prior to his entry into the military service, rendered valuable assistance as a member of said committee.

The State Department of Employment is administered by the Unemployment Reserves Commission of this State, consisting of five members appointed by the Governor (two to represent labor and its interests, one to represent large employer interests, one to represent small employer interests, and one as a representative of the State and its interests and the public), and a Director of the Department of Employment appointed by the commission who also serves as executive secretary of the commission. Under the present law, the commission makes its own rules and regulations and passes on same as an appeals board.

The department has experienced considerable difficulty in maintaining its personnel during the existing emergency as its pay schedule has made it impossible to compete with private industry and, as a consequence, the department has already suffered a loss of many employees. As time goes on, the situation will become even more acute unless the salary brackets are materially increased. At present, the department has 1,165 employees and, in order to permit the department to properly function, 125 vacancies should be filled.

When your committee was first appointed, the purpose of the California Department of Employment was twofold: (1) the operation of a State-wide system of employment agencies and (2) the payment of unemployment insurance to eligible unemployed workers. The dual system, however, was abandoned on January 1, 1942, by reason of the fact that the employment functions of the department were assumed by the United States Employment Service as a part of a Nation-wide system of employment agencies. For all practical purposes, however, the twofold system originally instituted has not been completely abandoned as the State department maintains personnel in all the field offices throughout the State, who render such employment and unemployment insurance services although the majority of the personnel in said field offices is under direct supervision of the United States Employment Service.

Departmental headquarters are maintained at 1025 P Street, Sacramento, California, and, in addition thereto, said department maintains field offices in the following communities: Alameda, Alhambra, Alhambra, Alhambra, Berkeley, Berkeley, Berkeley, Bar Bank, Chico, Covina, Culver City, Dunsmuir, El Centro, Eureka, Fort Bragg, Fresno, Glendale, Grass Valley, Hanford, Hayward, Hollywood, Huntington Park, Indio, Inglewood, Lodi, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Madera, Marysville, Merced, Modesto, Monterey, Napa, Oakland, Ontario, Oroville, Palo Alto, Pasadena, Paso Robles, Pittsburg, Placerville, Pomona, Porterville, Quincy, Red Bluff, Redding, Redlands, Richmond, Riverside, Sacramento, Salinas, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Fernando, San Francisco, San Jose, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, San Pedro, San Rafael, Santa Ana, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, Santa Maria, Santa Monica, Santa Rosa, Sonoma, South San Francisco, Stockton, Susanville, Torrance, Ukiah, Vallejo, Van Nuys, Ventura, Visalia, Watsonville, Whittier, and Wilmington.

All applications for work and for unemployment insurance must originate in the field offices; and an employee or an employer, dissatisfied with the determination made on a claim for insurance by the department, may appeal to the department and the matter is then referred to a referee and when there are seven; and, failing to secure a favorable decision, may appeal to the commission.

In view of the fact that all applications for work and unemployment insurance originate in the field offices, your committee made an extensive study of that phase of the work and interviewed the managers or assistant managers in the following offices: Los Angeles offices, at 855 South Hill Street and at 1200 South Grand; Glendale, Culver City, Hollywood, Inglewood, Long Beach, San Pedro, Riverside, Santa Ana, Santa Monica, Ventura, Santa Barbara, Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo, Salinas, Watsonville, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Jose, San Mateo, South San Francisco, San Francisco office, at 154 Sansome Street; Oakland, Berkeley, San Rafael, Santa Rosa, Napa, Ukiah, Stockton, Sacramento, Merced, and Modesto. Some of the above-mentioned offices located in districts having a heavy claims load were visited on several occasions for the purpose of securing an accurate picture of the problems.

In addition to visiting the field offices heretofore mentioned, your committee made a study of the California Unemployment Insurance Act, the acts of the various States, and the Federal Social Security Act; conferred with employer and employee groups in all types of industries; carried on a voluminous correspondence with employer groups; secured records of individual cases of claimants drawing on the fund, notwithstanding the protest on the part of former employers; and gathered a great mass of statistical and factual information which can not be embodied in a report without considerable expense.

Your committee also held the following meetings: Four in Sacramento, four in San Francisco, one in Oakland, two in Los Angeles, and one in Long Beach.

One of the Sacramento meetings, namely, that of June 5, 1942, covered an inquiry in reference to administrative practices of the field offices, the department, the referees, and the commission as same related to a particular industry. The Water-front Employers Association was selected as the industry because of the State-wide character of their operations, extending from Eureka to San Diego, maintaining a central pay office, a central reporting system of unemployment contributions, and comprising 125 firms engaged in longshore operations. The hearing developed facts indicating that the field offices and the department were not making a serious effort to investigate the availability of an employee for work prior to payment of claims, resulting in unnecessary appeals on the part of the association; and further, that several hundred appeals had been pending before the commission for months without a hearing. Subsequent to said meeting, however, the abuses complained of by the association have been substantially corrected. Considering the long time has been made by employer groups that appeals pending before a referee or the commission are delayed for an unreasonable length of time prior to a hearing, but the law fails to impose a time limit for the hearing for appeals.

Our investigation discloses that, since the commencement of payment of benefits under the California law, altogether too many employees have proceeded under the theory that they are entitled to draw benefits merely because they have contributed to the fund, and in this they have been encouraged by the department, the commission, and the Federal Social Security Board.

Primarily, the abuses under the present act arise from the following causes:

(1) Defects in the present law which tend to encourage rather than discourage the payment of benefits to claimants not entitled thereto. (For example, the failure, instead of enumerating said defects at this point, the same will be covered under the heading of Recommendations.)

(2) Failure of the department to adopt a sound administrative policy.

(3) Adoption by the commission of rules and regulations which nullify the actual intent and positive provisions of the present law.

(1-a) Briefly, our own law as administered by the department and the commission, particularly in comparison with that of other States, is entirely too lenient in dealing with disqualifications for benefits summarized as (1) voluntary leaving, (2) discharge for misconduct and (3) refusal of suitable work.

(2-a) In reference to administrative policy, the department has completely failed to establish practices which tend to determine whether or not claimants can or should be referred to work rather than draw benefits. The department has exercised sound business principles in the collection of employer contributions, but no such method has been devised for the supervision or checking on pay rolls against the fund or to detect actual fraud on the part of claimants. It is difficult to understand why some system has not been devised whereby inspectors or investigators would check the field offices and claimants drawing on the fund for the purpose of detecting fraud or whether claimants drawing on the fund were able and capable of securing gainful employment.

The need for a system, particularly to detect fraud on the part of claimants, is well illustrated by a survey made by your committee of cases involving approximately 3,000 claimants covering the operation of the law from the inception of the payment of benefits, wherein claimants had been paid over the protests of former employers; and of said 3,000 claimants, 445 had drawn benefits, even though employed, without being prosecuted so far as we have been able to determine; and 182 of said 3,000 claimants had drawn benefits and were not employed by the employer firm whose account was charged.

That actual fraud on the part of claimants is a serious problem is further illustrated by the fact that the department had 280 complaints issued against persons accused of fraud in 1942, resulting in the collection of fines totaling $4,548, and, since January 1, 1938, the department has requested 1,445 fraud prosecutions and obtained 1,102 convictions. Your committee is convinced that only a minor fraction of those guilty have been prosecuted.

Section 26 of the California Unemployment Insurance Act provides, in part, that

The commission shall, as soon as practicable after the end of each calendar quarter, file with the Governor, the State Department of Finance, and the Controller an abstract or statement showing the resources and liabilities and a summary statement of the transactions affecting any of the funds created by this article and the various accounts thereof. The Department of Finance shall audit such abstracts and statements. Any expenses incurred by the Department of Finance in auditing such reports and publishing the same shall be paid for out of moneys granted to this State for this purpose by the Social Security Board.

The above section has never been complied with and we have been advised by the State Department of Employment that the Social Security Board has refused to furnish the necessary funds for said audit.

Considerable confusion and misunderstanding on the part of employer groups has been occasioned by reason of the fact that our own department has seen fit to tax certain employers who are not taxed under the Federal Social Security Act—notably, hospitals, and agricultural interests—even though said interests are excluded by our own act. The deficiency, if any, in our own act in respect to agriculture arises from failure to define "agricultural labor" or failure on the part of the department to adopt the definition contained in the Federal act.

(3-a) In dealing with the subject of the commission's rules and regulations, our investigation discloses that the present law in many respects is adequate to cover many of the abuses complained of but for rules and regulations adopted by the commission which have completely nullified both the intent and positive provisions of the law. The law as enacted provided insurance against the loss of involuntary employment but as presently administered by rule and regulation is a new social departure to subsidize wages. By way of illustration, Section 26, subdivision (b), of the California act provides as follows:

An individual is not eligible for benefits for unemployment, and no such benefit shall be payable to him under any of the following conditions:

(b) If without good cause he has refused to accept suitable employment when offered to him, or failed to apply for suitable employment when notified by the district public employment office.

The California Unemployment Reserves Commission on the twenty-ninth day of June, 1939, by Rule 56.1 provided as follows:

In pursuance of its authority to promulgate rules and regulations for the administration of the act, the commission hereby provides that an individual shall be disqualified from receiving benefits if it finds that he has failed or refused, without good cause, either to apply for available, suitable work when so directed by a public employment office of the Department of Employment or to accept suitable work when offered by any employing unit or by any public employment office of said department. Such disqualification shall continue for the week in which such failure or refusal occurred, and for not more than three weeks which immediately follow such week as determined by the commission according to the circumstances in each case.

Your committee shortly after its organization pointed out to the commission that the foregoing rule was contrary to the positive provisions of the California act and urged that the rule be either rescinded or stricken, and the commission did on the twenty-seventh day of November, 1942, amend said rule by extending the disqualification for an additional two weeks.

The aforementioned disqualification finally imposed by the commission is of no force or effect by reason of the fact that the commission did on the fourth day of September, 1942, by resolution, adopt a policy whereby a requested referral by a claimant's former employer to the same position terminated under disqualifying conditions, or to a similar position with the same employer, generally will be considered by the California Employment Commission as a referral of unsuitable employment. In other words, an employee can now refuse an offer of suitable employment from a former employer and draw benefits unless suitable employment can be found with a new employer.

Under the law as presently administered entirely too many employees continue to draw benefits against the fund during the present emergency in spite of the man power shortage. Generally they come within the following classifications:

Quitting work:

- (1) to seek other or better employment.
- (2) to take vacations.
- (3) to get married.
- (4) to stay home.
- (5) because of pregnancy or ill health.
- (6) to move to a new locality, either within or without the State.

Aside from the abuses herein listed, your committee is satisfied that employees in seasonal industries are making withdrawals against the fund entirely out of proportion to their contributions or to that of their employers.

Total benefits paid during 1942 to claimants residing out of the State of California and charged to this State amounted to $3,264,295. This is broken down month by month as follows:

	Number of checks	Value of checks
January -----	22,074 -----	$337,193 00
February -----	21,114 -----	350,901 00

December -----	6,156 -----	94,926 00
Total -----	210,793 -----	$3,264,295 00

As of December 31, 1942, the amount of reserve in the Unemployment Trust Fund credited to California totaled $286,633,644.48.

The total amount of benefits paid to claimants during 1942 is only $14,521,431 less than benefits paid during 1941, notwithstanding the increased opportunity for work during the present emergency and the tremendous manpower shortage.

Although it would appear that the present reserve is adequate to meet ordinary withdrawals from the fund, the effect of the present extraordinarily high level of employment in California, and the certainty that cessation of hostilities will necessitate major readjustments in our productive and distributive enterprise, with consequent changes of like magnitude in employment, should be very carefully evaluated in relation to the California Unemployment Insurance Act.

At the end of 1942, employment in nonagricultural establishments in California had risen to approximately 2,650,000 wage and salary workers, a gain of more than 400,000 employed workers since this country entered the war in December, 1941. As compared to the average of 1,750,000 nonagricultural workers employed during 1939, the gain has been 900,000 employed workers or an increase of 50 per cent. Most of this increase has been in the manufacturing establishments, which according to the State Division of Labor Statistics, employed 986,000 wage and salary workers in November, 1942, as compared to 661,000 a year previously. Of the 400,000 new workers employed since the outbreak of war, 325,000 went into the manufacturing industries, principally the rapidly expanding aircraft, shipbuilding, and other war supply industries. Of the 900,000 workers added in nonagricultural employment since 1939, approximately two-thirds have gone into the manufacturing industries, which have considerably more than tripled their employment since 1939. As compared to 1939, employment in California manufacturing industries shows a gain of 208 per cent, while the increase for the United States as a whole has been about 55 per cent.

When this growth in nonagricultural employment is combined with the very evident fact that California agriculture only with the very greatest difficulty, and then only with the fullest cooperation of all available volunteers, managed to secure enough man power to produce our 1942 supply of food and fiber, it becomes certain that our immediate problem is not for the time being that of maintaining through insurance workers who can not find jobs, but rather one of finding sufficient man power and woman power to do the job of winning the war. When the situation is turned inside out for analysis, and we look at the hundreds of thousands of war workers now establishing eligibility for unemployment insurance who may require it when war production ceases, it also becomes certain that another, equally immediate necessity is that of putting and maintaining unemployment insurance on such a basis as will reasonably assure its availability after hostilities upon terms consonant with our needs and our resources.

Many employers working on war contracts have greatly inflated pay rolls which will be sharply reduced at the end of the war, with consequent heavy drains upon the Unemployment Trust Fund. Yet, these employers are now paying taxes at low war-time contribution rates based on their smaller-scale peace-time experience. Your committee has not had adequate time nor sufficient funds to thoroughly study this problem or to make specific recommendations in respect thereto.

Recommendations

Your committee makes the following recommendations:

- (1) That the Unemployment Reserves Commission of this State be abolished.
- (2) That an Executive Director be appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate, to administer the State Department of Employment, the term of office of said Executive Director to be at the pleasure of the Governor; that the salary of said director be fixed at $10,000 per annum.

(3) That an Appeals Board or Board of Review be created, consisting of three members who shall be attorneys duly admitted to practice law in the State of California, said members to be appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate, and that the term of office of the members of said board shall be for a period of four years; that the salary of each of the members of said board be fixed at $7,500 per annum.

(4) That the California Act be amended requiring that appeals before the referees be heard within sixty (60) days of the date each matter is referred to a referee and that said referee's decision be rendered within sixty (60) days after the commencement of said hearing; that appeals referred to said Appeals Board be heard within sixty (60) days of the date said matter is referred to said board and that said board's decision be rendered within sixty (60) days after the commencement of said hearing.

(5) That the law covering voluntary quits be amended, imposing a disqualification of from three to 10 weeks for voluntary quits, the actual period of disqualification to be left to the discretion of the department, and further providing for the deduction of benefits for a like period of time as a penalty, the actual penalty imposed to be left to the discretion of the department.

(6) That the California Act be amended, imposing a penalty of from three to 10 weeks disqualification for discharge for misconduct, the actual disqualification imposed to be left to the discretion of the department.

(7) That the California Act be amended with respect to refusal of suitable employment in such manner as will clearly indicate that the wage credits of the claimant with respect to previous employment are to be eliminated.

(8) That the definition of "suitable employment" as contained in Section 13, Pages 12 and 13, of the California Unemployment Insurance Act be clarified and broadened.

(9) That the California Act be amended with respect to seasonal workers, restricting the payment of benefits to the season.

(10) That the definition of "agricultural labor" as used in the Federal Social Security Act be incorporated in the California Act.

(11) That the California Act be amended to provide that the Executive Director adopt such general or special rules as may be necessary for the administration of said act or to amend existing general or special rules, but prior to adoption that same be submitted to the Attorney General of this State for an opinion as to whether or not same are in conformity with the provisions of the California Act.

(12) That Section 67 of the California Act be amended to provide for notification of initial determination and any reinstatement or renewal of a claim.

(13) That Section 44.2 of the California Act be amended to provide for refund to an employee who has made contributions on wages in excess of $3,000.

(14) That if the Federal Government does not pay the necessary expense of the audit provided for by Section 26 of the California Act, the State of California pay same and that necessary funds be appropriated for same.

(15) That an immediate study should be made by the Legislature to determine whether or not the present law should be amended requiring greater contributions from employers and employees engaged in war industries during the present emergency.

Respectfully submitted.

HAROLD J. POWERS

MOTION TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Senator Dillinger moved that the following Supplemental Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

Supplemental Report of H. E. Dillinger, as Member of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance

Unemployment insurance is intended for the benefit of the unfortunate persons who become unemployed through no fault of their own, and not as a mere bonus for the person who voluntarily quits to get married, for instance, or to keep house, take a vacation, or seek other employment. Neither is it intended for the benefit of the person discharged for misconduct, or who refuses other reasonable employment.

If such persons again become employed, and then lose their job through no fault of their own, they should then be allowed to draw, but not otherwise.

Holding this view, I can not quite concur in Recommendations 5, 6, and 7 of the committee's report.

The committee also recommends (No. 13) that persons paying on a salary above $3,000, which sometimes happens where several employers are involved, should be refunded the excess.

This probably does not involve a large amount, but I can not see where such a person suffers any more, or as much, as the steadily employed person who pays in, year after year, and never draws anything for all that he pays in. Of course, if it were not so, the rates would be prohibitively high. An employee earning $500, then becoming unemployed, would have paid in $5, and then would draw $263.

If anyone is entitled to refund, it would seem to be the person drawing less than $300, who is not eligible for any benefits.

Respectfully submitted.

H. E. DILLINGER

MOTION TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Senator DeLap moved that the following communications, containing the suggestions of the Legislative Counsel regarding the language in bills or resolutions which carry the clause to cover the war emergency, be printed in the Journal:

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Honorable T. H. DeLap, Honorable Charles H. Deuel
Senate Chambers, State Capitol, Sacramento, California

No. 7129

DEAR SENATORS: Herewith is my suggestion as to a formula for a terminal date for the "duration" bill.

If desired, I will be pleased to use this formula in each such bill hereafter prepared by this office, unless otherwise specifically instructed by the requestor.

If thought desirable, I will undertake the preparation of suitable amendments to similar bills already introduced, commencing with those that may be up for immediate passage.

Yours very truly,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Honorable Charles H. Deuel, Honorable T. H. DeLap

DURATION CLAUSES—No. 7129

GENTLEMEN: In response to your request for a uniform clause to be used in connection with measures which are intended temporarily to supersede existing statutes, we submit the following clause for your consideration:

This act shall remain in effect until the ninety first day after final adjournment of the Fifty-sixth Regular Session of the Legislature or until the cessation of hostilities in all wars in which the United States is now engaged, whichever first occurs. While this act is in effect it shall supersede any existing provisions of law which are in conflict with this act; but such provisions are not repealed by this act and after this act is no longer effective shall have the same force as though this act had not been enacted.

This clause is designed for use in an entirely new general law.

When used in reference to a section added to an existing general law or code, the word "section" should be substituted for the word "act" wherever the word "act" appears.

If used in an act which adds a number of sections to an existing general law or code, this clause should be modified as follows:

The first line should read:

The sections added to said code (or act) shall remain in effect until:

The words "said sections" would substitute for the words "this act" in the latter part of the clause, with appropriate grammatical changes.

If in a particular case the temporary feature takes the form of an addition to an existing section, thus becoming a part of it, this same formula can be used if carefully modified and adapted to fit the case.

Whatever form such a bill takes, it would be a wise precaution each time to give particular attention to the use of this formula, to make sure it really fits.

I have spoken of "additions" for the reason that I do not consider desirable an amendment that takes the existing provisions out of the law, for, when the temporary period is over, where are the old words that are to spring back into action?

A word should be said about bills heretofore enacted at this or a previous session. They do not contain this formula. Also, some bills not yet adopted may escape notice and thus not carry this formula. It is, of course, not the intention of the Legislature to cast any doubt upon such other bills. The general intent is that, when any temporary measure terminates, the old provisions shall again be fully operative if by any possibility the context permits, with or without an express declaration such as that now under consideration.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Senate Bill No. 15:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

SACRAMENTO, January 28, 1943

*To the Honorable Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN:

Provision for emergency increase of compensation paid to State employees will expire February 1, 1943, and I am of the opinion that legislation should now be enacted to continue in effect provision for such emergency increased compensation.

I have not had an opportunity to arrive at a conclusion of what the exact amount of the increase should be, but the subject matter of Senate Bill No. 15 should be considered by the Legislature to prevent an immediate reduction of salaries which would be unfair to the State employees and might result in an abnormal loss of personnel.

I, therefore, recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 15 as necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, or safety, and as an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Sections 1 and 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not wait until the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor of California

The roll was called, and the bill passed by the following vote:

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were received, read, and, on motion of Senator Swing, ordered printed in the Journal, and that its provisions be complied with:

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 29, 1943

To the Senate of the State of California and to the Members Thereof

Your Committee on Governmental Efficiency has given consideration to the many problems resulting from the present emergency, and in considering the necessity for eliminating duplicating service and unnecessary costs of Government with the ultimate purpose of affording to the taxpayers through the State some relief from both State and local taxes, thereby making it easier and more convenient for our citizens to devote their time and efforts to necessary war activities and other obligations imposed upon them as a result of our all-out war effort.

The committee feels that it would be helpful if we could have information concerning the efforts, if any, being made by the various counties, municipalities, and the various departments, boards, and commissions of the State, looking to the curtailment of activities and reduction in cost of operation. For this reason, the accompanying resolution was adopted, calling upon these various entities for information which we hope may be helpful to the Legislature in determining a policy following the constitutional recess.

The committee has asked that this resolution be printed in the Journal, and a copy of it be sent by the Secretary to the various entities referred to.

Sincerely yours,

SWING, Chairman,
Committee on Governmental Efficiency

Resolution calling for information from the various counties and cities of the State, and from the various departments and various commission boards and departments of State Government, relative to duplicate service and to unnecessary expenditures and elimination of functions for the duration.

WHEREAS, The unprovoked attack by Japan suddenly and unexpectedly placed California into the front trenches of the war zone, and has made necessary the suspension of all peace time activities and normal governmental functions, not necessary to the war effort, and requires the concentration of our citizens and of our Government agencies upon an all-out program to win the war so that a return to normalcy may speedily occur; and

WHEREAS, All citizens have responded to the call of their Government to forego pleasures and conveniences, and to make sacrifices in order to meet the demands resulting from the present emergency; and

WHEREAS, The necessary contributions in taxes, for war bonds and for other war activities makes it necessary and desirable that all peace time activities and governmental functions and expenditures, both by the State and local government, not essential to the war effort, be reduced to a minimum; and

WHEREAS, This State is being called upon to aid municipalities, counties and districts during this emergency, and to assist in relieving the local taxpayers of and from the various and numerous burdens now imposed upon them; and

WHEREAS, It is the opinion of the members of this committee that the governing board of every county, municipality, and district in this State should eliminate every unnecessary activity and function, and should make a substantial reduction in their respective expenditures and in the taxes levied by them; and

WHEREAS, The State, county, municipal, and district governmental functions in numerous instances overlap and duplicate each other, and also duplicate jurisdiction and powers exercised by the Federal Government, resulting in a multiplicity of departments, boards, bureaus, commissions, and official governmental agencies requiring numerous comparable or identical reports, statements, and returns from citizens and taxpayers, with consequent harassment and vexation, and is a source of extravagance and expense increasing the annual tax bill by untold millions of dollars, the burden of which to a large extent is borne by local taxpayers; and

WHEREAS, It is essential that State, county, and municipal government be streamlined to wartime necessities, and that all duplication in services rendered by the various public agencies and entities be eliminated, and all boards, commissions, departments, and officers of State, county, municipalities, and districts not essential to necessary governmental functions and wartime necessities be eliminated, and that governing boards of municipalities, counties, and districts, as well as State boards, commissions, and departments reduce their respective cost of operation to a minimum; and

WHEREAS, It is desirable that this committee have presented to it information from the various governing boards of municipalities, counties, and districts throughout the State, and from each commission, board, and department of this State as to what functions, services, and expenditures can be eliminated for the duration, and where and how savings may be made and the burden of the taxpayer lightened; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Committee on Governmental Efficiency of the Senate of the State of California. That a request be made by each governing board of each municipality, county, city and county, and district throughout the State and each commission, board, and department of the State Government to furnish to this committee, prior to the fifteenth day of March, 1943, a detailed statement in writing, showing and disclosing what functions, services, and expenditures such governing board, commission, board, and department has eliminated, and what functions, services, and expenditures can be eliminated for the duration; and how or in what manner the costs and expense of any such municipality, county, district, commission, board, and department has been or can be reduced, and what tax reductions, if any, have been or can be made by any such governing board of any such city, county, city and county, or district for the duration; and be it further

Resolved, That the Director of Finance of the State of California furnish to this committee, on or before such date, a detailed list of each commission, board, and department which, in the opinion of said director, can be eliminated for the duration, or the functions and activities which can or should be curtailed, and what legislation should be enacted to streamline State Government to wartime necessities, and that each and all such governing boards, commissions, boards, and departments make such recommendations for curtailing governmental functions as in their opinion should be curtailed or dispensed with, and such recommendations as will result in a reduction in the cost of government of the various entities referred to; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution be reported to the Senate of the State of California, and be printed in the Journal of such body, and that engrossed copies thereof be prepared by the Secretary of the Senate and forthwith transmitted to each commission, board, and department of the State Government, and to the governing board of each city, county, city and county, and district within the State; that the transmission of such copies of such resolution shall be deemed to be a request of such commissions, boards, departments of the State Government, and of such governing boards of each city, county, city and county, and district within the State to furnish the information herein requested.

CONSIDERATION OF DAILY FILE SECOND READING OF SENATE BILLS

Senate Bill No. 150—An act providing for substitution of fiduciaries during wartime, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

Bill read second time, ordered engrossed, and to third reading.

Senate Bill No. 473—An act to amend Section 3519 of the Political Code, relative to the issuance of patents by the State.

Consideration of Committee Amendments

Amendment No. 1

In line 2 of the title of the printed bill, strike out the period, and insert ", declaring the urgency of this act, to take effect immediately."

Amendment No. 2

On page 1, line 9, of the printed bill, after "register", insert ", upon the surrender of the certificate of purchase,".

Amendment No. 3

On page 1, line 16, of the printed bill, after "to", insert "the benefit of".

Amendment No. 4

On page 1 of the printed bill, after line 17, insert
"If the certificate of purchase has been lost or destroyed, or is beyond the control of the owner of the land, the register may require said owner to furnish an affidavit as to the loss of the certificate of purchase or as to his inability to surrender same. The register may, upon finding the facts stated in such affidavit to be true, thereupon prepare the patent for issuance as hereinabove provided.

SEC. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution and shall therefore go into immediate effect. A statement of the facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

This act will permit patents to be issued for the lands specified therein without the surrender of the certificates of purchase. In many instances the certificates have been lost or mislaid, and can not be surrendered, and as a result the patents can not now be issued. The inability to obtain patents prevents the transfer of the lands, many of which are lands suitable for the grazing of live stock, into the hands of persons who will use them for that purpose. A severe shortage of meat exists, which menaces the health of the civilian population. When this act becomes effective, the lands affected can be transferred to persons who will use them for grazing live stock, and as a result the production of meat will be increased, and the health of the people of the State protected. It is therefore necessary that this act take effect immediately."

Amendments read and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, engrossed, and to third reading.

CHAPTER _____

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22—Amending the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly by adding Joint Rule No. 36, creating a Joint Legislative Budget Committee, defining its powers and duties, and making an appropriation out of the contingent funds therefor.

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That a new rule, to be numbered 36, is hereby added to the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly, to read as follows:

36. In addition to any other committee provided for by these rules, there shall be a joint committee to be known and called the Legislative Budget Committee.

It shall be the duty of the committee to ascertain facts and make recommendations to the Legislature and to the houses thereof concerning the State Budget, the revenues and expenditures of the State, and of the organization and functions of the State, its departments, subdivisions and agencies, with a view of reducing the cost of the State Government, and securing greater efficiency and economy.

The committee shall consist of five members of the Senate and five members of the Assembly. The Senate members of the committee shall be the President pro tempore of the Senate and one member each from the Committees on Finance, Revenue and Taxation, Governmental Efficiency and Judiciary, selected by the respective committees. The Assembly members of the committee shall consist of the Speaker and four other Members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker. The committee shall select its own chairman.

The committee shall have the authority to make rules to govern its own proceedings and its employees. It may also create subcommittees from its membership, assigning to its subcommittees any study, inquiry, investigation or hearing which the committee itself has authority, to undertake or hold, and the subcommittee for the purpose of this assignment shall have and may exercise all the powers conferred upon the committee, limited only by the expressed terms of any rule or resolution of the committee defining the powers and duties of the subcommittee. Such powers may be withdrawn or terminated at any time by the committee.

The provisions of Joint Rule 35 above shall apply to the Legislative Budget Committee, and it shall have all the authority provided in such rule or in Article IV, Section 37, of the Constitution.

The committee shall have authority to appoint a Legislative Auditor, to fix his compensation and to prescribe his duties, and to appoint such other clerical and technical employees as may appear necessary. The committee may meet either during sessions of the Legislature, any recess thereof, or after final adjournment, and may meet or conduct business at any place within the State of California.

The members of the committee shall serve without compensation but shall be entitled to actual and necessary expenses including expenses for living accommodations and meals incurred in connection with their services on the committee, or in lieu of such expenses for accommodations and meals they shall be entitled to an allowance of eight dollars ($8) per day and travel expenses which shall be deemed to be five and one-half cents ($.05½) per mile. The chairman of the committee shall audit and approve the expenses of members of the committee or salaries of the employees, and all other expenses incurred in connection with the performance of its duties by the committee, and the chairman shall certify the amount approved to the Controller, and the Controller shall draw his warrants upon the certification of the chairman, and the Treasurer shall pay the same to the chairman of the committee to be disbursed by him.

Upon the organization of the Legislature at any succeeding session, all authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff, and any unexpended balance in any funds appropriated for the use of the committee, shall be temporarily transferred to a pro tempore Legislative Budget Committee consisting of the Senate Committee on Rules and of the new Speaker and four other Members of the Assembly appointed by him, until the committee as hereinabove provided for is appointed or selected when all such authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff and all funds available for the use of the committee shall revert to such committee; and be it further

Resolved, That a sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) is hereby appropriated from the contingent funds of the Senate and Assembly, to be expended equally from the contingent funds of the Senate and Assembly in carrying out the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That if there is created by statute a Legislative Audit Bureau, a Legislative Research Bureau, or other similar agency, under legislative control, charged with the duty of performing one or more of the functions given the Legislative Budget Committee by this resolution, the committee is hereby authorized and directed to avoid duplicating the work of such bureau or agency while the latter is in existence and functioning.

Foreword

The ever increasing biennial budget and the consequent increase in budgeting and appropriation problems to be considered by the Legislature in each succeeding session increased the burdens of the legislative committees dealing with these subjects. The total budget for the Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth Fiscal Years, 1933-34, the first time the State budget included all expenditures for the biennium, amounted to $265,345,955. Ten years later, the Governor's budget for the Ninety-third and Ninety-fourth Fiscal Years, 1941-43, totaled $552,570,135, an increase of $287,224,180 in 10 years or more than 108 per cent.

Comparative Statement of Increase of the Budget and Population of the State of California and Per Capita Cost for Biennial Budget 1931-33 and 1941-43

	State Population	Total State Budget	Per Capita
1941-43	7,070,000	$552,570,000	$78.157
1931-33	5,812,000	265,346,000	45.654
Increase	1,258,000	287,224,000
	+21.6%	+108.24%*

* In one respect the 1931-33 budget is more complete than 1941-43 in that it contains expenditures from Federal funds which the latter omits. If these were in, the percentage increase would be up

It should be noted that this is a comparison of the biennial budget requests of the Governor and not a comparison of actual expenditures. The actual cost of government varies somewhat from the budget requests due to changes in the budgets, special appropriation bills and variations in fixed charges. The comparison, however, is valid for the reason that it does express for both periods the Governor's budget as presented under Constitutional requirements.

The comparison for the 10 year period 1931-33—1941-43 is made for the following reasons: First of all, this is the last biennium for which a budget is available. Secondly, 1931-1933 was the first year in which an absolutely complete budget with all items was presented and is the first year in which the modernized budget document in the larger size was initiated.

A comparison of the budget document itself is very interesting, for the 1931-33 document contains 360 pages, as compared with the 848 pages in the 1941-43. In other words, the document itself for 1941-43 is approximately 108 per cent larger in every way than the one of 10 years previous.

The striking significance is that while the population of the State of California increased 21.6 per cent in the period 1931-33 to 1941-43, the Governor's budget increased 108 per cent. The per capita cost for State Government in 1931-33 for the biennium was $45.65, while in 1941-43 it had risen to $78.15. It is true that new services were added to the State Government and larger amounts were allocated to county, city and school districts; however, the ever-expanding established departments and bureaus of government and the increase in services accounted for a very large proportion of the increase. A considerable amount of the increase did occur in the way of State relief for unemployed. This item, however, was entirely eliminated by the Legislature in 1941 but other expenditures took up most of the saving.

This is a demonstration that eternal vigilance is necessary to prevent an ever-increasing expansion program far in excess of the growth in population. The danger at the present time is even more imminent than it was during this 10-year period, 1931 to 1941, for during this entire period a large State deficit existed. At the present time this deficit has been eliminated and a substantial surplus exists. This surplus will increase to startling proportions by the close of the next biennium, June 30, 1945, unless war activities diminish or some unforeseen Federal law or ruling cuts off the flow of taxes into the Treasury. With this increase in the surplus comes the temptation to expand expenditures and to take on new functions of government and also cut taxes.

A large degree of caution and careful consideration of appropriations is necessary if laxity born of the surplus does not allow an increase in the cost of State Government and the increase will get out of hand and obligations may be contracted and services of government established which can not be met when the present condition of war prosperity begins to recede. If government is expanded beyond normal needs and the surplus consumed there will be no backlog or reserve of funds available to continue to carry on an expansion in governmental services made during this period and there will certainly be insufficient funds to assist in tiding over a period of declining revenues and declining ability of the taxpayer to support the cost of government. The present upswing in revenue is a wartime prosperity. It can disappear as rapidly as it arose. In no sense should it be considered as more than a windfall. No permanent expansion in government should be based on it, for herein lies a pitfall of increased costs of government which will go on when prosperity declines and revenues fall off so we may have economic distress, unemployment, falling revenues and mounting taxes to meet even normal government costs.

It is self-evident that sane planning should be made effective now so as to hold down the increasing cost of government and to assure that we do not go beyond a standard that can be carried during normal times and a condition of reduced prosperity and reduced taxes. This planning should also make sure that the condition which will exist is realized and means are taken now to provide for housing facilities for the State which are not being met at the present time, and depreciation and obsolescence which are accumulating during the period of the suspension of capital outlay. By proper planning this accumulated building need can well be coordinated to assist in meeting reduced economic conditions and possible widespread unemployment. This can not be done if governmental expenditures are expanded so as to take up the fortunate but short term increase in revenue at this time and if any considerable portion of the surplus is consumed.

In addition to presenting the largest budget in the history of the State, Governor Olson, in his first budget for the year 1939-41, recommended new taxes and the transfer of revenue in the total sum of $63,900,000. In his message of January, 1940, he reiterated that the taxes recommended in 1939 were still necessary to balance the budget and wipe out the State deficit. The Legislature did not see fit to approve these new taxes. On January 29, 1940, the Governor, in his message to the special session of the Legislature, again recommended that $50,000,000 in new taxes be raised in the next seventeen months to balance the budget. Again the Legislature differed with the Governor and imposed no new taxes.

On top of the problem of the mounting budget and the constant threat of increased taxes the deficit continued and grew until the upsurge of war industries in California increased revenues, so that with the legislative economy program the deficit was eliminated and a small surplus existed by the close of the fiscal year June 30, 1942. This continuing condition of a mounting deficit for the past decade produced the determination on the part of the Legislature to hold down expenditures.

The financial problem for the decade was further complicated by widespread unemployment and the demand for relief. The Governor, in his message of January, 1939, in discussing relief, stated that it would require $100,000,000 per biennium for this item alone. The Legislature disagreed with the Governor and met his budget request for $73,600,000 for this item by appropriating in the regular session only $35,525,000.

The conflict between the Legislature and the Governor over relief, with the resultant investigation by legislative committees and the disclosure of corruption, inefficiency, waste and maladministration, is well known. The Legislature was called into several extraordinary sessions and finally in two additional appropriations, one of $13,800,000 and the other of $24,247,091, the Legislature did appropriate slightly more than the amount requested in the Governor's budget for relief but a sum far less than the supplemental requests of the Governor.

The investigation on the part of the Legislature continued, and when the Governor, in his next budget, asked for $38,706,295 for relief, the Legislature eliminated this item entirely, continuing only the surplus food commodity distribution and the food stamp plan, making a net reduction for relief alone of $34,916,295.

The Legislature also subjected the Governor's budget for 1941-1943 to close scrutiny, reducing other controllable expenditures by $5,582,798. It is true that special appropriation bills were passed, totalling $10,192,254, but the net reduction in the budget exceeded $30,000,000. Subsequent operation of the State demonstrated the soundness of the legislative action.

The head-on conflict between the Governor and the Legislature, particularly over the relief administration and the spending for this activity and other appropriation matters and the ever increasing size of the expenditures program of the State for general purposes of government, clearly placed upon the Legislature and its finance committees a very large burden.

It became increasingly plain that the Legislature needed some instrumentality whereby it could secure its own information, free from the control and influence of the administration. It appeared desirable to have a continuing flow of such information so that the Legislature would have facts and information in which it had confidence on the operation of the State government as respects not only its efficiency and organization but also as to how the will of the people and the will of the Legislature is carried into execution.

The presentation of the final report of the committee on State organization, commonly known as the Report of the Committee of 25, presented to the 1941 Legislature, likewise indicated that a reorganization and regrouping of the State administration would produce greater efficiency and desirable economies.

The repeated instances of expanding the State pay roll and the making of jobs through establishing a large number of administrative assistants, coordinators, public relations men, and other political jobs, which in some instances were contrary to the expressed will of the Legislature, indicated the desirability of the Legislature's keeping informed as respects the administration and particularly the reorganization of the various departments of the State. The expansion of old services of government and the establishment of absolutely new services by the several departments and agencies of the State during legislative interims without any approval of the Legislature and in some instances without the Legislature's making any specific appropriations for such new service, gave a further reason for having a representative of the Legislature continuously on the job to observe these matters. Information as to how requests for such services become a regular budget request at a succeeding biennium will be very valuable to the law makers passing on such budget requests.

These conditions not only resulted in numerous conflicts between the Governor and the Legislature, but in addition caused a long delay in making effective legislation. This was particularly true in regard to the consideration of the Governor's budget and the budget bill making it effective, and other special appropriation bills. Legislative committee study and hearings on these matters became more and more extended and consequently the sessions became longer and longer. Even then with committees working diligently, the Legislature was not satisfied with the information it had on the fiscal and administrative affairs of the State upon which it had to base its judgment for the appropriation of many millions of dollars.

It was also evident in the conduct of the investigations made by the several legislative committees and subcommittees in relation to the State budget and appropriations that a better procedure in securing information would not only save legislative time but would also secure more complete and definite information. The results that could be secured by someone trained in the manner of getting information and with skill in organizing procedure and with basic information concerning each State department would be far more efficient and effective than could be done by legislative committees without this service. It was also plain that a continuous program of operation by someone skilled in all these respects would yield far larger results and in a more economical way than by having each Legislature start anew.

or practically so, with its committees considering State administration and appropriations therefor.

The establishment of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee and the Legislative Auditor as an instrumentality for securing, informing, and correlating for the Legislature all of these matters finally culminated in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, after the Governor had vetoed the Poulson Bill which provided for a legislative audit of State business.

While the major functioning of the Budget Committee was expected to be in conjunction with the biennial budget for 1943-45, we feel that this new legislative assistance amply demonstrated its usefulness in connection with the work done during the Extraordinary Session of the Legislature of 1941. The consideration of the several appropriation bills proposed to meet the war emergency by the Legislative Auditor for the enlarged Budget Committee made possible a quicker and sounder action and finally a better judgment than otherwise could have been secured. Besides this, final action was taken in a shorter time.

Subsequent functioning in promoting economies in relation to Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6 of the Special Session was effective. The committee pointed out a number of economies in State Government which could be made effective at once and which, we are happy to report, have been to a large degree translated into action.

In addition to the regular budget work and special session and other matters mentioned, the Legislative Auditor has rendered material and effective service to a number of other legislative committees which in itself yielded direct results and will, in turn, contribute to recommendations in relation to the forthcoming biennial budget.

We believe that this partial report of the committee demonstrates the soundness of the original purpose as set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, and that the additional reports that will be presented from time to time as the budget for 1943-45 is being considered for the various departments of the State Government will further demonstrate the usefulness of this type of procedure and the value of continuing this work in the interest of the Legislature for the promotion of sound and economic government.

Respectfully submitted.

First Partial Report of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee to the Honorable Frederick F. Houser, President, and to the Members of the Senate and to the Honorable Charles W. Lyon, Speaker, and to the Members of the Assembly of the State of California

Creation of Legislative Budget Committee and Office of Legislative Auditor

Pursuant to the foregoing Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, Chapter 117, Statutes of 1941, the California Legislature created a joint Legislative Budget Committee. This committee was empowered to employ a Legislative Auditor and such technical staff as was necessary.

The committee was made up of five members of the Senate and five members of the Assembly. The Senate members designated were the President Pro Tempore and one member each from the committees on Finance, Revenue and Taxation, Governmental Efficiency and Judiciary, to be selected by the respective committees. The Assembly members were to consist of the Speaker and four members appointed by the Speaker. The membership of the committee is as follows: Senators W. P. Rich, Jerrold L. Seawell, Arthur H. Breed, Jr., T. H. DeLap, Edward H. Tickle; Assemblymen George A. Clarke, Gordon H. Garland, Seth Millington, Norris Poulson, C. Don Field.

The duty of the committee as stated in the resolution is to ascertain facts and make recommendations to the Legislature "concerning the State Budget, the revenues and expenditures of the State, its departments, subdivisions and agencies, with a view toward reducing the cost of the State Government and securing a greater efficiency and economy."

Authority to Subpena Witnesses and Records

The committee has ample authority to subpoena witnesses and records, for the resolution creating it provided that the provisions of Legislative Joint Rule 35 shall apply to the Legislative Budget Committee, and it shall have all the authority provided in such rule or in Article IV, Section 37 of the Constitution.

While the committee believes that such authority is essential to guarantee full functioning of the committee, it is pleased to report that it did not find it necessary to issue a single subpoena for either witnesses or records. It was able through its staff to secure all essential information and assistance through cooperation and voluntary testimony. No doubt the power to subpoena, although not used, was helpful in securing information.

Support of the Committee

The sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) was appropriated from the Contingent Fund of the Senate and the Assembly for carrying out the provisions of the resolution establishing the committee. An additional five thousand dollars ($5,000) was appropriated by the First Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature to finance the special services rendered by the enlarged budget committee in relation to appropriation and legislation of the special session.

The funds appropriated have been spent carefully and have been sufficient to carry on the work of the committee, and partly due to the fact that reclusively trained research men have not been available in the number desired, approximately eighteen thousand dollars ($18,000) of the original appropriation remains unspent at the convening of the Fifty-fifth Session of the Legislature. This large balance remains for the reason that the committee itself, constituted for the purposes of producing economy, has endeavored to practice this principle in its own operations. This has been done in part by holding investment in equipment to the minimum and meetings to those essential to consider matters of importance.

With the exception of a typewriter and miscellaneous office supplies, all office equipment has been secured from the surplus stock of the liquidated State Relief Administration. Costly letterheads and other expensive printing have been eliminated, and other office costs strictly controlled. The committee has held only five meetings of the full committee other than those of the enlarged committee held during the Special Session of 1941.

In addition, as much information as possible has been secured from the State departments and agencies and also secured on a cooperative basis with governmental and private research organizations. This procedure has made it possible for the committee to secure a vast amount of detailed information at a minimum of expense. However, the committee must acknowledge that research investigations have not been carried on in as broad a scope or in as detailed a manner as is desirable or as would have been accomplished had it been possible to secure and retain trained and experienced research people.

Term and Succession of the Committee

The Legislative Budget Committee, since it is a creation of the 1941 Legislature, exists only until the succeeding Legislature comes into being. This report, in fact, is not only the preliminary but actually the final report of the committee as originally constituted. It is recommended that the pro tempore Legislative Budget Committee set up in the resolution and the succeeding Budget Committee provide for the issuing of additional reports from material on hand covering the Governor's budget, special appropriation bills, revenue measures and administrative reorganization matters when these are before the Legislature and the actual amounts and proposals can be considered.

The succession to the Budget Committee is provided in the resolution creating it in the following words: "Upon the organization of the Legislature at any succeeding session, all authority, powers, duties, papers and records, personnel or staff, and any unexpended balance in any funds appropriated for the use of the committee shall be temporarily transferred to a pro tempore Legislative Budget Committee consisting of the Senate Committee on Rules and of the new Speaker and four Members of the Assembly appointed by him, until the committee as hereinabove provided for is appointed or selected when all such funds available for the use of the committee shall revert to such committee."

According to this provision of the resolution, it was foreseen that the work of the Legislative Budget Committee, by its very nature, must be coordinated with the executive budget, to which it has been largely directed and which has been the purpose of a large part of its study and operation. While large values have been derived continuously through its functioning during the past year, and while many of these have been translated effectively into the budget document itself, additional dividends consistent with the purposes of the committee will be made available in subsequent reports dealing directly with the budget, special appropriations and administrative reorganizations.

Legislative Budget Committee and Legislative Auditor—A Departure in Legislative Procedure

The establishment of an interim Legislative Budget Committee and the employment of a Legislative Auditor with the broad powers set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22, is an innovation in California legislative procedure.

This is the culmination of the desire of the Legislature, which has been proposed in several previous sessions since 1931 to provide a legislative organization responsible to the Legislature alone to carry on a continuous program of research, analysis, and observation of governmental administration, for the purpose of securing for legislative consideration all necessary facts on the administration and the cost of State Government. The proposal to create a fact-finding bureau for the Legislature and responsible solely to that body has taken many forms. Bills have been presented for a Legislative Audit Bureau, a Legislative Research Bureau, a Bureau of Administrative Research and other similar agencies under legislative control, but none of these resulted in a statutory creation. The nearest approach to this procedure in recent years was the Poulson Bill of the 1941 Session of the Legislature. This provided for an independent post-audit of the several departments of the State by an officer responsible to the Legislature. This bill passed both houses of the Legislature, but was vetoed by Governor Olson on the recommendation of the Department of Finance.

Other States Have Similar Organizations

Some of the other States of the Union have organizations somewhat similar to the Legislative Budget Committee with its Legislative Auditor. Most of these are permanent organizations. They have as their principal duty the providing of facts for the Legislature on the cost of government for the use of the Legislature in its deliberations, particularly in regard to budgetary appropriations, special appropriation bills and governmental reorganization.

Underlying Reasons for the Creation of a Budget Committee and Establishment of a Legislative Auditor

Succeeding Legislatures for years have felt that they were handicapped because of lack of information, particularly so in considering State appropriations and the Governor's budget. This arose from the fact that the Legislatures did not have reliable information and facts free from bias and prejudice and political considerations upon which it could base its decisions and its legislation.

The executive budget, prepared in accordance with the provisions of Section 34, Article IV, of the State Constitution, expresses the Chief Executive's view and conclusions. The authorization of the executive budget is set forth in Section 34, Article IV, of the Constitution, in the following terms:

"The Governor shall, within the first 30 days of each regular session of the Legislature and prior to its recess, submit to the Legislature, with an explanatory message, a budget containing a complete plan and itemized statement of all proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing law or recommended by him, and of all its institutions, departments, boards, bureaus, commissions, officers, employees and other agencies, and of all estimated revenues, for each fiscal year of the ensuing biennial period; together with a comparison, as to each item of revenues and expenditures, with the actual revenues and expenditures for the first fiscal year of the existing biennial period and the actual and estimated revenues and expenditures for the second fiscal year thereof. If the proposed expenditures for the ensuing biennial period shall exceed the estimated revenues therefor, the Governor shall recommend the sources from which the additional revenue shall be provided."

The Governor, moreover, has the power to secure information and assistance in the preparation of his budget, thereby giving him a means of securing the facts which are not open to the Legislature. The authority for this is set forth in Section 34, Article IV of the Constitution, is provided in the following words:

"The Governor, and also the Governor-elect, shall have the power to require any institution, department, board, bureau, commission, officer, employee or other agency to furnish him with any information which he may deem necessary in connection with the budget or to assist him in its preparation."

If the Chief Executive has a political policy requiring appropriations, he can include these in the budget. If he favors one program as opposed to another, he can enlarge the expenditures in the budget for this while he can curtail those functions of government which he does not favor. There is little opportunity for the departments concerned to make their voice felt unless they can go directly to the Legislature. This is frequently very difficult to do, and even if it is done the weight of the Chief Executive and the Department of Finance, which exercises control over State spending, will be found in opposition.

The administration has a trained budget staff and a large auditing force in the Department of Finance working continuously on the budget, fiscal year budgets, control of expenditures and the auditing thereof. These men are available to prepare and present the Governor's program. These experts and technicians are continuously and readily available at the call of the Governor. Experience has shown that even these employees with full civil service protection bow to the will and desires of the Governor and his Director of Finance under whom they must work.

The Legislature, on the other hand, has a more limited opportunity to secure facts in relation to the budget and appropriations as are recommended by the Governor and as appear in special appropriation bills. The authority of the Legislature to secure such facts as provided in the Constitution is found in Section 37, Article IV, in the following terms:

"In order to expedite the work of the Legislature, either house of the Legislature may by resolution provide for the appointment of committees to ascertain facts and to make recommendations as to any subject within the scope of legislative regulation or control, and joint committees for such purposes, consisting of members of both houses, may be created by concurrent resolutions.

The resolution creating any such committee may authorize it to act either during sessions of the Legislature or after final adjournment. Any such committee shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be provided by the resolution creating it and in addition shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be provided by law or by the rules of the Legislature or either house thereof."

In previous years, in compliance with this section of the Constitution, succeeding Legislatures have appointed committees to ascertain facts in relation to State appropriations, administration and expenditures.

One very fruitful committee of this kind was the Senate Fact Finding Committee of the Fiftieth Session (1933) headed by Senator David F. Rush, and whose report is commonly known as the Rush Fact Finding Report. Many other committees have from time to time functioned as interim committees or during the sessions of the Legislature. Frequently, however, the matter of analysis of the budget and the passing thereon has been left to the Finance Committee in the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee in the Assembly. Generally, but not always, the respective chairmen of these committees, out of courtesy, have been selected either with the approval and full knowledge of the Governor, or at least with his tacit approval.

These committees of both houses, dealing with the executive budget and the Budget Appropriation Bill and special appropriations, generally have been divided into subcommittees for the consideration of specific parts of the budget or specific appropriation bills. These subcommittees have done yeoman service, and in some instances, particularly meritorious work under great handicaps and with the too limited time available to cover the matters under consideration thoroughly.

For a long time many members of the Legislature have felt the need of the Legislature having its own employee responsible to itself constantly on the job securing information on State expenditures, the functioning of State Government, reviewing each and every department's operations with the purpose of presenting the facts of this operation to the Legislature and making suggestions for consolidation of activities, elimination of duplications, and the establishment of great efficiency; and with the over-all purpose of having immediately available essential facts upon which to base legislation, particularly in respect to appropriations. It has been generally felt in the Legislature that a Legislative Research Bureau or a Legislative Auditor or some similar office of the Legislature should provide the facts of governmental administration and the cost thereof for the Legislature on an unbiased, non-partisan basis in a similar fashion to that of the Legislative Counsel in its rendering of legal opinion and drafting of bills for the Legislature, its committees and individual members.

Meetings of Committee

It was the intention of the resolution creating the committee that the Legislative Budget Committee should meet from time to time between sessions and during the sessions to consider matters within its jurisdiction and to review reports of the Legislative Auditor and to consider such bills and proposals as were referred to it or fall within its purview. The regular committee has held five meetings, most of them two day sessions, and all of them held at the Capitol. The enlarged committee, existing during the extraordinary session of the 1941 Legislature, held seven meetings. Besides this, several subcommittees held a number of meetings in Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland on subventions to counties and cities, fire disaster plan, and civilian defense.

The committee established a procedure and method of operation that demonstrated its effectiveness during the extraordinary session of the 1941 Legislature, and in its observation and checking of the expenditures of the several State departments resulting in a series of economy recommendations to the Governor, and currently in its cooperation with the Governor-elect in presenting information during the budget hearings and the formulation of the operating program for the coming biennium, 1943-45.

Organization of Committee and Employment of a Legislative Auditor

The Legislative Budget Committee met and was organized on October 4, 1941. Senator William P. Ruch was elected chairman, Assemblyman Seth Millington vice chairman, and Assemblyman Norris Poulson, secretary. The committee employed Rolland A. Vandegrift, former Director of Finance of the State of California and a research specialist in governmental organization and taxation for many years, as Legislative Auditor.

Mr. Vandegrift has been engaged in governmental research since 1922. He was the first Director of Research of the California Taxpayers' Association and subsequently head of Vandegrift Research Associates. He carried on governmental research activities in California and in several other of the Western States.

The Legislative Budget Committee feels that in Mr. Vandegrift it has secured a person who is not only an expert in governmental finance and a trained research specialist in government, but one who also has had actual experience of making two State budgets and in functioning these budgets as Director of Finance in 1931-34. Also, through his continuous contact with State Government subsequently, he is intimately familiar with the entire operations of the government of the State. This training and experience, the committee felt, would make it possible for the Legislative Auditor to begin functioning immediately in conformity with the resolution establishing the committee and with the program of procedure outlined by the committee. The soundness of the committee's reasoning was demonstrated by the effectiveness of the Legislative Budget Committee in relation to the appropriation bills before the First Extraordinary Session of the 1941 Legislature.

Operations of the Committee

The temporary office of the Legislative Budget Committee was established in Room 416, Capitol Building, and later quarters were secured in Room 445. A small staff was employed and study just begun when the incident of Pearl Harbor occurred. Immediately the Governor called a special session of the Legislature and the regular work and program of the Budget Committee was at once suspended.

The Legislative Auditor was instructed by the chairman by telephone to drop everything he was doing and to immediately start analyzing and studying the various proposals the Governor was putting forth to meet the war emergency, particularly the State Guard.

These proposals included the enlargement of the State Guard, the expansion of the State Council of Defense, and appropriating a vast sum to the emergency fund of the State in order to take care of wartime contingencies which it was believed would arise in practically every department of the State Government. All the departments of the State immediately felt that they should assume responsibility for carrying on the war in one or more of its several phases, and requested large appropriations accordingly.

In fact, the first proposals were for appropriations totalling $110,000,000, some $45,000,000 of which was to be for the State Guard for the remainder of the biennium, a period of some 18 months. By the time the Legislature was assembled in special session, the requests had been reduced to approximately $45,000,000.

The Legislative Auditor increased his force somewhat and secured some volunteer assistants to carry on the concentrated studies necessary to provide sufficient facts for the Legislature on the various questions and proposed appropriations presented to it.

The Enlarged Legislative Budget Committee

The Legislative Budget Committee was enlarged to 22 members December 22, 1941, by Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19, Resolutions, Chapter 30, First Extraordinary Session, 1941, and given specific duties as shown in the following copy:

AMENDED IN SENATE DECEMBER 22, 1941

Assembly Concurrent Resolution*No. 19

INTRODUCED BY MR. LYON

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE ON RULES

Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19—Relative to augmentation of the membership and functions of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, and making additional funds available for the work of the committee.

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, the Senate thereof concurring, That for the duration of this Extraordinary Session of the Legislature which convened on the nineteenth day of December, 1941, and for the consideration of subjects of legislation specified in the proclamation by which this session was convened, the membership of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee (created by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 22 at the Fifty-fourth Regular Session of the Legislature) is hereby augmented, as follows:

The Speaker of the Assembly shall appoint to said committee those members of the present Assembly Standing Committee on Rules who are not already members of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, and the Senate Standing Committee on Rules shall appoint an equal number of Members of the Senate to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, to the end that during the time and for the purposes stated the membership of said joint committee be augmented by an equal number of members from each house;

Said additional memberships shall cease and terminate upon final adjournment of the Legislature at this Extraordinary Session and thereafter the membership of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee shall be the same as it this resolution had not been adopted; and be it further

Resolved, That during this Extraordinary Session, including any recesses thereof, the Joint Legislative Budget Committee (in addition to its existing powers and duties and not in derogation or diminution of any thereof) is charged with the duty of conducting studies and investigations and collecting information and data and reporting to the Legislature concerning any and all subjects specified in said proclamation; and be it further

Resolved, That in addition to moneys otherwise made available to the committee, the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) is hereby appropriated from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly, to be expended equally from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly in carrying out the work of the committee and defraying the expenses of the committee and its members.

O

The additional members were Senators Robert W. Kenny, Harry L. Parkman, John Phillips, Peter P. Myhand, Clarence C. Ward, Jesse M. Mayo, and Assemblymen Charles W. Lyon, Hugh M. Burns, Harrison W. Call, Earl D. Desmond, Ernest O. Voigt and Gardiner Johnson.

Special Session Appropriations Considered

All proposed appropriations of the special session were referred to this committee. After considering the various proposals of the Governor and the demands of the people for appropriations, the enlarged budget committee conducted hearings. They called on the Director of Finance to explain the appropriation proposals, and on the various departments and agencies of the State concerned, including The Adjutant General in relation to the State Guard, the representatives of the Department of Natural Resources and the Division of Forestry in relation to the Emergency Fire Disaster Plan, the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Criminal Identification, and all other agencies that might possibly be concerned with the war effort.

These hearings demonstrated that facts were not immediately available on which to base sound judgment. The Legislative Budget Committee then recommended that the special session recess for two weeks to give the committee and its Legislative Auditor an opportunity to analyze the appropriation bills, to meet with the Director of Finance and the heads of the departments and agencies concerned to make as complete an analysis of all these matters as time would allow.

Requests Reduced

This procedure was followed out and the success of its operation is demonstrated by the fact that the requests of the Governor for $45,000,000, after a careful study and consideration, were so reduced that all of these, together with some additional items not included by the Governor, totaled only $15,646,344.62 in the final appropriations. This amply demonstrated the desirability and effectiveness of the Legislature's having before it all possible information and facts concerning proposed appropriations.

Appropriations Sufficient

At the date of this report, January 4, 1943, we are able to determine with a reasonable degree of accuracy whether the estimates of the Legislative Budget Committee as respects these special appropriation bills were reasonably accurate, and whether the Governor's request for $45,000,000, or the Legislature's approval of appropriations for $15,646,344 met all necessary requirements. In other words, was the legislative appropriation for approximately one-third of what the Governor requested, and in round numbers, $30,000,000 less than he requested, a sufficient appropriation to carry all of the requirements of the State up to the meeting of the next session of the Legislature, or to the present time, for this is what the Legislature intended to do. The facts demonstrate that the Legislature was right, and if an error was made it was made on the side of adequacy, for not only has the State carried on satisfactorily and met the wartime emergency with the appropriations made, but in almost every instance there will be sufficient money to carry all of the activities concerned to the convening of the Legislature, and in some cases to the close of the biennium.

The State Guard should have enough money to last it well into March. The Fire Disaster Plan can be functioned almost to the close of the biennium. All of the other agencies have been able to carry on satisfactorily. Moreover, the appropriation to the emergency fund was sufficient to do everything required and yet at the present time, considering loans made, there is a sufficient balance to adequately meet the needs of the State.

Besides this, we find that each and every department of the State has been able to pay a wartime bonus of $15 per month to each State employee, financed out of salary savings, and that they will be able to carry this on through January and part of them through February. The meeting of this emergency, while possibly desirable, was not mandatory. The money could have been used to have met some other more pressing need and the solution of this problem of assisting State employees to meet the increased cost of living could have been left to the present Legislature.

Appropriations Specific—No Blank Checks

What is more important than just the reduction of appropriation requests was that the appropriations were not made as was requested by the Governor in the way of a blank check by having all appropriations made to the emergency fund and allowing the Governor to distribute them as he saw fit and making them available for supplementing any appropriation made in the Appropriation Act of 1941. These appropriations were made direct to the departments, divisions and bureaus of the State, with the exception that the general State emergency fund was restored to $1,000,000 net, after allowing for allotments already promised from the emergency fund and an estimated allotment of $185,000 for the State Council of Defense.

A special appropriation was made to the emergency fund as seen as the Legislature convened in the sum of $1,000,000 with $500,000 of this allocated to the State Guard. This was done on the recommendation of the Budget Committee so as to meet the emergency and to carry on the operations of the State Government during the two-week interval while the special session was in recess. There also was voted subsequently an addition of $1,000,000 to the special emergency fund set aside to meet the increased price in food for the State institutions and prisons.

Facts Essential for Legislation

Through relying on the recommendations of the enlarged Legislative Budget Committee and its staff, the Legislature was not stampeled into turning over the Treasury to the Governor because of the Pearl Harbor incident. After organizing the special session and listening to the Governor's message and his proposals and after passing the first emergency allotment of $1,000,000, the Legislature referred all appropriation measures to the enlarged Legislative Budget Committee. It allocated $5,000 additional funds to this committee to be used in considering the special session bills. The Legislature then recessed for two weeks, for the specific purpose of giving the Legislative Budget Committee time to study the proposed appropriations.

The Legislative Auditor and his staff concentrated on the job at hand. He reviewed these requests and all information provided by the Director of Finance, by the departments and divisions concerned, and secured independently other data and information. Out of this accumulation he made recommendations as to specific amounts for the various appropriations. With the exception of the appropriation for legislative printing of $40,000, the emergency fund for the University of California for $500,000, and the contingent Assembly expense item of $5,055.62, and the Assembly mileage item of $2,500, the amounts as recommended by the Legislative Auditor to the Legislative Budget Committee and by this committee to the Legislature appear in the final appropriation acts exactly as recommended.

* Request made for the Department of Health.

† Appropriation to the California Polytechnical School is in the form of a loan from the General Fund and is to be repaid out of moneys allocated to the California Polytechnical School from the Fairs and Expositions Fund.

‡ Includes $185,000 for State Council of Defense. Governor requested $285,000.

It should be noted that the request for the emergency fund originally included all items other than the State Guard, so there is, in fact, in this schedule a duplication. In making comparisons this item should be reduced by the amount of the original requests allocated to the different departments and to the special emergency fund.

The whole matter of appropriations requested by the Governor at the special session was one of confusion. This followed from the fact that the Governor at first merely requested a blanket appropriation to the emergency fund and an appropriation for the State Guard. Subsequently, on request of the Budget Committee, these were broken down by the Director of Finance in two schedules. The first one, requested for the 12 months' period ending December 31, 1942, for the war emergency exclusive of the State Guard, $15,104,189. On January 6, after the Budget Committee had insisted on a breakdown of this request and an allocation to the different departments, the Director of Finance requested an appropriation to the emergency fund for immediate defense needs of the State during the remainder of the present year the sum of $8,790,843, as an augmentation of the emergency fund exclusive of support of the State Guard in addition to the $500,000 already appropriated by the special session to the emergency fund, over and above the $500,000 allocated in the emergency fund appropriation to the State Guard.

Some of the items that were approved by the Legislature as primary were considered as secondary in the Director of Finance's schedule. Some other items approved by the Legislature did not appear at all in the Governor's requests or in the Director of Finance's schedule, so that in fact, as measured by the Governor's requests, the recommendations for appropriations made by the Legislative Budget Committee and finally approved by the Legislature are relatively even much less than the total appropriation of $15,644,344.

There are four contributions following from the work of the Legislative Budget Committee during the special session.

1. The appropriations were reduced to amounts actually needed.
2. A more equitable treatment of the needs of the State was secured and some appropriations not requested were made where needed.
3. The need for appropriations had to be demonstrated and the facts considered, rather than merely the approval of a blanket sum.
4. Reasonable control of expenditures was established through making appropriations direct to the agencies concerned and through certain limitations placed in the appropriation bills.

The volume of work required on the part of the Legislative Auditor and by the Budget Committee to handle the special session fiscal matters can hardly be appreciated by anyone who did not participate. The job was all the more difficult due to the fact that the time available was very limited and proposals were changed frequently. For example, no less than 26 different sets of figures and estimates were required for the numerous Guard bills that at one time or another were before the Legislature and its committees. Each of these required very careful calculations not only for the amount of pay depending upon the strength of the Guard, but also the cost for subsistence, equipment, transportation, hospitalization, administration and other miscellaneous items. Many of these did not vary in direct ratio with the strength of the Guard, but had to be calculated in relation to the number of organizations. Each time the strength of an organization or the number in an organization or on active duty was varied the cost therefore had to be calculated accordingly.

The calculations made for the appropriations for the Division of Forestry to function the Fire Emergency Plan were almost as complicated. These had to be divided up into several categories, such as the allotment for stand-by equipment, that for the operation of a mobile pool, the purchase of pool equipment, and the allotment for the operation of a dispatch system. These, in turn, had to be calculated for varying periods of time. This also required the making of estimates for the normal operation of the Division of Forestry and for the winter move-up plan for fire protection, using normal equipment.

The only reason that satisfactory results were secured in this emergency in relation to appropriations followed from the fact that the Legislative Budget Committee was already organized and the Legislative Auditor was already intimately familiar with the entire operation of the State Government, and also that he already had in hand available for the committee basic information which could be used at a moment's notice.

Continuous Research Necessary

The importance of continuously collecting, compiling, adjusting, and coordinating facts on the cost of the government of California and on the operations of each department and agency of the State so as to be prepared to supply the Legislature at all times with these facts can not be overestimated. It is absolutely essential to have this storehouse of information available on short notice in order to provide the facts for current problems the Legislature must consider and for the long time view that is required when the Legislature makes appropriations to cover a biennium which may end from two to two and a quarter years in the future.

A continuous study of the operations of government and the compilation of essential facts is required if the Legislative Auditor is to provide the Budget Committee and this, in turn, the full Legislature, with the information needed for considering the biennial budget, special appropriation bills, the revision of governmental organization and such other administrative matters as will come before the Legislature.

This is particularly important when we consider that each session of the Legislature not only adds more duties to existing departments and agencies of the State, but it frequently creates additional agencies and commissions. Moreover, with power vested in department heads to reorganize their departments with the approval of the Governor and the authority of certain other officers, bureaus, and commissions to reorganize or enlarge their functions without additional legislative approval, there is a continually changing administrative organization of the State. Additional functions, both with and without legislative approval, become effective during the interim between sessions and concerning which there is no experience available to the Legislature on which to formulate appropriations or enact legislation.

With the existence of the Legislative Budget Committee with its Legislative Auditor and staff continuously functioning, the Legislature has an instrumentality whereby it can observe the operation of the already existing functions of government, and the new or additional agencies and functions and the cost and operation thereof can be reported back to the Legislature. The Legislature can observe whether or not the will of the people as expressed through the Legislature has been carried into effect or whether it has been circumvented. This value was amply demonstrated following the Special Session of the 1941 Legislature.

Continuance of Regular Program

After the Special Session was over the Legislative Auditor went back to his regular work following the instructions of the committee, studying the State Government, but with an added job as set forth in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, copy as follows:

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6

CHAPTER 4

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6—Relative to calling upon the Governor and other State officials to preserve the strictest economy during the present war emergency and instructing the Legislative Auditor to observe the extent to which this is done.

[Filed with Secretary of State December 22, 1941.]

WHEREAS, The United States of America can not apply its maximum strength toward the winning of the great war in which it is now engaged unless all of its resources, whether public or private, are made available for its tremendous war needs; and

WHEREAS, Every expenditure by this State, however desirable during time of peace, which does not advance the war effort of this country diverts resources otherwise available for that effort and deprives the inhabitants of this country of funds which would otherwise be available to pay the mounting Federal taxes and to purchase defense bonds and stamps; and

WHEREAS, The funds now available for expenditure by the various departments and other agencies of this State were appropriated by the Legislature prior to the present war emergency, and, hence, this Legislature did not approve their expenditure under present conditions; and

WHEREAS, The present State taxes were imposed at a time when the United States was not at war, and, therefore, there is no indication by the Legislature that the State is warranted in imposing these taxes at the present time; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, the Assembly thereof concurring, That the Governor of this State, the Director of Finance, and all State departments and agencies, whether self supporting or supported from the General Fund, undertake to reduce all expenditures to the minimum amounts required to maintain services necessary in themselves or necessary to further the war effort; and be it further

Resolved, That all heads of State departments and other agencies are urged to appraise immediately every possibility of securing economy in their respective departments or agencies, including, whenever possible, leaving vacant the positions of State employees leaving the departments or agencies; and be it further

Resolved, That the Legislative Auditor is instructed to observe the extent to which the policies expressed in this resolution are carried out and to make periodic reports thereon to the Joint Legislative Budget Committee; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to furnish copies of this resolution to the Governor, Director of Finance, and the Legislative Auditor.

This resolution provided that the Legislative Auditor should observe and report to the Legislative Budget Committee what economies the State departments and divisions of government were making in the light of the war effort.

As instructed by the Committee, the Legislative Auditor immediately sent out a circular letter to all of the department heads, bureau chiefs, and agencies of the State Government, calling upon them to make a report.

Upon receipt of this notice the departments and agencies of the State immediately began to consider their program and in general they communicated to the Legislative Auditor economies already being made effective, or which were contemplated.

As a result of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, the work of the Legislative Auditor was immediately enlarged and he has included this subject in each subsequent report to the Legislative Budget Committee.

Economy Suggestions

At the April, 1942, meeting of the committee, the Legislative Auditor presented some 56 economy suggestions which might be considered State-wide in the operation of State Government. After carefully reviewing these suggestions they were approved and the committee, on the invitation of the Governor, transmitted these suggestions to him.

The Legislative Auditor carefully followed the possibility of making these suggestions effective and was able to report that approximately one-half of them have either been made effective or are in the process of being made effective by the Governor or the department heads and agency chiefs where they can be applied. The committee must report that these economy suggestions were not adopted as universally as was possible and that in some instances not only no response was made but opposition and antagonism to the legislative suggestions appeared.

The committee, while it can not claim full credit for the economies achieved does not hesitate to claim that it added a directing force in this matter which resulted in rather large economies, many of which are being continued.

Services to Other Legislative Committees

At the second meeting of the Legislative Budget Committee held on November 22, 1941, instructions were given the Legislative Auditor to render such services as were possible and consistent with his duties to other legislative committees. This he has done on numerous occasions. In particular, he has served the Assembly Committee on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, and the Assembly Subcommittee on Social Security. In one instance he compiled a complete report on the operation of the Division of Commodity Distribution in the Department of Social Welfare. In other instances he has analyzed expenditures, accounting methods and procedures, and the accounts of certain agencies and provided other facts and figures useful in these committee deliberations.

All of this work done for other committees has yielded direct values in providing facts and figures useful to the Budget Committee work. For example, the study of commodity distribution in the Department of Social Welfare was used directly and effectively in the budget hearing on the Department of Social Welfare with the result that the budget request for this activity was materially reduced.

Effectiveness of Interim Committees Increased

It is a well-known fact that many legislative interim committees secure limited results for the reason that they are handicapped in not having a definite procedure and not being in possession of facts or definite information as to where or how to secure those facts and to coordinate them with information available in public records. Much time is wasted by these committees in organization and in formulation of a program and also in carrying on investigations with the hope that they will hit on something of real value. By having a legislative representative continuously on the job, assistance can be given in formulating a program and in setting up a procedure of operations and in providing available basic facts, even to the determination of witnesses who should throw light on matters at issue. An outline of questions to be asked which will build a coordinated body of information necessary for the purpose of the committee can be prepared. Such procedure will eliminate much of the waste motion and reduce the time and costs of committee operation. It also will make possible the multiple use of information gathered, for frequently information secured by or for one committee will be useful to several others.

Functions of the Committee in Relation to the 1943-45 Budget

The committee adopted an original policy to be followed in preparing for considering the Governor's biennial budget for 1943-45, and instructed the Legislative Auditor to review each and every department, division, commission and agency of the State with the idea of making effective all possible economies through having in hand an analysis of the operation of the State Government which would give the committee the facts as to the operation and costs for performing all of the services supplied by the State. Duplications, overlapping functions, inefficient procedure, surplus employees, extravagant use of supplies and materials and all other unnecessary expenditures in so far as possible were to be pointed out, purely on the basis of fact. It was the intention of the committee in its original plan to have such information in hand and then to consider budget requests as found in the Governor's budget and in appropriations, and with these facts to reduce all proposed expenditures to minimum amounts required to maintain services necessary in themselves or necessary to further the war effort. In this procedure the committee was following the spirit of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, previously noted, which called upon all State departments and agencies to reduce expenditures following these general principles.

It should again be noted that in this resolution the Legislature called on the heads of all State departments and agencies to appraise immediately every possibility of securing economy in their respective department or agencies, including wherever possible leaving vacant the positions of State employees severing their connections with these departments or agencies to engage in the war effort. The committee stated that they felt that the nation's war effort demanded every resource and energy be dedicated to winning the war at the earliest possible moment. To achieve this victory drastic changes in normal operations of government as well as in the private lives of citizens are necessary. The luxuries in governmental spending and operation must go as luxuries in civilian life are going.

The committee held that appropriations should be based upon the assumption that the war will continue through the period of the budget, or in other words throughout the next biennium; therefore, appropriations should be made on this basis.

They further expressed the view that governmental activities clearly made necessary by the war effort or which definitely contribute to winning the war should be provided for to the extent necessary for their effectiveness. With these principles in mind, the committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to review the activities and functions of the State agencies and to examine them critically as to their necessity under wartime conditions with the thought that every expenditure which does not clearly serve an essential service of government needed in wartime should be eliminated.

They further instructed that those agencies which assumed additional responsibilities as a result of the war should finance them as far as possible out of their existing budget by curtailing or eliminating functions not essential to the war effort. However, the operation of each agency was to be adjusted so that the war effort assumed a proper function and could best be performed in that particular agency, and also that it did not overlap with some other agency. In addition, such special items as were solely developed to meet the war effort should be clearly set out and kept distinguishable from the regular activities, so that at the end of the war these emergency efforts would not appear as a permanent activity of the agency concerned.

It was the consensus of opinion of the committee that the information secured by the Legislative Auditor should be held in file and used in relation to appropriations after the Governor presented his budget. This was adopted for the reason that the committee did not then know whether an economy budget or not would be presented.

Department of Finance Advises State Agencies to Make Budgets on an Economy Basis

On September 28, 1942, the Director of Finance sent out Circular Letter No. 213 to all State departments, boards, commissions, etc., concerning the budget requests for the 1943-45 biennium. This letter contains substantially the economic suggestions promulgated by the Legislative Budget Committee. Subsequently, the Governor-elect, Honorable Earl Warren, stated that he concurred in the general principles expressed in this letter and that he desired that they be followed in preparing his budget.

Plan of Operations of Committee Modified to Harmonize With Economy Budget Views of Governor-elect

Upon the election of the Honorable Earl Warren as Governor, he contacted the chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee and expressed his ideas of having an economy budget and he suggested that he would like to have all possible assistance in securing a sound economy budget, very much in line with the principles previously enunciated by the committee. The Governor-elect also stated that he would appreciate any assistance rendered in helping to produce an economy budget. He not only invited the Legislative Auditor to sit in at the budget hearings, representing the Legislative Budget Committee, but requested that he participate in the budget hearings and also requested that he participate in the final consideration of the budget items with the Governor-elect before these were finally determined. The Budget Committee had already instructed the Legislative Auditor to participate in the budget hearings and to bring out such facts as were necessary to make a decision upon requested appropriations, but not to disclose the possible recommendations of the Budget Committee. The committee, at its meeting December 4, 1942, discussed this matter and instructed the Legislative Auditor to modify the plan of operations and to render every assistance to the Governor-elect in making the budget, participating in the budget hearings, and to bring out such facts as were necessary in making a decision upon requested appropriations as respects their necessity to carry on the essential functions of the State Government and forward the war effort.

The Legislative Auditor has attended all of the budget hearings, both open and closed, held by the Department of Finance and the Governor-elect, and has participated along the lines indicated. In addition, numerous conferences have been held with representatives of the Department of Finance working on the budget concerning specific items, both as to inclusion, reduction, or elimination from the budget.

The facts and information presented and brought out by the questions asked by the Legislative Auditor have resulted in materially affecting the budget allotments, although it should not be inferred that through this procedure complete results have been secured or that much more can not be done in securing greater economy as respects many appropriations.

The limitation on the time available to prepare the executive budget after the election of the Governor and the required time of its presentation to the Legislature does not make it possible to make a complete and exhaustive analysis of every budget request. Furthermore, the incoming Governor and his advisors are not sufficiently armed with the facts and experience to exhaustively cover the budget requests which, in their total, exceed half a billion dollars. Here is a manifest weakness in the State's budgeting procedure which presents itself with the election of each new Governor. Time and information available to the new Governor and his department heads are absolutely too short subsequent to an election to make possible adequate consideration of the budget by the newly elected Governor and his newly appointed chiefs. It appears to be desirable to extend this time in some fashion by at least 30, and preferably 60 days. This would result in fuller consideration by the Executive of appropriation requests and undoubtedly a better budget and a more acceptable document would result. The values which would come from making possible this more detailed consideration would be of maximum amount if the Legislative Budget Committee, through the Legislative Auditor, could participate continuously in the budget program.

It is self-evident that under the present conditions the permanent budget staff of the Department of Finance must be depended upon to provide analyses of expenditures and necessary facts for the Governor-elect. In this instance, and for the first time in the history of the State, the Legislature has had its own representative participate with the Governor-elect in preparing a budget. From the volume of facts and information gathered by the Legislative Auditor during the past year and from his previous experience with State budgets and State administration, a distinct contribution and assistance has been made in preparing the budget which the Governor-elect has welcomed.

The Budget Committee, when it instructed the Legislative Auditor to participate in the budget hearings, also directed him to secure all possible facts as respects appropriation requests and to make a further analysis thereof and to present these to the Legislative Budget Committee at their subsequent meetings. The information thus secured will be used, together with the data collected previously concerning each department and agency, in reviewing the executive budget and in considering the Budget Bill and such other appropriation bills as come before the Legislature.

It was felt by the Budget Committee that the procedure above outlined would result in securing a more economical and satisfactory budget document to be presented by the Governor in the first instance to the Legislature, and also that the Legislative Budget Committee can effectively review the executive budget and consider the Budget Bill and such other special appropriation bills as come before the Legislature with a minimum of effort. This will follow from the fact that the original budget document itself will reflect much of the information secured by the Legislative Budget Committee and passed on to the Governor-elect during the budget hearings. This should result in mutual agreement on many items in the budget and in first-hand knowledge concerning the decisions made by the Governor-elect on other items. With this information and other necessary facts the Legislative Budget Committee can recommend to the Legislature such action as the facts demonstrate to be desirable.

In this way the consideration of the Governor's budget should be reduced to a much shorter period of time than has been customary in the past. This bottleneck in legislative operations, where the Constitution provides that no appropriation bill, other than an urgency measure, can be considered before the Budget Bill is passed, will be removed. Legislative business will be expedited. Moreover, the final appropriation bill should provide for all necessary appropriations on a more fair and equitable basis. The legislative session should be considerably shortened and a greater degree of understanding of appropriation requests exist, and resultant harmony in legislation should prevail.

Final Budget Requests Being Further Analyzed

Due to loss of technical staff, the Legislative Auditor has had to personally analyze all budget requests and participate in all budget hearings. This has required a suspension of practically all other activity. It has also required all possible available time. Revised budgets to be submitted by State agencies where original budgets were inadequate have delayed final consideration. In addition, the final consideration of budget requests by the Governor-elect will extend throughout at least the first two weeks of the legislative session, and other detailed consideration until approximately January 20th, so that the final budget document will not go to the printer until about January 25th.

Complying with a request of the Committee immediately after the completion of final consideration by the Governor-elect on any department's or agency's budget, a copy of the final typed form is sent to the Legislative Auditor and an analysis of this final form by the Auditor is under way.

Subsequent reports will be made to the Legislative Budget Committee on these several final budgets, using information and facts secured in the regular studies conducted by the Legislative Auditor, and these final recommendations will be available progressively for the use of the Legislature in acting upon the Budget Bill.

Respectfully submitted.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

Budget Message

To the Senate and the Assembly of the State Legislature of California

In conformance with the duty imposed by the Constitution of the State, I herewith submit for your consideration the budget for the biennium beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1945.

It may be that further economies can be effected during the biennium after we have had opportunity for more detailed study. I say this because, in my opinion, it is impossible for any incoming Governor to make what I consider to be an accurate and detailed analysis of budgetary problems within the short interval of time allowed.

Between election and taking office, the incoming Governor must make whatever analysis he can, for the time after taking office is required for assembly and printing of the budget. It is my belief that provision should be made for the elapse of a greater length of time before an incoming Governor must complete and submit his initial budget.

During the short period of time available to prepare and present this document, I have relied very largely upon the staff of the Department of Finance which has been faithful to its task. In all of our budget hearings we have exchanged views with your Legislative Auditor and feel indebted to him for many valuable suggestions.

The budget which I now submit has been compiled in a period of war and for a State which is an important contributor to the war effort of the Nation. It is a budget influenced by war economy. In total recommended expenditures it calls for $463,947,005 for the operation of State Government. This represents a decrease of $64,264,452 from the actual and estimated total for the present biennium and is $133,054,145 below the estimated total revenue of the State during the two-year period beginning July 1, 1943.

Executive Policies

In compiling the budget certain general policies were adopted. This is a necessary procedure in order to assure that some semblance of standard practice may be established and uniform treatment accorded all State agencies. These general policies are briefly indicated in the following:

The budget is based on the premise that the war will continue through the biennium.

The general principle upon which the budget is predicated is that war essential services are to be adequately provided for and lesser essential services curtailed.

In those departments performing war functions or where the work load is accentuated by the war, the appropriations recommended consider the facts as applying throughout the period.

Due to war conditions curtailment has been advisable in some agencies. In all items of reduction, consideration has been given the need for protecting the investment of the State in organization, trained man power and physical assets.

Expansion of departments or functions not directly connected with the war effort has been eliminated.

Only such functions have been included as are now authorized by statute. Appropriations are provided for these functions in accordance with the indicated intent of past Legislatures.

In every budget involving personnel, an allowance has been made for the $15 emergency increase approved by the Personnel Board effective July 1, 1942.

War conditions have reduced building construction to an absolute minimum. No requests were considered unless priorities were in hand or could be reasonably expected.

In developing this budget I have laid considerable emphasis upon the elimination of waste and red tape, and also the development of operating economies. Many departments will not fill vacant positions.

The recommended appropriations are based on a curtailment of travel in order that additional relief may be given to transportation facilities.

War Problems of State Government

The impact of global war has had a tremendous influence upon the State of California. The transition from peace to war production; the migration of workers from other States into our manufacturing areas; the intensity of the National program of civilian, war factory, and coastal defense; the transportation of materials and men; the safeguarding of public health; and the draft of man power have all had a broad and disturbing influence upon the operations of normal State Government.

The State is responding to these changes in creating and developing new agencies for defense, and by imposing upon all of its civil and protective units such functions as are deemed to contribute to the general betterment of the lot of all the people of the State. In addition, many of the departments will assume responsibilities for the execution of powers delegated by the war agencies of the Federal Government.

The financial program of the State may require adjustment time after time, until we are able to meet the challenge of these problems. Some of the departments have been curtailed and as we progress further into the biennium more drastic curtailments may be made. Man power should be flexible and the assignment of employees to the most essential tasks should be permitted.

War Agency Study Continues

I wish to call special attention at this time to the probability that I may have something further to report in connection with the budgets of four agencies of government which are now involved in reorganization studies. These are: Civilian Defense, State Guard, Division of Forestry, and the Department of Public Health. Studies are under way which may materially alter present tentative recommendations.

While we are in the process of reorganizing the civilian defense program of the State, I deemed it advisable to ask for the amount requested for the existing State Council of Defense. Since the figures were not developed in connection with an analysis of needs under proposed reorganization, a supplemental statement will doubtless be required.

This same consideration should be applied to the State Guard budget of $15,100,000. The Adjutant General is now conducting a preliminary survey which is likely to lead to new recommendations in weeks to come.

It is likewise entirely probable that I may have some new recommendations to make in regard to the budget of the Division of Forestry when studies have been completed.

Likelihood also exists that there may be an additional report required for the Department of Public Health. The protection of the health of the communities of California and the rendering of health facilities for Selective Service and the armed forces is a duty of vital importance. I have recommended an increase of $300,000 from the General Fund for the Department of Public Health. The recommended increase does not cover any transfer of the functions heretofore supported by Federal funds to the General Fund.

Industrial Relations

Another agency which is performing an essential war service is the Department of Industrial Relations. The character of the war service performed is in reality an expansion of its normal function. The quick development of great war industries hiring thousands of workers has necessitated additional safety engineers to protect the workers against hazards of employment. An upward trend in accidents has increased the work resulting from the operation of the Workmen's Compensation and Safety Act.

The housing congestion in defense areas has caused an increase in the Division of Immigration and Housing. In cooperation with other governmental authorities the trailer and auto camp problems must be solved. The Division of Industrial Welfare budget has been adjusted to care for the problems of women in industry. The over-all increase recommended for the Department of Industrial Relations is $300,000.

Highway Patrol

The Highway Patrol has been operating on a much expanded program due primarily to the war effort. The principal war functions may be enumerated as follows: regulation of traffic within reduced speed limits; patrol for the prevention of sabotage; participation in the scrap metal drives; regulation of traffic in congested manufacturing areas; enforcement of dim-out regulation; coastal patrol, convoying the transporting of men and materials; and training of auxiliary patrol. This program required an expenditure greatly in excess of the funds provided by a declining revenue. In view of the condition of the fund, I am recommending an appropriation $1,250,000 below the actual and estimated expenditures for the current biennium. Despite this decrease the Motor Vehicle Support Fund will show a deficit of $850,000 at the end of the biennium. It is necessary therefore for me to request that you appropriate an additional 4 per cent of the registration fees for the support of the department or provide a similar amount from some other source of revenue.

Education—University and State Colleges

There are several current factors affecting the educational system of our State. Enrollments have declined on the University campuses from 28,000 a year prior to the war to an estimated 15,000 at the start of the next school year. The seven State colleges have experienced a similar decline. War needs may effect further decreases.

The budgets recommended for support of the University and State colleges have been reduced to $29,950,000 which is a decrease of $3,200,000 from current expenditures in line with the indicated trend in enrollments. The sum recommended is commensurate with reduced enrollments only in so far as reductions are possible without damage to the institutions.

The recommended budget includes an increase of $60,000 for support of the California Maritime Academy. This increase is occasioned by the moving of this institution to its new base at Morrow Cove where more suitable quarters have been provided.

Previously the Polytechnic School received all its support from horse racing revenues. With the curtailment of revenue from this source, it was necessary to transfer support of this school to the General Fund. An amount of $528,000 will thus become a liability of the General Fund.

Highways

The administration of the State Highway System presents a serious financial problem, due to the greatly increased burden of heavy war and industrial traffic, and the unprecedented reduction in gasoline tax. The elimination of Federal aid represents a further loss of approximately $9,800,000. The funds available for State highway purposes, as shown by this budget, will be reduced about $34,000,000.

There are sections of State highway now beyond the point where their useful condition can be preserved by ordinary maintenance. Since these highways are essential to the war effort, reconditioning will be necessary. This will constitute an extraordinary, but necessary demand on the reduced highway funds. Only small amounts will be left for engineering, planning, and acquisition of rights of way for postwar work on urgently needed highway projects.

Youth Correction Authority

This new agency has been organized to provide a better means of training youths both to cure and prevent delinquency. During the present biennium the Authority has operated only to a very limited extent. For the next biennium I have recommended an appropriation of $378,000. This amount will permit the Authority to operate diagnostic and classification clinics; guidance and prevention work; parole and after care; and training and custody in work camps. At the present time the Authority is contracting with the Federal Forest Service for farm and forest work. These camps will assist the war effort in providing man power to raise goods for rubber. Funds provided by the Federal Government will enable the Authority to finance a program involving the expenditure of $1,300,000. Over 500 youths will participate in the program.

Revenue has been estimated in excess of $300,000 for charges to counties for youths committed to the Authority. It is my belief that the amount of this budget and the expanded program of assuming actual custody and care of present county charges should be dependent upon the enactment of statutory authority fixing the financial obligation on the counties.

Institutions and Prisons

I am recommending appropriations totaling $32,500,000 to provide for the institutions and prisons of the State. This represents an increase of $1,250,000. These agencies will provide for the care and maintenance of 37,000 persons during the next biennium. Commodity price increases; increased population in mental institutions and correctional schools; full period operations of recently constructed units; added personnel for maintenance of buildings; increased expenditures on institutional farms; and additional fire protection provided for the agencies have necessitated this increase.

With the development of the Youth Correction Authority into an active agency, I am proposing a further expansion of its influence. I would ask that you consider the advisability of transferring the three correctional schools—Preston School of Industry, Fred C. Nelles School for Boys, and Ventura School for Girls—from the Department of Institutions to the Authority.

Social Welfare

The regular activities of the Department of Social Welfare are recommended at an increased amount of $375,000. This increase is not brought about by expansion but originated from continuation of positions authorized in the current biennium and extension of emergency salary adjustments. While a noticeable decrease in the case loads of the categorical aids is estimated for the next biennium, a comparable decrease is not reflected in administrative expenditures of the department because its duties are more of a supervisory nature and are not directly in ratio to the case loads.

The special activities of the department consisting of WPA, Stamp Plan and Surplus Commodities have been eliminated from this budget with the exception of an amount of $440,000 for a restricted program of warehousing surplus commodities for the school lunch program. This represents a cut of $1,000,000 from the request for Surplus Commodity Distribution.

Personnel Problems

Government today is confronted by labor problems very similar to those confronting industrial establishments. There has been a substantial increase in labor turnover. Hundreds of State employees have been granted military leave to enter the armed forces of our Country. Thousands have accepted employment in war industries. Records show that 8,200 resignations from State service were filed during the period of eight months ending with October, 1942.

This situation in man power has increased the number of unfilled positions until it can be recognized as a measurable factor in the amounts required for salaries and wages. In preparing this budget it has been assumed that the number of vacancies will continue to be abnormally high in the coming biennium and this fact has been taken into account.

As a means of maintaining morale among State employees by recognizing the increase in cost of living, and to retain the personnel essential to government operations, provision has been made for the continuation of the emergency salary increase recently granted State employees. Conditions are changing very rapidly and the amount of the increase merits further study and investigation. The $15 allowance now in effect amounts to some $10,000,000 for the next biennium and is a significant factor in the budget total.

In all probability the employment problems of State Government will become more critical during the coming months. At the present time State employees are not paid for overtime work. It is common practice in private industry to meet labor shortages by extending the hours of labor and making commensurate adjustments in salaries or wages. This principle has recently been adopted by the Federal Government and other public agencies. I am recommending that you give consideration to granting statutory authority to pay for overtime work when required by depletion of man power but in so doing it is my belief we should conform with National policy in regard to the 40-hour week.

Motor Vehicle Appropriation

Because of the unsettled conditions no allowance had been recommended for any motor vehicles in General Fund departments. During the current year the class of small cars has been frozen for purchase by the armed forces. It will be necessary to take definite steps to conserve cars now owned by the State. Some discretion should be exercised in determining whether or not cars should be purchased for the lesser essential services. Since such a determination can not be made at this time it has been deemed advisable to recommend one amount of $250,000 to be appropriated at the disposal of the Department of Finance, to be used to the best advantage of the State General Fund departments when necessary for the purchase and maintenance of automotive equipment.

Payments and Grants to Local Governments

As a result of wartime conditions, payments and grants by the State to local units of government will be substantially lower during the coming biennium than in the current two-year period. Shifting conditions and not State policy have caused the change in outlook. Factors underlying the decline are temporary in nature and illustrate how definitely our fiscal programs have been thrown into a state of flux by the war. It is estimated that these State costs will total $250,000,000 during the 1943-1945 biennium—a decrease of $35,000,000.

The demands of industry and the armed forces upon students in our secondary schools will result in lower school enrollments and decreased State expenditures for school support during the coming two fiscal years. A similar disruption exists in the case of expenditures for aid to needy aged, blind and children. Sharp decreases will be noted in the apportionments of motor vehicle taxes and fees and in gasoline tax.

Any appraisal of the State's fiscal position and financial outlook must take into consideration the fact that these decreases in requirements and revenue are wholly artificial; that the postwar reaction must be met largely from the State General Fund and that over 98 per cent of these items are General Fund obligations fixed by law.

Improvements in Accounting Methods

Since the enactment of the retail sales tax in 1933, the State has been counting as cash and including as part of its assets, money which was not, in fact, received until after the close of its fiscal year. This money would not be available to pay any bills due at that time and the practice is not applied with respect to other State taxes.

From the viewpoint of consistency the accounting for all sources of revenue should be identical. In the interests of better financial reporting, the State should count as income only the cash actually received in the Treasury during each fiscal year, leaving to the subsequent period any revenue in the hands of its taxpayers but not as yet carried in the State's accounts. This practice is fully applied beginning with the present budget by reporting sales and use tax receipts upon a cash basis.

Another change relates to the accounting of State revenue. In the past, receipts from the retail sales and use taxes, the alcoholic beverage taxes, and the personal income tax have been treated as revenue for special funds, with the expenditures for administration of these levies being accounted as special fund costs. Only the net receipts after payment of administrative charges have been considered General Fund revenues. In the case of all other principal general levies, receipts have been treated as General Fund resources, with administrative charges being met through appropriations from the General Fund. As a result of this varying treatment as between different sources of revenue, there has been no clear-cut distinction between General Fund operations and those of the various special funds. This situation is remedied in the present budget. This change will not affect any limitations existing in present laws with respect to the amounts which may be expended in the collection of these taxes.

Estimated Revenue

California's State Government is at present passing through a period of unprecedented high revenue income. The tremendous stimulant of war expenditures has produced a volume of tax income which surpasses anything that might have been expected solely on the basis of previous experience. By its very nature, this flow of revenue into the State Treasury can not be long continued at its present level. As wartime excesses give way to restrictions, and the productive power of the Nation is fully concentrated upon the material of war, a contraction in several important sources of State revenue will be inevitable. It is therefore highly important that the State's financial outlook be judged not so much in the light of what has happened in the last two years, as by what is probable for the coming two years.

Although the swift developments of war and the far-reaching impact of wartime activity upon normal civilian life make it extremely difficult to forecast the State's revenue for the 1943-1945 biennium with a high degree of accuracy or assurance, it now appears that receipts from existing revenue sources during the biennium will total $597,000,000. As compared with the $676,000,000 actual and estimated total for the current two-year period, this represents a reduction of $79,000,000. It is, however, substantially more than has been recorded in any biennium except the one now in progress.

General Fund receipts during the 1943-1945 biennium from existing taxes are projected at $468,000,000, as compared with $497,000,000 actual and estimated for the current two-year period. In view of the dislocations within the State's economic structure as a result of the war, this $29,000,000 reduction in General Fund revenue may appear surprisingly moderate. The resources of the General Fund are broad and varied and will reflect the emergency conditions in different ways and in varying degrees. For example, although sales tax revenue will decrease as a result of restrictions upon civilian consumption, it is expected that the losses at this point will be offset to some degree by gains in the yield of such levies on income as the bank and corporation franchise tax and the personal income tax.

Special fund revenue, conversely, rests for the most part upon charges incident to the ownership and operations of motor vehicles. Because production of motor vehicles for civilian use has been discontinued, while operation will be restricted under gasoline rationing, it is likely that motor vehicle tax revenue will fall off sharply in the coming biennium. In total, special fund receipts are estimated at $129,000,000 for 1943-1945, a decrease of $49,600,000 from the total estimated in the current period.

General Fund Financial Condition

With revenues of $468,000,000 estimated for the 1943-1945 biennium, and expenditures recommended or required under existing law in the amount of $330,000,000, current operations of the State General Fund are well within balance. The excess of anticipated revenue over prospective disbursements in the coming period is $138,000,000. It should be noted that this projected operating surplus is based upon expenditures contemplated in this budget and estimated revenue from taxes now in force, without modification. Tax reduction or increased expenditures would, of course, reduce this figure.

In addition to the surplus arising out of operations in the coming biennium, the State will carry forward a $90,000,000 General Fund surplus as a result of excess income during the 1941-1943 biennium. In total, therefore, the anticipated General Fund surplus on June 30, 1945, is $228,000,000. This situation is of such importance in the fiscal management of the State, and represents such a vast change from the conditions which have prevailed during the past 12 years, a further analysis of the total is in order. Briefly, this may be summarized as follows:

General Fund Deficit June 30, 1941.....	$66,000,000 00
Revenue, 1941-1943 .....	$497,000,000 00
Expenditures, 1941-1943 .....	341,000,000 00
Operating Surplus, 1941-1943 Biennium.....	156,000,000 00
General Fund Surplus, June 30, 1943, Estimated.....	$90,000,000 00
Revenue, 1943-1945, Estimated.....	$468,000,000 00
Expenditures, 1943-1945, Estimated.....	330,000,000 00
Operating Surplus, 1943-1945 Biennium.....	138,000,000 00

The General Fund Surplus

A surplus of $228,000,000 in the State General Fund is a matter of serious concern. It constitutes a sacred trust for those who have the power to spend, for it has been collected from all the people and should be expended or preserved only for uses which will redound to the benefit of all.

In the consideration of this sum, we will be wise if we consider it the foam cast up by intense war activity and not the natural product of our normal tax system. It is generated by an activity which can be cut off as quickly as it started.

In times such as these it is not safe to trifle with fundamentals. This reasoning should, in my opinion, be applied both to expenditures and taxation. Unless we are extremely careful in our expenditures at this particular time of surplus, we will be fixing standards of expenditure which will be difficult to change as time progresses. We must remember that when the first reaction comes we will not only have to take care of new needs but also the false standards fixed during this period of apparent prosperity. We should also be careful in our treatment of the tax structure, particularly its base, for when both revenue and obligations shift, we will need all the experience we have gained during both the good years and the bad to carry on the progressive government demanded by our people.

The present surplus—that which will accrue by June 30, 1943—is admittedly the product of unusual circumstances. A part of the total is, in fact, borrowed from the future. It arose, in part, through the rush of our citizens to purchase today what they knew would not be available for purchase tomorrow. The sales tax thus generated is already in the State Treasury and there will be a reaction evidenced by decreased tax collections in coming months.

A part of the present and prospective surplus arises through the postponement of building construction at State institutions and at other agencies where facilities are needed. This cessation and delay of building is but another product of the war. When we eliminated capital outlay from the present State budget, it was not done as a matter of desired policy. It was done only as a matter of war requirement and with full recognition of the responsibility of fitting such construction into the postwar program.

It is my hope that the Legislature will take such action as is required to insure the use of portions of this surplus for needed institutional construction during the postwar period. In this connection it may also be found advisable to survey the possibility of saving the State large rental fees resulting from the leasing of properties in several cities.

Another part of the anticipated surplus, especially that in prospect as a result of operations in the 1943-1945 biennium, is the product of reductions in State payments to local governments for the maintenance of schools and support of social welfare programs. These by-products of war activity will vanish at the end of the current conflict and expenditures required by law for these purposes will again increase at least to previous levels.

War Catastrophe Reserve

There is another way in which I believe a huge sum of surplus money could be put to protective use at this time. This State has been designated as a potential combat area. Within the State are great war plants—necessary and vital to the success of the war. These plants are serving an indispensable purpose. They are, however, lures for attack from our enemies. The State is concerned with the lives and safety of its people and the protection of their property. Every governmental unit in the State has formally established an agency to protect and defend our life and property. Thousands of volunteer workers now are trained and ready for any eventuality. Should an attack or invasion occur, the State Government must be ready. It is, therefore, my recommendation that a "War Catastrophe Reserve" of $25,000,000 be set aside at the disposal of the War Council to be used, only in case of an actual bombing or invasion, for the relief of suffering among the peoples of this State.

It is my earnest hope that no part of this amount will be needed for the purpose to which I am requesting that it be dedicated. Should it not be required for this desperate use, it could later be released to contribute to the financing of postwar programs.

Tax Reduction

It is fortunate that the present and prospective financial condition of State Government is such as to allow both the creation of adequate resources and tax reduction. I have, as you know, appointed a Citizens Advisory Committee to investigate and recommend upon the possibility of reducing State taxes. This body is actively at work, and will collaborate with your committees. When its recommendations are received, I shall communicate with you further upon the matter of tax reductions. The committee expects to report by March 15th.

It shall be my purpose and the purpose of all departments of State Government to extend you every assistance possible in your task for analyzing this budget and our State fiscal problems.

Respectfully submitted.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, MARCH 8, 1943

To the Honorable Members of the Senate, State of California, Sacramento, California.

GREETINGS. Pursuant to the provisions of Section 312 of the Political Code of the State of California, you are hereby notified that on the tenth day of February, 1943, at 4 25 p.m., Senate Bill No. 3990 was introduced and read in English, and together with a statement of my objections thereto, were delivered to J. A. Reek, Secretary of the Senate. A copy of the statement mentioned is appended hereto.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor.

SACRAMENTO, FEBRUARY 1943

Sacramento, California.*

GREETINGS. I am returning herewith, without my signature, Senate Bill No. 3990, entitled: "An act to add Section 6781 1 to the Health and Safety Code, relating to the use of county assessor's rolls by sanitary district boards and the filing of resolutions by such boards declaring election of such use, declaring the urgency of this act, to take effect immediately."

My objections to this bill are as follows:

The object of this bill is to grant district boards of sanitary districts organized under Division 6 of the Health and Safety Code additional time within which to make the election provided in Section 6780 and to avail itself of the county assessment roll as the same appears on March 1, 1943, instead of February 1, 1943. As it is drawn, the board is limited upon making such election to accepting the assessment roll of the county assessor. As all utility properties are assessed by the State Board of Equalization and not by the county assessor, utility properties would be exempt from taxation. This was clearly not the intention.

Senate Bill No. 9, which became effective as Chapter 7 of the Statutes of 1943 on January 25, 1943, sufficiently provides such districts the time and the authority to accomplish the object sought by this bill.

As the bill does not fulfill its intended purpose, the author has requested me to return it to you without my signature.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor.

CONSIDERATION OF GOVERNOR'S VETO

Governor's message stating his objections read.

The question being: Shall Senate Bill No. 3990 become a law notwithstanding the objections of the Governor?

The roll was called, and the Senate sustained the objections of the Governor by the following vote:

AYES—None.

NOES—Senators Biggar, Breed, Brown, Collier, Cunningham, DeLap, Deuel, Dingler, Donnelly, Engle, Fletcher, Gordon, Jaspersen, Judah, Luckey, Mayo, McBride, McCormack, Mixer, Parkman, Powers, Quinn, Rich, Salsman, Seawell, Slater, Swan, Swing, Tenney, Tickle, and Ward—31.

COMMUNICATIONS

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, March 8, 1943

*Honorable Frederick F. Houser, Lieutenant Governor
Members of the Senate of the State of California*

GENTLEMEN: I have just returned from the Sunkist Valleys of Southern California, the Orange Empire of the State. The growers of citrus fruits are suffering as much, if not more, from the lack of available labor than any other farming industry. The crops are now ready to harvest, but no labor available with which to pick or process the fruit. The situation is drastic. Millions of dollars are invested in crops and in the citrus industry.

As I traveled through the orange growing district, I was appealed to on every hand "to do something" to help the citrus grower harvest his crop. The crops are mature. Delay in picking will result in untold losses.

Typical of the situation is the communication received by me just before leaving home. It is hereto attached and made a part of this communication. It speaks for itself and does not overstate the situation.

The matter is brought to your attention at the opening of this session because, before the session is over, we, as a legislative body must, through proper authority, help solve the problem which the Federal bureaus and administrators are so shamefully neglecting.

At a later date I hope, with your cooperation, to propose a plan for relieving not only the citrus growers but the agricultural industry of the State.

Respectfully,

RALPH E. SWING

UPLAND HEIGHTS ORANGE ASSOCIATION

UPLAND, CALIFORNIA, March 3, 1943

*Honorable Ralph E. Swing
San Bernardino, California*

DEAR RALPH: I am going to make this just as short a letter as I possibly can for I know that you have plenty to do.

Briefly this, the citrus grower must have some help with the picking of their oranges and lemons or all are sunk. Of course there are other things besides harvesting a crop in farming, but that is the main thing now. I have been trying to grow a few oranges for a long time and at its best it is not always a bed of roses. Weather conditions, pest control and the market must be right before the grower will see any money at all. He takes all these things as a matter of course and never says a word when things go wrong, but when our Government officials assure us that we will have help from Mexico in the way of pickers and not to worry, we naturally expect it.

We have done everything asked at this end—absolutely nothing done by those who said not to worry. Many of the people in this business are elderly. Those who have worked hard and long hours thinking they could take it a little easy, as they should. Many past 70 years, numerous women, 20 in our association alone, which is not large in membership. Eighty per cent of these are elderly. They can not go out with a picking sack and pick this crop of oranges and lemons. I know, I tried.

It is serious. Nothing like this in the 56 years I have been at it. We must have some help and we believe you know the situation better than anyone we can think of. You, with your long years in the Senate, together with Governor Earl Warren, can stop some of their double cross work before all here go broke and then on relief, which will surely happen in some cases. Many people are under the impression that the citrus growers are all large land owners. That is not the case, 90 per cent are of the 5-, 10-, and 20-acre class.

Today one of our orange pickers turned in his clippers and picking sack. It seems that he works a shift at the Ontario Air Depot and after he had completed his shift, he came here and worked the few remaining hours of the day. This morning he was told that he would have to quit picking oranges or quit down there. Now what kind of business would you call that? The Government is asking for more food and the farmer is doing his best to get it for them. Working longer hours than the men who are trying to push them around ever dreamed of doing.

I know you will go after this thing, we look to you. You, of course, can not do the impossible, but in all the years you have never let us down.

Very truly,

KIRK VERNON

Senate Resolution No. 64

Relative to the creation of a committee to consider methods of expediting legislation and eliminating duplicating functions.

WHEREAS, Many legislative proposals involve problems within the jurisdiction of more than one standing committee of the Senate and the subsequent consideration of such measures requires the cooperation of such several committees in order to speed duplicating the work of one such committee by another; and

Resolved, That the members of the committee shall serve without compensation and shall not be allowed mileage; and be it further

Resolved, That the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby made available from the Contingent Fund of the Senate for the expenses of the committee and for any charges, expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be paid from the Contingent Fund of the Senate and disbursed, after certification by the chairman of the committee, or if incurred by a subcommittee, by the member or members of such subcommittee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were received, read, and, on motion of Senator Seawell, ordered printed in the Journal:

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, March 7, 1943

Honorable Jerrold L. Seawell
President Pro Tempore, Senate Chambers

GOVERNMENT CODE

DEAR SENATOR SEAWELL: The California Code Commission prepared a series of bills for presentation to this session of the Legislature establishing a Government Code. These bills were introduced by Senators Fletcher and Burns, and comprise Senate Bills 912 to 918, inclusive, Senate Bills 920 to 922, inclusive, and Senate Bill 958.

While all of these bills are concerned with one integrated program, and each bill is correlated to the others, all of the bills were not referred to one committee but were distributed over four different committees. It does not appear possible to explain adequately any one particular bill of this series without reference to all of the other bills.

In order to permit the consideration of all of the bills together, we have suggested to Senators Fletcher and Burns, the authors of the Government Code bills, that all of the bills not now before the Committee on Governmental Efficiency be re-referred to the Governmental Efficiency Committee, as that is the committee to which Senate Bill 958, the main code bill, has been referred. In line with this suggestion we have written to Senator Cunningham, Chairman of the Local Government Committee, Senator DeLap, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and Senator Biggar, Chairman of the Labor Committee, to each of whose committees some of the Government Code bills were referred, requesting their consent to the re-reference of the Government Code bills to the Committee on Governmental Efficiency.

Specifically, we are suggesting that the following action be taken if it meets with the approval of all concerned:

Bills	From	To
S. B. 913	Judiciary	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 914	Local Government	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 916	Judiciary	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 918	Local Government	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 920	Labor	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 921	Judiciary	Governmental Efficiency
S. B. 922	Judiciary	Governmental Efficiency

The following bills are before the Committee on Governmental Efficiency and no further action need be taken with respect to their committee assignment:

S. B. 958, main code bill
S. B. 912
S. B. 915
S. B. 917

Very sincerely yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Secretary
By ARTHUR M. HUSE, Assistant Secretary

REPORT OF INTERIM COMMITTEE

Senator Swing moved that the following Report of the Interim Committee Appointed to Study the State Employment Retirement System be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

Mr. President and Members of the Senate:

The committee appointed under Senate Resolution No. 158 at the Regular Session of the California Legislature in 1941 for the purpose of studying the status of the State Employees Retirement System and to recommend to the Legislature any necessary changes begs leave to report as follows:

Your committee held sessions in Sacramento on May 18, 1942, and in San Francisco on November 19, 1942, in addition to conferences that were held by the Chairman with Mr. Earl W. Chapman, Executive Secretary of the State Employees Retirement System; Mr. John J. Hamlyn, Counsel of the California State Employees Association; Mr. Jack H. Leam, former President of the C. S. E. A.; as well as conferences with various groups connected with the C. S. E. A. and Senator Ralph E. Swing, a member of this committee.

At the meeting in Sacramento on May 18, 1942, exhaustive testimony was taken from Mr. John J. Hamlyn, as well as testimony from Mr. Jack Leam and considerable testimony from Mr. Thomas Stanton, President of the Board of Administration of the State Employees Retirement System; Mr. Earl Chapman, Executive Secretary of the Retirement System; and Mr. Rane L. Rothschild, Investment Adviser of the Department of Finance; and Mr. R. G. Carpenter, representing the League of California Cities.

At the San Francisco meeting on November 19, 1942, further testimony was taken from Messrs. Chapman and Hamlyn, as well as from Mr. Donald Gallagher, member of the Board of Management of the Life Retirement System; and Mr. Ralph Nelson, Actuary for the Life Retirement Plan.

Your committee wishes to acknowledge excellent cooperation at every stage in its investigations from the Board of Management of the Life Retirement Plan, headed by Mr. Stanton, and from Mr. Earl W. Chapman, Executive Secretary.

On the suggestion of the committee, and in anticipation of recommendations to the Legislature for changes in the Retirement Law, Mr. Hamlyn, as Counsel for the California State Employees Association, made a complete canvass of the employees throughout California for the purpose of ascertaining their attitude toward an increase in the participating amounts paid by each of them in connection with any plan that would increase service retirement allowances and disability retirement allowances for California State employees. Under date of December 14, 1942, Mr. Hamlyn in a letter to the Chairman of the committee said: "This will confirm my statement made to your committee at its meeting in San Francisco, November 20, 1942, namely, that it would appear from our canvass of the votes by the various chapters of the Association that the membership is overwhelmingly in favor of the three proposed changes in the State Employees Retirement Act, which were previously presented to your committee. Under date of October 7, 1942, and following the first meeting of your committee, we prepared and sent to each of the presidents of the 70 chapters of the Association a letter transmitting a ballot—the returns, all of which are now in, disclose that the membership of the Association is overwhelmingly in favor of all three proposals."

The proposals as made to the membership by Robert C. Thomas, Executive Secretary of the C. S. E. A., are as follows:

1. QUESTION—Shall the Retirement Act be amended to increase contributions of both the State and the employee so as to provide retirement payments at age 60 equal to one-sixtieth of the employee's average pay during his last five years of employment multiplied by the number of years of service?

(EXPLANATION—At present the contributions are computed to produce retirement payments equal to one-seventieth at age 65. It is not proposed to change the compulsory retirement age of 70 or the voluntary age of 65, or the voluntary age of 60 with 20 years of service. Under present law an employee must work 35 years to be entitled at age 65 to a retirement allowance equal to one-half of his average pay for the last five years.

If the above change is made, it would mean that the employee would be entitled to one-half of his pay after 30 years of service and at age 60. The State now contributes $4,301,354 biennially to the Retirement System. This change could increase the State's contributions by $2,076,976. If this change is made, the individual employee's contribution would be increased approximately 50 per cent. In other words, an employee who now pays $5 a month into the Retirement System would, if the change is made, have his monthly contribution increased to approximately $7.50.)

2. QUESTION—Shall the Retirement Act be amended to provide for a death benefit of $150 for retired members?

(EXPLANATION—At present a death benefit is provided only for members who are still employed by the State. Provision for a death benefit to retired members would increase the biennial cost to the State by $137,167.40. There would be no increase in cost to the individual employee.)

3. QUESTION—Shall the Retirement Act be amended to provide for a minimum guaranteed retirement payment of $50 per month to employees who retire at age 70 or at 65 with 20 years of service?

(EXPLANATION—Under present law the minimum guarantee is $40 per month, and this only for employees who were in State service prior to January 1, 1942. This change would increase the biennial cost to the State by $89,014.50. There would be no increased cost to the individual employee.)

Taking up in sequence these three proposals, your committee has the following arguments to offer in support of their adoption and based on the data in Chapter of Senate Bill No. 35, which is before us at this session and which is in part based on Sections 65, 66, 70, 82, 83b, 84, 86, 88, 93, 108, and 109 of, and to add Section 100b to, the State Employees Retirement Act, relating to a retirement system for public employees.

In support of the first proposal for the increase of contributions of both the State and employee, so as to provide retirement payments at age 60 equal to one-sixtieth of the employee's average pay during his last five years of employment multiplied by the number of years of service, your committee believes that the records of the office of the Retirement System reveal in the payment of monthly allowances under service retirement and under disability retirement too low a ratio is given for the average person after retirement from the State service. The figures as of October, 1941, under the head of Service Retirement Allowances show that one of the allowances are $40 or less, over 57 per cent of the allowances are $50 or less, over 68 per cent of the allowances are $60 or less, over 81 per cent of the allowances are $80 or less. Under Disability Retirement Allowances as of October, 1941, over 48 per cent of the allowances are $40 or less, over 76 per cent of the allowances are $40 or less, over 84 per cent of the allowances are $60 or less, over 91 per cent of the allowances are $80 or less. Coming forward in the Service Retirement figures as of January, 1943, we find an increase of 2.2 per cent over October of 1941 where the allowances are $40 or less, an increase of 3 per cent where the allowances are $50 or less, an increase of 3 per cent where the allowances are $60 or less, and an increase of 2 per cent where the allowances are $80 or less, and in the Disability category we have a drop-off of 4 per cent where the allowances are $30 or less, and a drop-off of 3 per cent where the allowances are $40 or less, yet no change in the percentages where the allowances are $60 or less, and a drop off of 1 per cent where the allowances are $80 or less. The whole picture of monthly allowances under the Retirement Act reveals that our State employees at the present time, taken on the average, are spending in what from 20 to 35 years of their service in the State, with monthly contributions to a life retirement plan in partnership with the State, which is bringing to them upon retirement average amounts which are no more than the amounts now received by old-age assistance recipients in California in which the recipient contributes nothing. In January of this year there were 283 employees on retirement receiving between $41 and $40 per month. This is out of a grand total of 707 in the State receiving monthly allowances under service retirement. Only 17 of this total number were receiving above $150 per month, 89 were receiving between $41 and $50, 77 were receiving between $51 and $60. Only 20 out of the 707 total were receiving between $91 and $100. Out of a total of 286 retired employees receiving disability allowances $6 are receiving between $21 and $30 per month, only 75 are receiving between $31 and $40 per month, only four are receiving over $111 and up.

Your committee is very much in accord with the statement made by former President Jack Leam, of the California State Employees Association, appearing in the report to the Eleventh Annual General Council of the C S E A. in Sacramento on February 10, 1941, reading as follows:

A sound retirement system provides the State with a sure and just method of eliminating from its active forces those employees who have become incapable of performing their best work because of disability or superannuation. In the absence of a retirement system an aged or disabled employee is left in active service "as long as he can go through the motions." He is really not on the job, but the cost to the State of paying his full salary is charged to the current budget. To a very great extent, the State pays for a retirement system even though one is not established.

Your committee feels that the willingness shown by the great majority of the State employees to increase their participation in the Life Retirement Fund up to 50 per cent over what they are now paying is a healthy indication of an intense interest in the security which the employee feels in State service, and that the State should not hesitate to fulfill its partnership obligation in the matter. Present abnormal conditions in California, due to the demands on State employees for service in the armed forces, and resignations and leaves of absence, caused by employment in war industry, has meant a loss of about 3,000 State employees as of January 1, 1943. A turnover of about 7,000 in the 30,000 employees in the State was revealed as of June 30, 1942. Statements to the Chairman of your committee by Executive Secretary Earl W. Chapman of the State Retirement System would indicate that the existence of a retirement plan is a strong factor in retaining interest by the employee in his job despite allotments that are being held out for temporary wartime employment. This fact further emphasizes the importance to the State, both now and for future emergencies, of a strengthened retirement system with rates of payment more in line with the necessities for decent living.

Your committee is in full agreement with statements made by President Thomas E. Stanton of the Board of Administration of the State Retirement System as made at the meeting of the committee on May 18, 1942, at Sacramento in connection with the proposed payment of a death benefit of $150 for retired members. At present a death benefit is provided only for members who are still employed by the State. Mr. Stanton said that he believed that this payment was the least which the State should grant a faithful employee and particularly emphasizes the situation where an employee retires after 20 or more years' service and dies within a few days or months or even a few years after retirement. In such cases, under the present law, such a man's dependents or estate receive no return on the deceased individual's own contribution to the System made during the years he was an active employee. The committee concurs in Mr. Stanton's opinion that a $150 death benefit would at least partly defray burial expenses and was little enough as a State contribution for this purpose.

The committee feels that the present minimum payment of $40 per month to employees who retire at age 70 or at age 65 with 20 years of service is inadequate, if for no other reason than the argument that has been stated before in this report, and that is, that $40 is no more than the amount now paid in old age assistance in California to persons who in no sense participated themselves in creating the fund from which such money is received. Your committee therefore feels that the suggested payment of $50 as a minimum guarantee to employees who retire at age 70 or at age 65 with 20 years of service is more correct.

In conclusion, the committee has no hesitancy in reporting the opinion that the present Life Retirement System of the State is being excellently managed and is in a sound financial condition. The policy of the Board of Administration requires the investment of the money controlled by the System, in United States Government bonds and municipal issues of California cities. Testimony of Mr. Rothschild, the investment adviser, given at Sacramento at the meeting of May 18, 1942, was to the effect that interest now being received by these investments was adequate to support the full amount of benefit payments and operation costs of the System.

Out of an appropriation allowed for your committee of $750, we have spent a total of $422.22.

Respectfully submitted.

Senate Resolution No. 70

Relating to the memory of Honorable Louis Oneal

WHEREAS, The Members of the Senate have been deeply shocked and grieved to learn of the sudden passing of Honorable Louis Oneal, who so capably and faithfully served as State Senator from the Thirty-first District in the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Sessions of the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, Louis Oneal was born in Paradise Valley, Nevada, on November 24, 1874; came to California in 1889; was educated in the public schools of Nevada and California; was admitted to the practice of law in California; served the public as deputy district attorney of Santa Clara County, and as city justice in San Jose before becoming a State Senator; and

WHEREAS, Louis Oneal was not only a capable public servant but also an outstanding and well-known civic leader; and

WHEREAS, Louis Oneal will be remembered by hundreds of friends throughout his beloved West and in other parts of the Country for his charitable and democratic disposition; and

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, March 10, 1943

To the Senate of the State of California

GREETINGS: As mentioned in an earlier message to your honorable body, there has been in progress, under the direction of The Adjutant General, a detailed study of the State Guard problem in California.

This study is now complete and I am today transmitting the conclusions, which I have drawn from the facts thus developed.

Based upon the report of Adjutant General Ray W. Hays concerning both the present organization and the effectiveness of the State Guard, I have arrived at the conclusion that I must recommend that the active force of the State Guard be abolished unless the Federal Government grants deferment of its personnel and enables it to acquire adequate weapons, transportation, and means of communication.

Such action would, in my opinion, have to be followed by the restoration of the Guard to the status of the National Guard prior to its induction into Federal service—that is to say—that the State Guard should be recruited on the basis of community organization with State supervised training, and be available when called into service by the Governor for the protection of their own communities in times of greatest emergency.

The State Guard at the present time is not and can not be made effective for the protection of our State against organized sabotage or other dangers likely to arise in modern warfare.

The reasons for this conclusion are several:

1. The Federal Government can and equips the Guard with proper weapons and equipment for such service and the State is not permitted to do so either.

2. Heretofore it has been held that men under 38 years of age should be available for Guard service. The Selective Service Act just passed that will cover between 38 and 45 years of age in nonessential occupations must be redefined and made available for induction into regular military service or the essential war industry.

3. The Act of Congress permitting organization of State Guards essentially provides that: No person shall, by reason of his membership in any such unit, be exempted from military service under Federal law.

4. There is and for some time past has been a deficiency of 20 per cent per month in State Guard personnel which in itself has made it impossible to maintain an adequately trained body of men.

The Legislature, in January, 1942, authorized an active State Guard of 7,000 men and officers. At that time the membership was 3,017. It had never reached the number authorized by the Legislature. As of February 27, 1943, the active membership of the Guard was 5,280 enlisted men and 412 officers. Of this number, the appalling total of 696 were absent without leave, 98 were in confinement for military offenses, and an unknown number were sick in hospitals or in prison. Of the remaining number, 308 were enlisted women.

In the opinion of The Adjutant General, not more than 2,500 Guardsmen are available for duty and of this number a considerable percentage are physically or mentally incapable of performing any type of effective military service. The number of men fit for duty has dropped month by month since August, and it is only a question of a comparatively short time until there will be few, if any, fit-bodied alert men who will be available for active service in the Guard.

It had been my hope that we could have a small, well-trained, mobile active Guard unit which could be moved into any threatened area in time of emergency. No one could deny that such a force, in times like these, would be consistent with need but I do not believe under existing conditions that it is possible either to build or to maintain such an organization.

It is obvious that the Federal Government is not in a position to permit deferment to enable the State to build an active State Guard which could perform such a service. All of the other States of the Union have long since recognized this fact because the total number of Guardsmen in all the States combined is only a small percentage of the number now on active duty in California.

I have arrived at my conclusions relative to the State Guard because I know California and to her full part in the protection of life and property in this coastal area. However, I can not be satisfied with a mere gesture of security which is in the continuance of an active State Guard under present conditions would constitute. Neither General Hays nor I are willing to be responsible for the effectiveness of an organization which can not in the very nature of affairs be efficient.

If and when demobilization of the active State Guard is launched, I would suggest that it be accomplished in an orderly way over a period of months, during which period adequate means of protection could otherwise be developed. While this is going on, should the Federal Government alter its position on deferments and priorities for the Guard, I would suggest that the State remain in a position to recruit, organize, and equip a force of such size and number as you may determine to be required. If demobilization is completed, State property can be protected by The Adjutant General through the use of civilian Guardsmen.

The enthusiasm shown and the service rendered by the State Guard prior to December 7, 1941, as well as that of the military companies in the Militia since that date, convinces me that there is a great reservoir of the finest man power in the State which we can draw into a new Guard program. By permitting Guardsmen to engage in their normal occupations and by limiting their active service to times of great emergency and to the communities in which they reside and are organized, I believe we can develop an outstanding military organization. Such an organization could, in my opinion, be geared into and become an integral part of our civilian defense program which will be inaugurated under the War Powers Act which you approved in your January session.

Respectfully,

EARL WARREN, Governor

Motion carried.

Remarks of Senator Keating on the Occasion of the Adoption of Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 39, Relative to the Death of the Late Senator Charles F. Reindollar

In addition to the remarks that I have made regarding the life and kindly deeds of my late friend and your former colleague, the Honorable Charles F. Reindollar, on the occasion of asking you to adopt unanimously Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 39 in his memory, and to adjourn this day out of respect therefore I should like to express my regret that it is not a Senate resolution which we are today adopting, but rather an Assembly concurrent resolution, which was introduced on Friday last, while I was absent from the Legislature in attendance upon the funeral. I had prepared a resolution to be introduced today in the Senate, but upon appearing here found that Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 39 had already been introduced and adopted in the Assembly, and I therefore take it up rather than introduce my own resolution, in order to avoid a duplication of effort.

Senate Resolution No. 74

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California. That the attached telegram be forthwith sent to the Honorable Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., and that copies hereof be sent to the California Delegation in Congress:

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, March 15, 1943

*Hon. Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture

Lack of Federal cooperation in providing agriculture labor replacement and farm implement priorities is jeopardizing food production in California, discouraging crop planting and creating a state of general confusion among farming interests.

The uncertainty resulting from constant changing in Federal labor personnel and Federal farm policies in this State is such that the farmer fears to venture forward without some assurance of relief.

The Senate of the State of California respectfully requests information as to what is being done to meet the requirements of agriculture in California and what the farmer may expect in the way of labor and priorities.

It is imperative that we be forthwith advised how and when relief may be expected and how and what encouragement you can give the farmer that will enable him to solve his labor and priority problems and encourage him to proceed with food production with assurance that his efforts will not be futile and that farm labor and implements will be available when and as needed.

The situation is acute. Relief must be certain and immediate.

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That it is the sense of this body that it is unalterably opposed to the imposition of ceiling prices on live stock on the hoof and to the imposition of any additional burdens upon the production, processing and distributing of live stock; and, be it further

WESTERN MINING COUNCIL
AUBURN, CALIFORNIA, March 15, 1943

*Senator J. L. Seawell, President pro tempore
Senate Chamber, Capitol, Sacramento, California*

DEAR SENATOR: Would like to have you announce the Sacramento meeting of our council, an affiliation of all Northern California mining associations, to be held Tuesday evening, March 16th, 8 o'clock.

We will need the assistance of Legislators to go into the matter of a number of mining bills that have been introduced.

We would also like you to announce that Senator Scrugham of Nevada has been made chairman of a subcommittee on the United States Senate Committee to Investigate Small Business. His subcommittee will handle mining and he will be in California some time in April. His main objective will be to find out why the small mine operator is not participating in the mining of strategic minerals for the war effort, or why he is not being given an opportunity to do so. Our council has been asked to arrange his itinerary in Northern California and we would like the cooperation of Assembly Members in seeing that Senator Scrugham gets the information he wants. This matter will be on our program at the Sacramento meeting.

We understand that on the same evening (Tuesday) there is a reception to the new Sacramento city manager, which we presume will be attended by a number of Legislators. We will be getting well into our program by the time that adjourns, say 9 p.m., when we will be glad to have the members come to the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium and sit in with us.

Thanking you for this announcement I remain,

Sincerely,

J. P. HALL, President
Western Mining Council

MOTION TO PRINT IN THE JOURNAL

Senator Deuel moved that the following Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Penal and Correctional Institutions be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Penal and Correctional Institutions
To the Members of the Senate of the State of California:

Senate Resolution No. 152, adopted at the Fifty-fourth Session of the Legislature, provided for an interim committee of five Members of the Senate, to be termed "A Penal and Correctional Institutions Investigating Committee," and directed such committee to survey and study conditions at the State prisons at San Quentin and Folsom, the California Institution for Men at Chino, the California Institution for Women at Tehachapi, the Preston School of Industry at Ione, the Ventura School for Girls at Ventura, and the Fred C. Nelles School for Boys at Whittier.

As members of such committee there were appointed: Senator Charles H. Deuel, chairman; Senator John Harold Swan, Senator Oliver J. Carter, Senator Peter P. Myhand, Senator Frank L. Gordon. The committee named Senator John Harold Swan its secretary.

In pursuance of the terms of the resolution, the committee herewith presents its report.

General Survey of Prisons and Schools

The committee, during the year 1942, visited all the above named institutions, and through subcommittees, made special studies in addition at San Quentin and Folsom. It also met with the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles and with the State Board of Prison Directors. Several conferences with members of the Youth

Correction Authority proved highly informative and valuable. Heads of these institutions and their personnel, members of the two boards and of the Youth Correction Authority, were fully cooperative and placed at the use of the committee all information requested and proffered many suggestions which were helpful and constructive.

The committee approached its duties with the desire to acquire an understanding of the facts concerning the tremendous problems associated with crime and youth delinquency, to make constructive recommendations to the Legislature, and the institutions concerned, and to aid the public generally in obtaining a better understanding of a situation which affects so large a sector of our population. This knowledge most penological students realize is lamentably restricted.

The committee made no attempt to delve into past scandals and shortcomings which, too frequently the committee is led to believe, occupy the public mind with the result that the more important phases of the ever-present phenomena of delinquency and crime are given little study and are dismissed with little or no thoughtful attention to the work of uncovering causes and the application of remedial measures before the schools, jails, and prisons receive their inmates and the almost difficult task of rehabilitation is undertaken.

Youth Correction Authority

The committee feels that the State when it established the Youth Correction Authority made a great forward step in that phase of criminal control and prevention which deals with youth, that perpetual reservoir from which 99 per cent of criminals are recruited. It feels, also, that the powers given the Youth Authority should lead not only to prevention, but will prove a great factor in restoring to useful lives those capable of being rehabilitated. It is true that the authority is still in the stage of experimentation and that it will require the passage of years to demonstrate its true worth, but the committee feels, nonetheless, that the objects sought are soundly based and offer for the first time in the State's history something tangible as against the long cherished and still little can be done about those who transgress the laws except to confine them behind bars and brand them with the marks of disgrace which endure throughout their lives.

Institutional Population

In spite of the prevalence of the belief that the great war which we are now waging would lead to an increase in crime and delinquency, thereby increasing the population of the incarcerated, the contrary seems to prevail in California. The population of San Quentin and Folsom has decreased to a remarkable extent during the year 1942, thus relieving much of the overcrowding which has been deplorable during the last decade. The opening of the Institution for Men at Chino has relieved congestion somewhat but accounts for only a fraction. The authorities ascribe the favorable condition as relates to housing at these two major prisons to the abundance of opportunities for employment which have prevailed, and still prevail, throughout the Nation. The uplifting and those of weak character turn more easily to crime when idle than when busy at constructive labor. The decline in the population of correctional schools has not been so marked as in the prisons, the population being practically static at this writing. Probably greater efficiency in juvenile courts has had something to do with this, although some of our courts dealing with juveniles receive, without praise. All of the testimony given to the committee pointed to the relation between juvenile delinquency and broken or unsatisfactory homes and parental neglect or inadequacy. The committee was unable to establish that the war movement of parents, regarded by so many with alarm, resulted in any material increase in the numbers committed to these schools; on the contrary, it is likely that the increased earning power of many parents resulted in better conditions for their children and hence in less temptation to depart from the normal way of life.

Need for Closer Segregation

The committee came to the realization that all through these schools and prisons there prevailed a large sector of the population which needed to be more closely classified and segregated. Mental deficiencies and psychopathic tendencies afflict many inmates and are the primary cause of their failure to adjust themselves to normal life. These weaknesses are almost wholly congenital and must be so recognized. Dealing with this class in both the schools and prisons requires skill and understanding and is hopeless unless the patients are closely classified and intelligently segregated. Classification is proceeding at the schools and prisons to the extent possible with inadequate staffs, but any material degree of segregation is impossible until the public and the Legislature is impressed with the need and economy, both financially and socially, of a solution so far as is possible of a problem which must be recognized as one of the premises underlying the whole puzzling picture of delinquency and crime.

Sexual Deviates

So serious is one phase of inmate mentality, that relating to sex deviates, that immediate steps should be taken to segregate these in an institution to be created or at least in additional quarters within the present compounds. Much of the disorder which occasionally arises in the penal institutions, either singly or in groups, has its origin in the relations of sexual perverts, whose perversions are not understandable to the normal person, yet nevertheless exist. Segregation is the only practical remedy offered unless the State in confirmed cases should declare the individual's sexual powers forfeit to the surgeon's scalpel, which it is doubtful society in its present lack of knowledge of the situation, would condone.

Penal System Needs Reorganization

There is a definite need of greater cohesiveness in penal affairs in California, particularly as they relate to policies. The committee believes that an entire reorganization of the penal system is desirable. At the head of such a department should be placed a director skilled and trained in modern penological practices. He should be free from political control and should be chosen because of knowledge and experience and be in possession of forward looking and progressive motives.

At present, in California, the prisons and schools are controlled by diverse influences. Either progressive methods as to the control and discipline of inmates and their ultimate rehabilitation are sound or are not sound. Neither the State Board of Prison Directors or the wardens at San Quentin, Folsom or Chino are in entire harmony regarding policies. The correctional schools if brought under the control of the Youth Correction Authority, which they should be, will be under a unified administration with definite policies applying uniformly to all of them.

Conflicting Policies

Through their choice of wardens the State Board of Prison Directors more or less definitely establishes the policies prevailing at San Quentin and Folsom. At San Quentin the committee was most favorably impressed with the conduct of the institution under its present warden, Clinton T. Duffy. Warden Duffy has quickly established himself as one of the outstanding prison wardens in the United States. His knowledge of men, his treatment of them, his realization that his charges are entitled to good food and fair play coupled with humane discipline, have brought about improved conditions applicable both to the inmates and the prison system of the State. The Board of Prison Directors is to be commended for having chosen a man of Mr. Duffy's caliber as warden of this, one of the largest prisons in the United States.

At the San Quentin Prison the committee finds an atmosphere of harmony and cooperation between the prisoners and their guardians, eagerness to learn and to improve, completely fair treatment, and the minimum of helplessness and despair.

Folsom Atmosphere Contrasted

The committee senses at Folsom an entirely different prison atmosphere. The committee recognizes that in the two prisons there are two different types of inmates and is making due allowance for that. In the case of Mr. Duffy we discern a man who visions progress in penological affairs, and in the case of Mr. Plummer every interview with him left the committee with the impression that his policy was embraced in the French phrase, "laissez-faire," which may here be defined as "things are as they are, let them alone."

The committee feels that the recent reappointment of Warden Plummer was unfortunate in that it perpetuated internal discord. The committee feels that the reappointment was influenced by political expediency, and that it would have proven the better part of proper administration if the prison directors had seized the opportunity offered by the expiration of the term of Mr. Plummer to eradicate the factionalism which had theretofore existed and bring about harmony through the appointment of some competent person as warden who had not been involved in the prison's factional and personal controversies.

California Institution for Men

The committee was favorably impressed with the situation at Chino, where operation of the California Institution for Men is getting fairly under way. The institution is well located on a fertile acreage of land extensive enough for its purposes for years to come. The original idea of the institution as being one of minimum security is now being carried out. Its superintendent, Kenneth Scudder, was selected from a list of accredited persons, which selection was apparently made upon merit, free from political considerations. He is progressive in thought, comprehends the ideals and the motives behind the establishment of the institution, and the committee commends his administration.

Wholesome Contrast

The California Institution for Men presents a wholesome contrast to the atmosphere of the average penal institution. The inmates, of course, are selected prior inmates of San Quentin and have no long records of hardened criminal careers; nor are they recruited from those who have committed infamous or atrocious crimes. Because of classification, of background, and of good behavior, the managing authorities consider them possible of reform and rehabilitation. The population of the institution is not yet large. There is no overcrowding, hence none of the problems which always accrue in cases of inadequate housing. The supervisors have been carefully chosen and there is a spirit of hopefulness and achievement permeating the whole establishment.

Activities at Chino

It is interesting to know that while extraordinary liberty is accorded the inmates, of some 700 committed, fewer than 15 have attempted or made escape, all of whom were apprehended and returned to serve out their original sentences with additional penalties at San Quentin. The men work in the fields, the dairy and hog pens, and mechanical shops. They usually progress from the institution to the forest camps where they enjoy still wider liberties, thence through parole into the outer world. And it is a matter of record that in the vast majority of instances, they do not return to any prison. They have been rehabilitated under a sensible plan with immeasurable benefit to themselves and profit to the State and to society. The committee points to the results, present and certain to be had, emanating from the California Institution for Men, as a great lasting contribution to the task of understanding the foibles of men when they infract beyond the point which society establishes as a definite bound and where there is reasonable hope of restoration of the individual to self respect and of his conformity to the rules laid down by the State for the protection and well-being of its citizens. There will be, of course, failures at Chino as in all other human endeavors, but the committee believes that the institution will set the mark for other institutions of like nature in this and other States wherein crime at about its inception stage, committed by those capable of redemption, will be checked and the individuals restored instead of being condemned by harsher methods to perpetual disgrace and continuous expense to the Commonwealth.

California Institution for Women

The California Institution for Women, at Tehachapi, was established as a separate prison for female felons largely through the efforts of women citizens of the State interested in the rehabilitation of those of their sex who had transgressed in the larger sense and whom it was necessary to commit to prison. Previous to its establishment women felons had been confined to a part of San Quentin Prison. After the Legislature and the people through their votes had approved the establishment of a separate women's prison, the site at Tehachapi was selected. It is situated in an isolated and remote part of Kern County, on a large tract of land, a part of which is tillable, the remainder mere in the nature of range land. The buildings have been constructed on the cottage plan and are picturesque and reasonably commodious. The population of the institution has never been large, nearly always ranging below 200 inmates. The compound containing the buildings and immediate grounds was first designed under the minimum security idea which because of practical necessity has been somewhat abandoned. Experience with the women offenders has also shown in considerable degree that the highly altruistic ideals of the founders of the institution were too far reaching and impractical. The theory that most of the inmates could be transformed into well-rounded agricultural workers, skilled in all kinds of husbandry, fails under attempts at practical application. In other words, female felons as a class have most of the attributes, natural and acquired, of male felons, and efforts at rehabilitation should be directed in their prison training and education toward the arts and trades to which they are best suited both as individuals and in groups.

Large Acreage Not Needed

The large acreage acquired at Tehachapi is not needed as a training ground for the women inmates, for they are not suited either physically or by nature for large scale and heavy farming. Reasonably small scale gardening, poultry raising, some phases of dairying, flower culture, are about all the outdoor activity that may be profitably expected of the women. Indoor vocational training with adequate appliances and buildings and competent supervision and instruction seems to the committee to be the answer to the important query of how best to contribute to the restoration of the morale of the inmates and their ability after release to support themselves in a manner and with such results as will make them useful members of society.

Vocational Training Desirable

On the whole the institution seems to be well conducted. The housing for the present number of inmates is sufficient. The premises are clean and well kept, the food good, and the recreational facilities ample. As above indicated, the committee believes that something tangible should be done by the authorities with the help of the Legislature to augment the vocational training facilities and insure the employment of more competent instructors. An example of utter waste and foolishness in the half hearted attempt to teach the women something useful is the institution's printing shop. The women supposed to be in training there have nothing modern to work with and have no instructor who knows anything about the trade. If they believe they are learning something there which may prove of use to them upon release, they will become sadly disillusioned when they finally discover that what they have been taught, or more likely "picked up," is a handicap rather than a help. If the teaching and equipment in other branches of vocational training in the institution is on a par with that found in the printing shop, the inmates had better be given rocking chairs in which to idle their time away.

Correctional Schools

Preston School of Industry

The Preston School of Industry was established many years ago in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada, near the village of Lone, Amador County. It was designed as a correctional school for the care of boys between the ages of 15 and 21. For more than 20 years the school has been under the superintendency of O. H. Close, now also chairman of the newly created Youth Correction Authority. Mr. Close is widely recognized as being an authority on problems of youth, particularly as such problems merge with or become a part of delinquencies sufficiently serious to be classified as criminal.

The Preston School of Industry, as its name implies, was originally programmed to be an institution where erring male youth could not only be restrained, but more important could be trained in some useful occupation or pursuit, and thus be given direction as they emerged into manhood which would be reflected in their future years to the end that they would become useful and productive members of society.

LOCATION OF SCHOOL

The school is situated upon a tract of land much of which is under cultivation and from which a large part of the food used by the institution is produced almost wholly by the labor of the boys. The school contains within its buildings shops covering activities devoted to iron and wood working, boot and shoemaking and repairing, printing and laundering. The inmates respond splendidly to such attempts to teach them trades. So successful has been the vocational direction and production under the direction of Mr. Close that it would be only fair for the Legislature to respond to his suggestions for increasing the industrial and agricultural program.

ACTIVITIES

The Preston School has its problems, for it deals with youths who are in the institution because they have proven problems themselves, but the committee feels from its inspection of the school and its studies of statistics revealing activities, production and effects upon those committed and returned to outside life, that the institution is one that is intelligently and sanely conducted and that it is performing a high service to the State and to those who are committed to its care. Figures demonstrate that the average population is about 700; that the first months of the war resulted in a somewhat perplexing increase of commitments, though at this writing the congestion is not of serious import.

Fred C. Nelles School for Boys

The Fred C. Nelles School for Boys, at Whittier, formerly known as the Whittier School, is an institution established 50 years ago. Originally it was designed as a school for both boys and girls, and for a time was so used. Since the establishment of the School for Girls at Ventura the Whittier institution has been devoted to the custody of boys exclusively, their ages ranging from eight to 16 years. The present capacity of the school is 350. With the completion of needed buildings the capacity could easily be increased to better care for the large number of delinquent boys who should be in such an institution but who are not because capacity will not permit their reception.

PER CAPITA COST HIGH

The per capita cost at the Nelles school is high because of the low population and the capital investment, which latter amounts to about $2,500,000. While it would require some additional investment to provide for an increased attendance, yet in view of the fact that there passed through the juvenile courts of the State in 1941, 13,000 boys, and only 400 of these boys were sent to either Whittier or Preston, it appears obvious that additional facilities in the correctional schools are necessary. The main reason, it was testified, that more of these youthful offenders were not sent to the schools, particularly Whittier, was that there was no room for them. If the correctional training at these schools is what it should be, more juveniles should be receiving the benefits instead of being shunted about from place to place and from refuge homes to indifferent boarding selections.

The Nelles school at Whittier was originally well located. But with the passage of time and the growth of the adjacent community it is now not sufficiently isolated, and thus the temptation at attempts to escape is increased. The educational and vocational attempts at the school do not meet with the criticism of the community, but in another part of this report attention is called to the need for greater activity in agricultural pursuits, for the training involved and as a contribution of material worth to the cost of food. The committee recommends to the proper authority at the school careful attention to that part of this report which deals with this subject.

PAST SCANDALS

The committee made no attempt to go into the deplorable scandals which were associated with the Nelles school in a previous year. The committee does not believe it a part of its function to seek out and appraise causes or conditions which led to such scandals because it believes that the Youth Correction Authority under whose auspices the school now operates, has taken effective steps to correct past conditions, has brought complete order into the institution, and that under its new management, Mr. Paul J. McCusick, who is a trained and understanding official, proper discipline, humane treatment and constructive training will follow.

So great was the public attention directed at this institution, and so widespread the stories alleging misadministration and inhumane treatment of inmates, that the committee believes it is only prudent to portray the changed conditions now existing although at the expense of considerable space. Therefore, under date of September 1, 1942, depicting the changed conditions then existing, which, by reason of its visit and observation, the committee deems as correct. The letter signed by the superintendent follows:

Youth Correction Authority,
803 Washington Building,
Los Angeles, California.

As you will recall the Youth Correction Authority sent me here to the State School at Whittier four months ago. My assignment here came two weeks after the Authority was asked to assume the responsibility for the reorganization and internal management of this State school. You asked me to study the program and recommend methods by which the school could become more effective in its task of rehabilitating boys. You pathetically asked me to study the causes of the many runaways and to take steps to hold the boys here in the school. I think it is appropriate at the end of the first four months to give you a general summary of the progress made.

The changing picture as to the runaway situation rather graphically portrays the improvement throughout the school. You will be interested in the following figures:

	March	April	May	June	July	August
Total runaways.....	72	12	21	21	10	5
Still on escape.....	2	0	4	2	1	1

There has been a change in the attitude of the staff toward their work, which probably is due primarily to their feeling that they are receiving the backing of an understanding and sympathetic State agency. They have been led to believe that as long as they are doing their best in the instruction and education of the problem boys who come to the school they will be backed up to the limit and protected from unjust and unfair criticism.

When I came out to the school in April it was operating with many of the key positions unfilled. This meant that various staff members had to be pulled away from their own positions to act in capacities for which they were not specifically prepared or trained. This was one of the factors which materially weakened the whole staff organization. I am happy to report that during the past four months we have filled several of these key positions through the cooperation of the Department of Institutions and through lists furnished by the State Personnel Board. Mr. Gerald G. Spence is now functioning full time in his capacity of assistant superintendent and business manager. Mr. Noel G. Bonelli is now serving as our permanent school principal. Mr. Elmore Powell has been hired as chief engineer for the whole plant, and has materially strengthened the administration by acting as superintendent of all of the maintenance work.

Several of our repair and replacement projects are being carried on through cooperation of the State Division of Architecture, but the day-by-day maintenance work which is necessary in the operation of a plant of this size, is carried on by our own boys, under the supervision of the vocational teachers and trades instructors. Doctor Hyman Tavis has been employed as our full time physician and surgeon. Doctor Tavis comes to us after fine experience in the United States Veterans Hospitals and in addition to supervising our hospital will conduct neuropsychiatric examinations on all boys entering the school.

This improved morale and increased interest on the part of the staff has been definitely and directly reflected in the lives and attitudes of the boys—the inmates. There is less fighting, less quarreling, less insolence toward superiors, and many less attempts to run away from the institution.

The boys and staff both realize that the Nelles School is now considered primarily an educational institution. Many of the boys who come to this school are from two to three years retarded in their academic school work and have had no vocational or trade training. A definite effort is being made to help the boys catch up in their school work as well as to give each boy a rather comprehensive pre-vocational training. Upon their being received at the school the boys are carefully studied and classified so that they may be placed in the program within the school and institutional life which will help them the most.

The improvement here at the school is due to many factors, including the aforementioned improvement in morale. There has been an extension of the leisure time and recreational activities which has been possible through methodical improvement of the playgrounds, the organization of intercottage competition, and the arrangement of games and competitive contests with outside teams. There has been installed a careful and systematic system of individual counselling with each boy upon his individual needs.

Two full time chaplains are at work at the school. These men not only arrange and carry out religious services on Sundays but are always present for individual counselling and spiritual guidance with all the boys, particularly the newer ones in the school.

The old Lost Privilege cottage as such has been abandoned. Every boy coming into the school is in need of discipline and careful guidance. No corporal punishment or brutality of any kind is tolerated. Boys who violate rules of the school are punished through the loss of some of their treats and special privileges, such as daily swims and weekly moving picture show. If the boy refuses to stay at the school or flatly refuses to cooperate in the educational program, he is segregated for a period of time but is never placed in isolation. The boys who are thus placed in a special observation cottage are under the care at all times of at least two well trained supervisors. Boys have been shown that there is but one honorable way to earn their release from the institution, that is by showing that they have made an adjustment in their attitudes and conduct.

Runaways have been materially cut down through more careful supervision, particularly of the new boys who arrive at the school. The courts, probation departments and school officials of California have the right to expect that this institution will hold and re-educate the boys who are committed to it. These aims will be constantly kept before the entire staff. We have at least a triple responsibility which might be outlined briefly as education, custody and inspiration for good citizenship.

(Signed) PAUL J. McKUSICK
Superintendent

California School for Girls at Ventura

The California School for Girls at Ventura was established in 1916 when it was separated from the school at Whittier which was originally designed to harbor both girls and boys. At the opening of the school in 1916, 70 girls were transferred from Whittier. The capacity of the school is 180; at the time of the committee visit in June, 1942, the population was 143. There was no waiting list. The superintendent, Dr. Walton, reported that there had been a decline in population during the period dating from 1938. She ascribed the decline to uncertain causes and the reluctance and resistance of courts and parents to commitments because of the "fiasco," as she termed it, at Whittier.

NEED FOR REPAIRS

The school is located on 70 acres of ground near and overlooking the City of Ventura. Some of the land is planted to citrus and other fruits with limited areas suitable for gardens. The buildings are commodious, semimodern, many of them obviously in need of paint and repairs. The site of the school is beautiful from a scenic standpoint and the grounds are well improved. Attention of the committee was called to the need for reconstruction of the sewer line serving the school and from the information submitted it appears that proper improvements should be made.

Dr. Olive Walton, the superintendent for more than 20 years, who retired after the visit of the committee, organized the school in a sane and understanding manner and has coped with a very difficult situation in a most commendable manner.

TYPE OF INMATES

The testimony taken by the committee discloses that the average age of the inmates is 16 years. The girls come mostly from broken homes or from homes where the parents have little ability or pride in the rearing of their children. Few of the girls have ever graduated from high school or have been taught to work or to perform the most casual of household duties. The average mentality of the girls is low, and about 50 per cent are in the school because they were promiscuous in their sexual relations. Many of them when admitted suffer from congenital diseases. They are difficult to bring under discipline and are slow in the development of a spirit of cooperation.

Dr. Walton's objectives in her conduct of the school have been the restoration of health, the repairment of physical ills caused by malnutrition which affect many of the girls when received; teaching them to do some useful work and to master the technique of simple cooking and housework, endeavoring to create the vocational spirit prevalent with practically all of them when admitted, and to fit them as far as is possible for return to outside life when they have reached the age of 20.

WORK OF REHABILITATION

While the population of the inmates at the Ventura School is not comparable with the population of the two other schools confined for the benefit of boys, the task of rehabilitation is perhaps greater and is certainly supplemented by more complex rules of society. Experience has proven that it is more difficult to reform an erring girl than an erring boy. The reasons therefor need not be entered into by the committee, but they exist and may largely be charged to society as a whole which over the ages has built up unwritten laws that continue to operate with confidence to written statutes and hopeful programs allocated and undertaken by intensely interested optimists.

Nevertheless, the State has a duty to perform and it must meet that obligation. The committee does not wish to give the impression that rehabilitation of juvenile offenders such as are committed to Ventura, is hopeless, for experience has proven the contrary in many instances. But the difficulties presented should be understood and a program of patience and proper custodial management encouraged and supported. The committee has nothing but commendation for the administration of Dr. Walton and believes under the regime imposed by the Youth Correction Authority her ideals and practical application of them will be continued.

Educational, Vocational Training, Industry, and War Work

San Quentin

The committee was most favorably impressed with the comprehensive educational program now in effect at San Quentin. A capable, experienced, and efficient Director of Education, Mr. Herman Buckner, has energetically encouraged an interest in self-betterment among the inmates and has provided a wide variety of courses so that the diverse needs of the men are taken care of. Mr. Buckner has made arrangements with the neighboring school districts to furnish qualified instructors in special fields and has, under the direction and with the enthusiastic cooperation of John C. Reswick of the State Department of Education, established vocational courses, many of which prepare directly for occupational service in war work.

The expanding program at San Quentin will perhaps soon necessitate additional housing. The committee was pleased to observe that the facilities now available were being utilized to the full limit of their capacity. The library is in need of additional volumes, particularly in technical fields. Splendid use, however, is being made of the present resources of the library, and commendation of the policy of encouraging the inmates to do constructive reading on their own time is deserved.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS

The educational department at San Quentin has an arrangement with the University of California whereby the resources of the Extension Division of the University are available to the inmates, and a large number avail themselves of this service. This arrangement merits approbation and should be emulated by the other prisons where such an educational program is not in effect or where it is not so widely developed.

The educational program at San Quentin is administered with the purpose of enabling the inmates to secure a well-rounded high school education, if at the time of their commitment they have not completed a high school education. By special arrangements with the State Board of Education an official certificate of high school graduation is awarded those who have completed the required curriculum. In the Summer of 1942 the first high school graduating class at San Quentin was awarded diplomas. The vision which made possible this notable achievement deserves the highest praise, and the morale and "esprit de corps" which have been built up by this enlightened program are obvious to even the most casual visitor.

The committee feels that the present leadership and direction of the whole academic and vocational educational program at San Quentin are accomplishing most worthwhile results and deserve the enthusiastic encouragement of the Board of Prison Directors and the Legislature. The committee believes that if the program now under way is permitted normal growth and expansion, lasting benefit will come both to the individuals at San Quentin and eventually to the State and society as a whole.

SAN QUENTIN—INDUSTRY

As quickly as possible the new industrial building at San Quentin will be equipped and occupied. Many of the industries to be operated there are now carried on in the large four-story brick structure which is very poorly suited for this purpose, and which has in fact been condemned as hazardous and unsafe. The new industrial building is wisely planned and will enable the work to be carried on under more or less ideal conditions of lighting and safety. It should be noted that this building was constructed by inmate labor at a great saving to the State.

SPECIALIZED INDUSTRIES

The administration of the prison, under Warden Duffy, exhibits great resourcefulness in planning and establishing a variety of specialized industries. Among these may be mentioned the project now under way of processing tobacco for the use of the inmates in the State's institutions. Warden Duffy stated that a paint factory could be established under efficient conditions at San Quentin and that if the factory did nothing more than manufacture the paint used by the State Division of Public Works for painting the white lines on the highways, a saving of $50,000 or $60,000 a year might be effected.

The project of manufacturing automobile license plates was discussed with the warden, and he assured the committee that it is perfectly feasible and would result in a huge saving to the State.

JUTE MILL REMOVAL

The proposal has been made to move the jute mill from San Quentin to Folsom. While it is undeniably true that work in the jute mill does not prepare for civilian employment directly, yet the discipline and habits of work inculcated there are of great benefit to the inmates. More types of industry must be found at Folsom, but if the jute mill is removed from San Quentin, the board of directors must make certain that no idleness is created at San Quentin. Whatever is done in this regard must also take into consideration the vital necessity of increasing or at least of not decreasing the present inadequate supply of grain sacks for the farmers of the State.

FURNITURE FACTORY

The excellent work carried on by the furniture factory at San Quentin deserves special mention. The standards maintained by the factory are much higher in general than those which prevail in private industry. The statutes now wisely prohibit the sale of furniture manufactured by the inmates to any buyers except public bodies. It is to be deplored that all State departments do not purchase their furniture from San Quentin, for this practice would result in a huge saving to the State and in the acquisition of furniture of the very finest type. The committee investigated certain aspects of this problem and is convinced that the State Purchasing Agent could, if directed, work out with the industrial manager at San Quentin, Mr. Bauer, certain standardized types of furniture which the State would use and which could be manufactured at the prison and stored until needed in some specific State department. In short, if responsible State officials who now purchase furniture from private industry would cooperate with the administration of San Quentin, a large saving of State moneys could be effected.

The committee feels that every attempt is being made at San Quentin to see that each inmate does a full day's work and that the work assigned to him is of a type which will aid in his rehabilitation.

WAR WORK

From the beginning of our active participation in the war San Quentin has made worthwhile contributions to many phases of the war effort. The initiative, industry, and vision of the Warden and his Director of Industrial Activities, Mr. Bauer, have enabled San Quentin to perform much needed services for various branches of the armed forces, at a saving to the armed forces and at a profit to the institution.

A brief enumeration of what has been accomplished by the men at San Quentin in fostering the war effort is given herewith:

Garments: Many garments have been cut from patterns for neighboring Red Cross units, with the result that volunteer workers among the women could devote their full time to sewing the dresses and gowns.

Boxes: Large Red Cross boxes were made for different Red Cross chapters to be placed at strategic points in the county.

Splints: Hundreds of splints for arm, back, and leg injuries have been made.

Clackers: Hundreds of gas warning clackers have been manufactured and sold for civilian defense.

Sirens: Twenty sirens for air raid warnings were made and sent out in Marin County.

Model Airplanes: Hundreds of model airplanes have been constructed for the Army and Navy to be used by civilian airplane spotters.

Night Sticks: Many hundreds of night sticks have been made for the use of the California State Guard.

Shoe Repairs: Hundreds of pairs of shoes have been repaired for the State Guard in the San Quentin shoe repair shop.

Steel Nets: The Navy has furnished all the material and equipment necessary for weaving steel nets. These steel nets are used for submarine and torpeda protection. At the time of the committee's visit the inmates had produced one hundred and one (101) of these huge steel nets, many of them for use in the waters of the South Pacific.

Naval Net Buoys: Old buoys have been reconditioned, and new buoys have been assembled and painted.

Laundry and Shoe Repair: The shoe repair shop at San Quentin has repaired approximately 300 shoes for the naval depot at Tiburon, and at the present time does the entire laundry work for the depot every week.

Flanges: Hundreds of flanges have been refaced.

Mattress Covers: The Navy Yard at Mare Island has bid for 80,000 mattress covers to be manufactured by the inmates at San Quentin. The estimated profit on this work is $7,000.

Blankets, Cleaned: San Quentin has already made approximately $250 clear profit on washing blankets for the Navy.

Copper Wire: San Quentin is now recleaning several hundred tons of copper wire for the Navy and will be paid $13 per ton for this work.

Commando Boats: San Quentin has entered a bid for the construction of 1,000 Commando Boats for the Navy.

Cafeteria Service Compartment Trays: The inmates are now completing an order for 10,000 cafeteria service compartment trays. There is a possibility of the order being increased to 100,000 trays. In six weeks time, on this job alone, the inmates made $3,000 for the State and saved the Navy $2,500 at the same time.

Furniture: The furniture factory at San Quentin has sold many items of furniture to the armed forces.

Crop Harvesting: Selected crews from San Quentin assisted in important farming districts in the harvesting of crops.

The foregoing enumeration gives an indication of the many varieties of services which the inmates are performing in the promotion of the war effort.

It is worthy of comment that at the time of the visit of the committee the men at San Quentin (ALTHOUGH THEY ARE PAID NOTHING FOR WHAT THEY DO IN THE PRISON AND ARE DEPENDENT ENTIRELY ON SMALL SUMS OF MONEY FURNISHED THEM BY THEIR FRIENDS AND RELATIVES), had purchased over $30,000 worth of war bonds and stamps.

IMPROVEMENT OF MORALE

The committee is convinced that under the administration of Warden C. T. Duffy a marked general improvement in the morale of inmates and employees has occurred. No evidence exists of a lack of harmony in the administrative staff at the prison. In fact, the spirit throughout is one of a sincere desire to accomplish something worthwhile and constructive. Conditions which create dissatisfaction among the inmates are corrected as soon as discovered, and the esprit de corps is therefore extremely high. Especially noteworthy is the improvement already made in feeding the men. By changing certain practices of prior wardens, Mr. Duffy has made it possible for the food to be served to all of the men when it is still hot and palatable. The plan of course is to institute the cafeteria style of feeding as soon as metal far manufacturing the trays may be secured.

The cafeteria style of feeding is far superior from every standpoint to the present method, and should result in increased economy as well as greater satisfaction on the part of the inmates.

The committee feels that a continuation of the present warden's policies will result in maintaining and even further improving the morale of the inmates and the staff. The gains to society will become more and more obvious as the effects on the rehabilitation of the men are manifested.

FOLSOM

The development of a comprehensive educational program at Folsom has been neglected. From the standpoint of modern penological practice it would not be too much to say that no real beginning has yet been made at Folsom in providing adequate educational opportunities for the inmates. The physical equipment and facilities for instruction are wholly unsuited for the purpose for which they are being used.

The library is nothing more than an accumulation of discarded books from various public libraries and other donors. In the main the books are out-dated in subject matter and contain information which has long since been supplanted by modern research and scientific discovery. Any real academic training at Folsom is impossible.

The committee feels that no sincere attempt has been made to give this aspect of rehabilitation the emphasis it obviously requires.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Vocational training affords the surest method of rehabilitation. The facilities for this type of education at Folsom are almost completely lacking. Certain trades, like those of tailoring, baking, cooking, laundry work, shoemaking and furniture and equipment repair are practiced at Folsom, but the machines used are antiquated and the methods taught are in many cases those long since abandoned in the trade or vocation outside the penitentiary.

The housing facilities are so inadequate that excessive crowding results in work-room and shop. The impression one gathers from inspection of the work is that of sweat-shop conditions.

PROGRAM LAGS

An immediate reorganization of the whole educational program under competent progressive leadership is necessary before any good results may be achieved. Eventually most of the Folsom inmates will be returned to society. Each man released from the penitentiary should be equipped with vocational knowledge and skill that is in accord with the best modern practice outside the penitentiary. If the program of vocational education at Folsom does not attain this objective, it should be improved until such a standard is attained. Any other result is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of rehabilitation.

FOLSOM

Industry. The idleness of a large percentage of inmates at Folsom Penitentiary creates an almost intolerable situation. The institution lacks a modern industrial building where trades and vocations may be properly taught. The situation existing at Folsom is one which must be corrected as soon as conditions permit new construction.

An attempt is being made to employ a considerable percentage of the inmates in worthwhile activity, but the facilities are so inadequate that even the most resourceful warden would not be able to initiate a full time constructive work program.

Specifically the number of men assigned to work in the quarry is so much greater than the amount of work which can be done that on the average the men labor only one hour per day. The inactivity in the rock quarry of over 85 per cent of the men assigned there is a constant source of danger and the cause of anti-social attitudes upon the part of the men.

BUILDINGS NEEDED

Before any constructive rehabilitation work can succeed at Folsom the Legislature must make adequate appropriations for the construction of modern industrial buildings. In these buildings the men can be taught useful trades under proper conditions.

The Legislature should also make provision for the appointment of a qualified Director of Training, whose duty will be to supervise a comprehensive vocational training program.

CANNERY COMMENDED

The cannery at Folsom is efficiently operated and has resulted in economies in the feeding of the inmates. Last year the cannery put up 137,000 cans of vegetables and fruits and according to the statement of the warden, could produce 750,000 cans if it were operated full time.

The committee desires to commend the successful operation of the cannery and plans for future development in the prison of this particular industry demonstrate possibilities for development of other industries and vocations which apparently heretofore have been passed by in a spirit of lethargy.

FOLSOM—WAR WORK

The prison administration at Folsom is attempting to provide an increasing amount of useful employment for the inmates by contracting for various types of work directly beneficial to the war effort. The lack of adequate shops makes the task of securing these jobs much more difficult than it should be.

The committee feels, however, that every encouragement should be given to the promotion of such activities and that funds should be made available whenever needed to provide equipment that will be used for war work. If the Board of Prison Directors will give the warden full cooperation, he will be able to expand considerably this type of useful employment at Folsom Penitentiary.

BOMB-PROOF SHELTER

The warden at Folsom is to be commended for his resourcefulness in planning and carrying to completion the construction of a bomb proof shelter in one of the hillsides on the prison grounds. This work was done with a fine spirit of patriotism by the inmates and is an instance of foresight and leadership on the part of the warden.

One aspect of the war work at Folsom Penitentiary which merits superlative praise is the designing and manufacturing of over 48,000 posters of a patriotic type for various organizations and governmental bodies. This work is directed by Ralph Pekor, who has demonstrated outstanding ability in this important work.

IMPROVEMENT OF MORALE—FOLSOM

Satisfactory working conditions, proper food, the absence of political intrigue and the certainty of just and fair treatment without any favoritism being shown, these are basic factors which underlie the building and improving of morale in any penitentiary.

The present administration at Folsom has made some attempts to build proper morale among the men confined there, but the large number of influences and conditions which destroy morale have thus far prevented complete and fair success on the part of the present administration.

The idleness of the men at Folsom is recognized by the prison administration as a very important obstacle in the way of building proper attitudes. The Board of Prison Directors and the warden should be encouraged by the Legislature to develop every temporary expedient to cut down on the idleness of the inmates.

PROPER FOOD ESSENTIAL

The committee, on its visit to each institution, carefully inspected the dining halls, the kitchen facilities, and the food preparation. We collected menus for each meal served during the course of a week at Folsom, as we did elsewhere. It is our conclusion that the feeding of the men at Folsom suffers by comparison with the food provided in other institutions for the inmates. The warden states that some dietary control has recently been instituted and that an improvement in the feeding of the men should follow, but at the time of our visit this anticipated improvement was not observable.

A most careful check should be made at frequent intervals by the Board of Prison Directors to see that ample, nourishing food, scientifically prepared, is served to the men at Folsom. The proposed cafeteria style of feeding should be instituted as soon as conditions permit.

INTERNAL INTRIGUE APPARENT

Internal political intrigue at Folsom has tended to destroy the morale of inmates and guards; as a matter of fact a very definite division of loyalties exists among the guards, and as a consequence the administration of the prison suffers. No warden can operate an institution efficiently if his subordinates are not cooperative. The Board of Prison Directors should act in an intelligent way to correct this deplorable condition.

Considerable criticism concerning the dental and medical care of inmates at Folsom has been made. The committee feels that services of a full time, properly compensated dentist are required at the prison and that such a dentist should not engage in private practice. The prison also requires the full time services of a physician and surgeon, who should be paid enough so that he could forego completely private practice. Institutional doctors or dentists who also carry on a private practice too often are inclined to neglect their duties at the institution.

If the factors considered above are properly taken care of, a permanent improvement in both prisoner and guard morale should follow.

California Institution for Men at Chino

The educational program at the California Institution for Men at Chino is carefully planned. Arrangements have been made with the adjacent school district to provide part of the teaching staff, and in this way a more diversified curriculum can be provided. The vocational training aspect of the educational program impressed the committee as soundly conceived and efficiently administered. The authorities are keenly aware of all of the problems which must be taken care of in preparing an inmate to take his place again in society. The committee commends the work at the California Institution for Men and has no recommendations to make for improving the service.

California Institution for Women at Tehachapi

The educational program at the California Institution for Women had not been fully developed at the time of the committee's visit. Preliminary arrangements were being completed for cooperation between the Tehachapi high school and the authorities of the institution, in the building up of a more diversified and more comprehensive educational program. It will be necessary to give considerable attention to a more practical vocational program. It is apparent that only a small percentage of the activities carried on at Tehachapi will fit the inmate for useful productive labor outside the institution.

It is probable that only a relatively small percentage of the inmates released may look forward to the resumption of marriage and normal family life; hence it will be necessary for them to earn a living in some occupation. The vocational training program should be coordinated with all of the occupational activities in the institution in such a way that every individual develops adequate skill in a practical vocation. In short, it is the committee's recommendation that many improvements in the vocational training program be instituted at the California Institution for Women at Tehachapi.

Correctional Schools—Educational and Vocational Training Problems

The committee visited the Preston School of Industry at Ione, the Fred C. Nelles School for Boys at Whittier, and the California School for Girls at Ventura. All of these correctional schools belong under the direction and control of the Youth Correction Authority. Unified administration will permit the development of a comprehensive integrated program of education and vocational training.

The primary emphasis in all of these correctional schools should be upon instruction in the fundamental subjects taught in the public schools. This academic training should be thorough and intensive, and for that reason the most capable of instructors should be engaged in those schools. At the present time the salary schedule of teachers in the correctional schools is far below desirable minimum standards and well below that paid to comparable positions in the public schools.

Because of the difficult nature of the work it is obvious to the committee that the salaries paid should be higher than those paid in the public school system.

Vocational Training Should Be Stressed

In addition to sound academic training in the basic subjects, as much practical vocational training should be given as time and the maturity of the inmates permit. Obviously because of the age of the inmates at the Whittier school only the beginning of vocational training may be established. The committee feels, however, that more opportunity, especially in agricultural pursuits, could be provided for some of the older boys at Whittier.

The vocational training program at Ione is well developed and functions with great efficiency. The facilities exist for the development of a wide diversity of occupational skills. The boys committed to Preston, therefore, can be trained in accordance with their individual needs and capacities.

The vocational training given at Ventura School for Girls should not be expanded at the cost of denying to each individual inmate a thorough training in the basic academic subjects and instruction in all of the domestic tasks about the house. The investigation of the committee indicates that most of the girls who enter Ventura School are pitifully deficient in an elementary school education and are wholly untrained in the domestic tasks of sewing, cooking, washing, and keeping a house clean. Obviously first emphasis in any training problem should be given to eliminating these deficiencies, and only after they have been eliminated should more specialized vocational training be given.

Outline of Youth Correction Authority Activities at Present Time and Contemplated Program for the Next Biennium

The committee submits to the Members of the Legislature, as a matter of information, the following statement as of December 29, 1942, disclosing the present status and program of the Youth Correction Authority:

"The members of the Authority appointed to administer the California act began to function in March, 1942. The budget at the Authority's disposal was less than $100,000 after organization expenses were met. This limited budget is being very carefully expended. Two of the members of the Authority elected not to draw salaries from the Authority but to remain with their former positions and work for the Authority on a part-time basis, during the organization period. This saving which amounted to approximately $30,000 is being used to create a diagnostic and classification clinic, temporarily located at Ione in quarters provided by the Department of Institutions at the Preston School of Industry.

"The Authority has recently completed a survey of the State to determine the approximate case load this organization will be required to supervise when the law goes into effect and force. The Fred C. Nelles School for Boys has been reorganized under the direction of the Authority and a survey of the Ventura School for Girls completed at the expense of the Authority. The three correctional schools since April 15, 1942, have been jointly managed by the Youth Authority and the Department of Institutions under agreement set up by the Governor of the State, the Youth Correction Authority, and the Director of Institutions.

Program for Next Biennium

Plans are now being formulated to establish several camps in cooperation with the Forestry Service of the United States Department of Agriculture where many youthful offenders under 23 years of age, may be placed in camps and work on guayule plantations and in forestry camps set up for conservation and fire suppression. The cost of care and supervision of men placed in the Forestry camps will be borne by the United States Forestry Service. The Youth Correction Authority is to receive $2.50 per day for all men placed in camps. This amount will provide sufficient funds to feed, clothe and supervise the men and probably leave sufficient funds to pay each man fifty cents per day. The Authority, for the duration of the war, plans to shape its programs, in so far as possible, to aid in the war effort.

Legislation Needed

"Legislation has been drawn to present to the next session of the Legislature transferring the Preston School of Industry, the Fred C. Nelles School for Boys, and the Ventura School for Girls to the Youth Correction Authority. It is the belief of members of the Authority that the programs of these institutions can be made more effective if placed directly under the supervision of the Authority. It is also recommended that the division of probation, now a part of the State Department of Social Welfare, be transferred to the Youth Authority. Probation is a function that properly belongs with an agency dealing with the prevention and treatment of delinquency and crime.

"The proposed budget for the next biennium provides a modest sum for the beginning of a parole system to care for the release of boys from camps and institutions that will be under the direction of the Youth Correction Authority.

Community Assistance

"The Youth Authority has already, in a small way started a program of community assistance in mental hygiene and delinquency prevention. Dr. Norman Fenton, Professor of Education at Stanford University, is now working on a part time basis and is visiting many of the rural counties where he formerly held clinics as Director of the California Bureau of Juvenile Research, which was legislated out of existence a few years ago. Dr. Fenton is reestablishing his old connections and associations with school authorities, probation officers, juvenile court judges and social workers interested in delinquency prevention.

"It is the plan of the Authority, during the next biennium, to continue its relationships with Stanford University and conduct a summer working session for teachers, social workers, probation officers and others interested in the problem of juvenile delinquency. Possibly some activities in research will be established.

"As an example of what the Youth Authority may accomplish, the Committee of the Authority recently spent two Sunday afternoons with interested officers in the City of Stockton and organized a Youth Coordinating Council in that city.

Powers of Authority

"The California Youth Correction Authority Act gives its members unusual power to deal with youthful offenders in a way that should bring about, when the program is in full effect, a higher percentage of rehabilitated cases than under the present system of treatment in this State. The prevention program will check many cases at the source through community effort and improved probation. The law should also make it possible to more adequately protect society against the dangerous psychopathic delinquent and criminal. The law is very flexible and when in full operation, will not only provide a more efficient program of dealing with youthful offenders, but should, after several years of operation, definitely reduce the relative cost of dealing with crime in this State."

Agriculture, Horticulture, Dairying and Animal Husbandry

The committee finds that all State penal institutions, with the exception of San Quentin, are well equipped with land, machinery, and man power for extensive agricultural activities and that all are engaging in such activities to some extent.

San Quentin, on account of its limited acreage, confines itself to poultry, hogs, and dairying, all well managed and successfully operated. Its dairy herd is outstanding and worthy of particular mention. The committee has no recommendation to make regarding more extensive farming at San Quentin as there is no land available in the immediate vicinity to extend its agricultural pursuits.

At the present time San Quentin is supplying its own needs to the following extent: Pork, 55 per cent; milk, 71 per cent; eggs, 35 per cent; vegetables, 2 per cent; poultry, 73 per cent.

Women Prisoners in Farm Work

Although the California Institution for Women at Tehachapi has rather extensive farm lands, the agricultural pursuits are confined to poultry, vegetables, and dairying. The committee understands that the prison board has in mind a more extensive plan of farming at Tehachapi, and instead of leasing out the farm land as is done at present, consideration is being given to further farming activities, to the extent at least of producing enough hay for the dairy herd. The committee does not feel that such a plan is necessary or that it would be successful. The need of plenty of open-air work for women prisoners as well as men is well recognized but it is doubtful whether prisoners at Tehachapi will ever fit into the agricultural picture physically, economically, or willingly. Their outdoor needs could be best taken care of by extending the present dairying, poultry, flower gardening, and vegetable and berry growing activities. A small canning unit could well be added to this institution and enough vegetables and berries grown to create a surplus for canning purposes.

This institution is badly in need of some constant and reliable source of advice in its farm work. Some competent farm expert should visit it at least once a week, in at least an advisory capacity. The county farm advisor could no doubt give some advice regarding the situation.

Folsom Farming Activities

The dairy and hog herds at Folsom rather suffer in appearance when compared with those of San Quentin. The reason for this is no doubt the fact that several years ago someone at San Quentin started to build the right kind of a dairy and hog herd, with proper feeding facilities, proper supervision, and adequate records, and these plans have been and are being carried through. A good dairy herd with proper surroundings and equipment is only acquired by careful and patient planning over a long period of time. The same care and patience would apply to hogs, but in a much lesser degree.

The land holdings at Folsom are mostly pasture. There are 608 acres of pasture, and 421 acres of cultivated lands, all being used to good advantage. Folsom supplies its own needs to the following extent: Fresh vegetables, 47 per cent; eggs, 82 per cent; milk, 100 per cent; pork, 60 per cent; dry onions, 59 per cent; a very creditable showing.

Opportunities at Chino

California Institution for Men at Chino is newly established and has not, as yet, got into its agricultural stride. The land holdings consist of 2,600 acres; 1,700 acres of which are now being farmed or can be farmed. The remaining 900 acres have been farmed in the past and can be again brought back to production.

Chino is now producing alfalfa, barley, corn and vegetables; also poultry, hogs, cattle, and dairy products. The officials are also negotiating with the U. S. Forestry Division to lease to them 465 acres for the growing of guayule for the production of rubber.

The Chino authorities are also contemplating the operation of a slaughterhouse for the purpose of slaughtering their own meats and of supplying other State institutions. They are also operating a cannery to take care of surpluses and are selling some to other State institutions and are negotiating with the United States Army to supply them with a certain amount of canned beef stew and with the State Guard for the canning of pork and beans.

This very complete program will require some very careful planning and supervision. The plans also include the planting of 900 acres to permanent pasture for the purpose of expanding the beef cattle herd. The committee would hesitate to criticize any of these projects with its very limited knowledge of the entire setup.

This is a very large body of land, and the program must necessarily be on a large scale if it is to be all utilized. The committee has no reason to doubt that it has been well thought out and will be successfully operated. The only suggestion that occurs is that instead of expanding to a great extent in cattle raising the institution might acquire a suitable flock of sheep. If the rainfall in that section is of any considerable amount, the low or valley lands would become too soft and miry to carry the weight of cattle and yet would be safe and desirable for sheep.

Preston School of Industry

Preston School of Industry has a total acreage of 991 acres; 496 of which is under production and 367 acres of that under irrigation. About everything in the vegetable and deciduous fruit line is produced in sufficient quantities to supply the needs at Preston. Preston sells some surplus vegetables to other State institutions and has had several tons of vegetables canned at Folsom, on which a very substantial profit was made in comparison with buying in the open market. It occurs to the committee that a cannery unit sufficient to take care of its own needs might well be established at Preston in order to save transportation costs as well as to give the inmates first-hand knowledge in all the processes of canning fruits and vegetables.

Fred C. Nelles School for Boys, Whittier

The farming activities at Whittier (Fred C. Nelles School for Boys), merit some censure. While Nelles School has 226 acres of land and 130 acres in production, still the boys lack enough outdoor work. There are 20 acres in vegetables, perhaps enough to supply most of the institution's own needs. This activity gives the boys some open air work. There is but one-half acre of deciduous fruits, which can supply only a small part of the school's needs. Sixty-eight acres of cotton, fruits and 41 acres of walnuts are immediately very productive holdings, but not of little benefit to the boys occasionally as all of the work of operating the combines and harvesting the crops is done by outside labor. The fruits and nuts from these orchards are sold in the open market and not to other State institutions.

The committee feels there is a definite need at this school for more open and work for the boys and that this need could perhaps best be met by the employment of a good dairy herd. This herd should be large enough to take care of the school's own needs, and the milking and caring for the cows should be done as much as possible by the boys of the school.

The committee realizes that the boys in this school are too young to have farm labor, but they can milk cows and take care of live stock. The committee feels that there is no work more healthful, more educational, or more conducive to character building in adolescent boys than caring for live stock, with all of the present income.

The Ventura Home for Girls has no farming activities. It has a beautiful setting, the grounds being nicely laid out with lawns, flowers, and shrubbery, cared for mostly by the girls.

Review of Farming Activities

In reviewing the entire farm picture of the State's penal and correctional institutions the committee finds occasion for some criticism and some suggestions for improvements, but as a whole the committee was favorably impressed. Because of the very extensive farm activities being undertaken by the State's penal and correctional institutions, the committee feels very definitely that at least one member of each prison board should be a practical farmer.

The committee is in complete accord with the wisdom and desirability of giving all prisoners the maximum of outdoor work to the end of betterment of health and morale. The State, however, should not go into the farm business through the State schools and prisons except in so far as it is necessary to supply their own needs and perhaps the needs of other State institutions, but at all times bearing in mind the need for sufficient outdoor work for inmates of all penal institutions and schools. The committee is also of the opinion that a very accurate and simple accounting should be kept of all costs of farm operations, including depreciation, county taxes, if any, and net income on a basis of selling on the open market. Particularly is this practice desirable at Whittier, Preston, and Chino where farm work enters so much into the rehabilitation efforts. The young men leaving these institutions and intending to follow farming as a means of livelihood should understand approved farming methods.

Recommendations

Prisons

The committee recommends:

1. That entire reorganization of the penal system be made, with a director at its head, skilled and trained in modern penological practices. He should be chosen because of knowledge and experience and should be given wide powers over the institutions, their management and control.

2. That classification and segregation of inmates be more thoroughly brought about, particularly among those whose offenses pertain to sexual deviations, or those whose mentality is psychopathic or subnormal.

3. That, in order to bring about proper segregation, suitable buildings be constructed, either within the present prison compounds or elsewhere; these buildings to be equipped and staffed for proper treatment and hospitalization.

4. That vocational education and its practical application be encouraged to the fullest extent through the erection, particularly at Edson, of proper structures and their adequate equipment, complemented with competent instructors. That the academic educational program be encouraged to the end that all inmates who can profitably secure a high school education will have had the opportunity before their release to do so.

5. That, during the present war emergency and based upon successful experiments recently made, the paroling of inmates for necessary farm work, forest work and fire protection be permitted; that when and if it is deemed feasible by the military authorities to induct inmates into the armed forces who can qualify therefor, such inmates be released to the military service.

6. That the criminal statutes be revised to eliminate excessively severe penalties for relatively mild offenses. That since the operation of the indeterminate sentence and parole laws is frequently hampered in the extension of justice because of the harsh terms of the Habitual Criminal Act, the Habitual Criminal Act be amended so as to afford greater equality in the application of parole privileges.

7. That the Legislature consider fully the wisdom of extending to the penal institutions the principles of civil service for its guards and other employees, and of studying the matter of salary adjustments.

8. That because farming and agricultural pursuits are now a large part of the activities of the penal institutions, the Governor give serious consideration to the wisdom of appointing to the State Board of Prison Directors, at least one person who has had practical experience in and is now engaged in agriculture.

9. That proper committees of the Legislature should give serious thought to the necessity of adequate appropriations to carry out the intent of several of these recommendations.

10. That the Youth Correction Authority make an extensive study of the probation laws in which there appear to be considerable ambiguity and contradiction resulting in a confusion of courts, probation committees, and probation officers. That in view of the contemplated wide extension of the probation policy, provision be made for the appointment of additional probation officers selected through the merit system.

11. That the committee further recommends that conflicting authority existing between the State Board of Prison Directors and the Board of Prison Terms and Paroles in relation to the supervision of parolees, be reconciled through proper enactments.

12. That the statutes authorizing the creation of the State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles and setting forth the nature of its personnel, duties, and obligations, be amended so as to provide that members should be adequately compensated and should be required to give their full time to the duties of the board, and that their appointment be made subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Correctional Schools

13. That the Youth Correction Authority (which if legislation now pending is enacted, will have full charge of the correctional schools), make a survey and study of the population capacities at the various schools in the endeavor to approximate their requirements for the ensuing decade.

14. That in its work of insuring that these schools operate to their fullest efficiency and rehabilitate those committed to their charge, the Youth Correction Authority pay particular attention to the need for rigid classification and segregation and proper and thorough education, both academically and in training for the pursuit of useful vocations.

15. That in such a program those in authority should insist upon staffs of instructors selected upon merit and adequately paid; even though in the endeavor to secure the services of such instructors higher salaries are necessarily paid than in the more comfortable surroundings from which this particular class of instructors must be drawn.

16. That inasmuch as the destiny of these youths released under conditions of parole or probation depends very largely upon their proper supervision during that period, the Youth Correction Authority be given such allotments as will permit it to secure the services of a sufficient number of parole and probation officers selected under rigid requirements.

17. That as far as practical the Youth Correction Authority be encouraged in releasing under proper supervision, such inmates of the correctional schools as are adapted to and express a willingness for outside labor, such as preparing for and harvesting crops where a shortage of labor prevails and for instruction and work in State or Federal forests and in such other pursuits as will encourage habits of industry and engender incentives for learning and improvement, thus not only benefiting the individual but being of value to society at large.

Conclusion

The committee submits this report after intensive studies and after visits to the institutions involved. The problems of crime and of youth delinquency can not even be partially solved without keeping in mind the associate problems of rehabilitation. It is the hope of this committee that as a result of its survey, more even-handed justice will prevail and emphasis be given to the exceedingly important mission of rehabilitation in all its various and diverse phases. To that end the committee hopes to have the cooperation of both the legislative and executive branches of our State Government.

Respectfully submitted.

MOTION TO PRINT IN THE JOURNAL

Senator Hatfield moved that the following communication regarding the Farm Labor Program be printed in the Journal:

Motion carried.

MEMORANDUM No. 97535, FARM LABOR PROGRAM

March 12, 1943

"This memorandum is being issued to provide for the administration of the Farm Labor Program until such time as pending legislation is enacted by Congress.

The Extension Service will direct the mobilization, placement, and processing of local farm labor resources, in accordance with previous instructions. In so doing, the Extension Service is to make the fullest possible use of facilities of the United States Employment Service of the War Manpower Commission. Until further notice, applications for labor should be made to the employment service where there are such offices, and where there are no such offices, applications should be made to the county agricultural agent.

The Farm Security Administration of the Food Production Administration will continue to be responsible for the recruitment, transportation, and housing of farm laborers, including aliens, in accordance with instructions previously given. Farm Security Administration will receive assistance from the United States Employment Service in recruiting workers to be transported, and from the Extension Service wherever possible.

State and county USDA war boards will continue to be responsible for all matters relating to Selective Service as it affects farm workers, including the assignments given in Memorandum No. 97533 of March 5, 1943, with respect to the classification of farm workers, for the completion of the farm manpower inventory, 1943, including in the 1943 farm plan work sheet for submission May 1, 1943, and for the submission of such reports on the farm labor situation as have been requested.

Agencies of the department are to consult and cooperate with existing State and county farm labor committees or councils, however they have been established. Utilization is to be made of all existing nongovernmental organizations and groups of citizens in order to take full advantage of local initiative and local resources on the farm labor front.

The Agricultural Labor Administration will work with other agencies of the department and the War Manpower Commission in meeting pressing farm labor problems within the limits of present authority and funds.

Regional consultants on agricultural labor will continue to represent the department in connection with the work of the War Manpower Commission and furnish such information and reports as may be requested from time to time by the Director of the Agricultural Labor Administration.

In view of the urgency of the situation, it is imperative that we continue all our resourcefulness and move ahead with all possible speed, as outlined in this memorandum.

Statement of John Harold Swan

Both houses of the California Legislature are now deluged with communications from teachers and teacher groups attacking Senate Bill No. 693 of which I am the author. Some of these communications are hysterical and inflammatory, some are libelous and contain assertions which no thoughtful person would make. The whole campaign against the bill is, in my judgment, inspired and executed by Miss Helen Heffernan of the State Department of Education and constitutes a fraud upon the Legislature and upon the people of the State of California.

We have reached an intolerable situation in California if a bare majority in Sacramento can organize a campaign of misrepresentation and mispropaganda the Legislature so that no changes may be made in the school laws of the State except those of which she approves. I must warn my colleagues in the Senate with all the solemnity of which I am capable that the people of the State have lost control of their schools if an individual with this bureau chief's philosophy can, under the protection of civil service, impose her visionary and impractical experimentation upon the children of the State and the protests of parents go scorned and unheeded.

Senate Bill No. 693 abolishes the position now occupied by Miss Heffernan, because there is no other way to remove her pernicious influence. Miss Heffernan was on leave six months last year, and her absence did not result in any crisis in education in California. I have not heard of any Member of the Legislature being requested during her absence, to save the schools by bringing her back. But now the Assembly and Senate secretaries are overwhelmed with the task of answering the avalanche of letters which teachers' groups have been urged to send in to the Legislature. I condemn such tactics as unworthy of the profession of teaching.

I am a teacher. I have taught in the public schools of California for almost 16 years. I know that the schools cost hundreds of millions of dollars annually, and I realize that much of this tremendous sum is expended in support of secondary education. I want the taxpayers and the parents to get something for their money. At the present time under the philosophy preached in this movement the children are denied an education in the fundamentals. Scores of teachers and parents tell me that they are forced to educate their own children at home.

I have had over 5,000 students in my classes. They have come from school districts all over the State. The vast majority of these students realize that the education in schools dominated by the Heffernan philosophy is inadequate, and they apologize for their ignorance in the fundamentals by intelligently stating that penmanship, grammar, reading, and arithmetic are no longer taught except incidentally.

Miss Heffernan has written extensively. Her bizarre and fantastic theories of education are expressed in unmistakable language. I urge everyone to read her article, "What Practices Are Defensible in Education in Times of Crisis," in the April, 1941, issue of the "National Elementary Principal." In this article she scorns the fundamentals and argues for a vital curriculum for the elementary schools, dealing with problems of unemployment, public health and safety, conservation, capital and labor, crime, taxation, protestation against disease, economic stress in old age, and industrial accidents. These problems in their simple and basic aspects are entirely within the comprehension of elementary school children, she declares. Such subjects obviously can not be considered in the elementary schools on a factual basis, especially by students who are not even encouraged to learn the alphabet.

There is no more important subject before the Legislature than the kind of elementary schools we are to have. I urge that the inspired campaign against Senate Bill No. 693 be disregarded so that the bill may have a fair and just hearing on the facts. Let us help the citizens of the State to regain control of their schools and to assert their children's right to a sound education in the fundamentals. Let us eliminate the radical progressivism in education which DOUBLES school costs and reduces results almost to the vanishing point!

St. Patrick's Day Address by Senator Shelley

It is with a deep feeling of privilege that I take the floor at this time on the occasion of our annual celebration of St. Patrick's Day, as one of Irish descent. I thank you for the honor conferred upon me, and I will briefly review the history of St. Patrick and attempt in my feeble way to illustrate why these things St. Patrick stood for are still issues of the day.

St. Patrick is not only the Patron Saint of Ireland, much beloved by all of the Irish and all persons of Irish descent. Both St. Patrick and his day, March the seventeenth, are looked upon by Americans as a day of celebration. A review of the history of Patrick and the principles he sought to establish will explain this feeling of respect and admiration that we, in America, hold for Ireland's Patron Saint.

Much of the actual history of St. Patrick is inaccurate. The historians differ not only as to the year of his birth, but as to the place of his birth. Because of the lack of authenticated historical documents, many legends have grown around the life and work of St. Patrick. In the main, however, we can arrive at a fairly authentic history of the life of this great missionary.

St. Patrick was born most likely in the year 380 on the Island of Britain, although it is not entirely clear as to exactly what portion of the island. Some historians contend his birthplace was in Scotland and others that it was in Southwest England.

He was the son of a Decurion Calpornius, who was a local official of his own province. Patrick's given name was Succoth and it is likely that he also had the name "Patricius."

During this period, it was common for the Celts inhabiting the Island of Ireland to raid the Island of Britain, capturing such inhabitants of the latter island as they could and bring them to Ireland where they served in bondage. When Patrick was 16, he was captured by one of these raiding parties of Celts, and by them delivered into the service of Milcho, a local King in Antrim. After six years in bondage, Patrick escaped and made his way to the southeast coast of Ireland where he succeeded in arranging passage as a workaway on a boat carrying Irish wolfhounds to the coast of Gaul (France). From there he made his way southward to the Mediterranean coast of France where he took refuge in a monastery. He did not at this time enter the clergy, but, after a restful sojourn with the monks, he returned to his native Island of Britain and rejoined his family.

Shortly thereafter, Patrick left home and went to France, where he entered the priesthood and, after the sum of 14 years of work and study, he asked that he be assigned as a missionary to Ireland. Patrick recalled his experiences during the six years of bondage he had earlier served in this country. He recalled that also Ireland was not a completely pagan country, it was predominately pagan and far from Christian. Patrick was given this assignment and proceeded to Ireland to match his wits, energy, and ideals with those of the Druid kings who reigned over this small island.

Much can be said about his travels, the length and breadth of the island. He was not received with open arms by the Druid rulers. One of the facts related by most historians, which indicates the resourcefulness with which Patrick was endowed was the situation which occurred at the Hill of Slaine on an Easter Eve. Patrick was well aware that this was also the day of a great pagan celebration on the neighboring Hill of Tara and that the Druid celebration would be climaxed by a great fire. Patrick gathered around him some of the newly acquired followers and he kindled a fire on the Hill of Slaine shortly in advance of the kindling of the Druid fire on the Hill of Tara. Many of the tribesmen mistook Patrick's fire for the Druid celebration and when they gathered, he successfully instilled in them a feeling for Christianity. After this incident, King Leary, son of Niall, sent for Patrick. Leary awakened to the fact that further opposition to Patrick's efforts was, perhaps, useless, and he adopted a method which is still used by people in public life—he had an understanding with Patrick and offered him friendship, thereafter according him protection in his work throughout the countryside.

Patrick is not revered only for his conversion of the Irish people to Catholicism, but he established a strong feeling of Christianity and great desire for education in an heretofore pagan and uneducated people. At the time of his arrival into Ireland, there were no schools. At the time of Patrick's death there were over 300 schools, all of which helped instill in the Irish people the love for freedom and fair play that is so traditional with them.

Patrick worked in Ireland for some 60 years and died at approximately 96 years of age. Shortly before his death, he resigned his post of Bishop of Armagh and lived in seclusion in the northeast part of Ireland. It was during this period that he left to us what are perhaps the only two written documents of his life, one "The Confessions," is not so much a history of his actual life as it is a history of his works and what he sought to do thereby; the other is "Letter to Coroticus," a British kinklet, containing the Irish chant known as the "Lament" or "Benedictus Hymn." St. Patrick left with the Irish a feeling of loyalty to their ideals, a love of fair play and a keen appreciation of their right of freedom of religion and the right to speak their mind. These things are exemplified down through the ages in the history of the Irish race and the actions of them and their descendants. Even as in ancient days, we today are fighting for these rights as to our Country, appreciate these rights and these freedoms and that gentlemen, as to the new American people pay homage to St. Patrick and those things for which he stood. Ideals and principles for which the Irish never fail to fight, schools and universities for which they have fought through the years in the wars of this Country. May God Bless the sons of St. Patrick and the followers of those ideals.

Thank you.

DEAR MR. BEEK: The copy of Senate Joint Resolution No. 10 adopted by the California Legislature, inclosed with your letter of February 11th to Secretary Ickes, and referred by him to this bureau, has been noted.

The Bureau of Reclamation is prepared to resume promptly construction of the facilities on which work has been halted when the cease-construction orders of the War Production Board are lifted, and priorities are given for critical materials. #### RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senators Slater, Judah, and Salsman:

Senate Resolution No. 81

WHEREAS, In normal times the poultry industry in this State is of paramount importance to the people of California; and

WHEREAS, This importance has been tremendously magnified by reason of the existing shortages of meat and other forms of protein; and

WHEREAS, There annually exists at this time of the year a normal surplus of cockerels which in the past have been destroyed because of a lack of available market; and

WHEREAS, This surplus of cockerels could be raised and marketed as broilers within a relatively short time if the ceiling price for broilers would permit the raising and marketing of broilers by poultrymen without incurring a substantial loss; and

WHEREAS, It would appear that the Office of Price Administration and other Federal agencies should do all in their power to encourage and stimulate the raising of broilers for use in California in order to relieve the present meat and protein shortage; and

WHEREAS, Despite the efforts of the poultrymen of the State of California to persuade the Office of Price Administration to realize the uniqueness of the California situation, the Office of Price Administration insists on fixing ceiling prices for California on production costs of other States where labor and feeding costs are much lower; and

WHEREAS, The persistence of the Office of Price Administration in its present conduct will result in the loss of many million pounds of poultry meat for use in California; and

WHEREAS, Local Office of Price Administration officials have refused to take appropriate steps to alleviate present conditions even when they have had power so to do; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Honorable Prentiss Brown, Administrator of the Office of Price Administration, and the Honorable Claude Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, be and they are hereby memorialized to direct their regional representatives for California to establish ceiling prices for poultry in California that will permit making available to the citizens of this State this essential supplement to the meat and protein supply; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate shall transmit copies of this resolution by telegram to the President, the Vice President, to the Senators and Congressmen from California, and to the Honorable Prentiss Brown, Administrator of the Office of Price Administration, and the Honorable Claude Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture.

Resolution read and unanimously adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were received, read, and, on motion of Senator Seawell, ordered printed in the Journal:

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19, 1943

Hon. Jerrold Seawell, President pro tempore California State Senate, Sacramento, California

Received your wire of March 18th advising me Secretary of Agriculture had not replied to communications sent to him by California Legislature. Secretary now out of town, but his office advises me that no replies have as yet been made to resolution of Legislature. I requested and demanded that immediate reply be sent, and am advised that full information, by telegram, with reference to labor situation will be sent tonight, the same being addressed to Joseph A. Beek, Secretary of Senate. Information with reference to machinery priorities will be given in as full form as can be provided with information on hand. I deeply resent action of Agriculture Department. Kindly advise me if date forwarded by wire meets your requirements. Assure you my full cooperation and am taking matter up with delegation.

HARRY L. ENGLEBRIGHT, M. C.

PERMISSION TO PRINT IN THE JOURNAL

Senator Seawell asked for, and was granted, permission to have his telegram of March 17, 1943, to Congressman Englebright, printed in the Journal, as the above telegram is a reply thereto.

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, March 17, 1943

*Congressman Harry L. Englebright
House Office Building, Washington, D. C.*

Secretary Wickard persistently ignores request for information as to how and when California's requirements for farm labor and priorities will be met. Courtesy to a Sovereign State should prompt early compliance with our request. Neglect of Federal bureaus to solve problem has forced special session of Legislature for next Saturday in attempt to meet agricultural demands. Bureaucratic Federal regulations may handicap problem, but we should be furnished information requested of Secretary

Wickard so Legislature may act advisedly at special session. May we not have cooperation of California Delegation in this regard?

JERROLD L. SEAWELL, President pro tempore of the Senate of the State of California

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 19, 1943

J. A. Beck, Secretary of the Senate
California Legislature, Sacramento, California

Due to inadvertent delay in replying to your letter of January 28th, enclosing Senate Joint Resolution No. 6, adopted by the California Legislature, I am quoting following paragraphs from my reply which has been mailed to you. "In present-gating conservation orders for the dual purpose of making sure that supplies will be available for war purposes and, at the same time, that food available for civilians will be stretched over a long enough period to permit new supplies to be produced, it has been necessary to place limits on sales by distributors. Where this has not been done, as far as the major food commodities are concerned, on a basis of quotas arrived at through population statistics, the limitations have undoubtedly been felt more sharply in areas of increased population. We have established machinery for dealing with the more acute shortages through the organization of State and area food industry committees. The functions of these committees are to receive and investigate complaints of such shortages, and, where the complaints are verified, to arrange for the movement of necessary food to alleviate the condition. The committees also determine the causes of the shortages and recommend steps to prevent their recurrence. The meat and other industries are cooperating with us in this work.

We believe that the recently announced rationing programs, when they are put into effect, will go far toward bringing about the necessary adjustments so that no one area will have to put up with more inconveniences than another. Rationing, of course, is actually an allocation to consumers, and probably the only practicable type of allocation under which equitable distribution can be assured."

Regarding labor situation, Secretary Wickard, on March 17th, sent following telegram to Governor Warren:

"Knowing your deep concern for California farmers in farm labor shortage, of which we in the Department of Agriculture are acutely aware, wish to inform you we have ready a unified, coordinated Farm Labor Program subject to Congressional action. Much of this program already under way, including importation Mexican and other foreign workers. Mexican Government yesterday authorized recruitment to be resumed immediately. Department representatives, aided by one or more California growers already in Mexico City, are proceeding immediately with recruitment to fill 6,000 California, Arizona, and other southwestern grower orders already certified for immediate need, and for several thousand more Mexican workers California and Arizona growers need and are ready to order. Possibility of using buses and boats in addition to rail transportation being investigated, in case it should be necessary. New agreement expected concluded soon with Bahaman Government for importation up to 6,000 workers when domestic workers unavailable. Other phases of Federal program include local recruitment and placement of agricultural workers for seasonal and steady work through county agents, United States Employment Service, Office of Civilian Defense, schools, organized women, civic, and voluntary groups. Also recruitment of experienced farmers in less productive areas, with one to three weeks training periods already in operation in approximately 30 States by arrangement with United States Office of Education. This program plans to place 25,000 experienced farmers on Nation's dairy, live stock, and poultry farms by July 1st and 50,000 by end of year. As previously announced, we have arranged with Selective Service for changes in classification of experienced farm workers to halt further drain from agriculture. Up to March 1st 500,000 farm workers had been deferred to Class 2 C and 3 C. It is estimated, under additional regulations announced March 7th, that deferments will reach total of 3,000,000 by the end of 1943 for those above and below age 38. Department plans to recruit, transport, and place large numbers of mobile domestic workers needed in intensive farming areas. These are highlights of the Federal program in close cooperation between the U.S.D.A., War Manpower Commission, and other concerned agencies. Much of it already is under way, and remainder ready to go as quickly as Congress approves. We are striving for unified, coordinated program making fullest use of State and local organizations. We pledge California every assistance and cooperation to the end that we may have the complete utilization of Federal, State, and local facilities to place workers on the farms where needed to secure the maximum production of most vital implement of war—food."

Since above telegram sent, word received that first trainload Mexicans leaving for California Monday morning. Others to follow.

This telegram acknowledges also telegram March 15th from Frederick F. Houser, Lieutenant Governor, and of March 17th from you. Additional information on farm implements will be sent as available.

R. L. WEBSTER
Assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Senate Bills Nos. 222 and 224:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, March 10, 1943

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS:

SENATE BILL No. 222

"An act to add Chapter 8, comprising Sections 6850 to 6955, inclusive, to Division 3 of, and to add Section 30044 to, the Business and Professions

Code, thereby consolidating and revising the law regulating and licensing collection agencies, penalizing violations thereof and repealing acts and parts of acts specified therein";

SENATE BILL NO. 224

"An act to add Division 4 and Parts 1 and 2 thereof, comprising Sections 10000 to 11018, inclusive, and Section 30042 to the Business and Professions Code, thereby consolidating and revising the law supervised, administered and enforced by the State Division of Real Estate of the Department of Investment regulating transactions affecting interests in real or personal property, licensing brokers and salesmen with respect to dealings in real or personal property, imposing disciplinary and criminal penalties for the violation thereof, and repealing acts and parts of acts specified therein"; in my opinion constitute emergency bills within the meaning of that term as used in Sections 1 and 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 222 and Senate Bill No. 224 as necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety and as emergency matters.

Respectfully submitted.

MOTION TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Senator Rich moved that the Second Partial Report of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee be printed in the Journal.

Motion carried.

Mr. President:

As Chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee, I am this day filing with the Secretary of the Senate the Second Partial Report of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, and I am asking that the report be printed in the Journal.

It is thought that this report will greatly aid the Senators in considering the Governor's Budget and the Budget Bill.

Because of the length of the report and the lack of time, all of the members of the committee have not read the final draft of the report. While the names of the committeemen appear upon the report and are subscribed to it, nevertheless this report is filed with the understanding among all the members that any individual member of the committee may express in a written statement, printed in either the Senate Journal or the Assembly Journal, any statement he may desire to make concerning said report.

Dated this twentieth day of March, 1943.

W. P. RICH

Chairman Legislative Budget Committee

Second Partial Report of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee to the HONORABLE FREDERICK F. HOUSER, President, and to the Members of the Senate

HONORABLE CHARLES W. LYON, Speaker, and to the Members of the Assembly of the State of California

First Preliminary Report

The first preliminary report of the Legislative Budget Committee was published in the Senate Journal for January 30, 1943. It was pointed out in this report that a very large part of material and information compiled during the past year by the Legislative Auditor for the committee was used directly by the Legislative Auditor in connection with the hearings on the Governor's Biennial Budget, recently submitted to the Legislature. The Legislative Auditor worked continuously with those responsible for the preparation of the Budget and a considerable amount of the effectiveness of the Legislative Budget Committee is reflected in the Budget document itself. Governor Warren's appreciation for this assistance is contained in his Budget message in the following words: "In all of our Budget hearings we have exchanged views with your Legislative Auditor, and feel indebted to him for many valuable suggestions."

Budget Held Down at Making

By functioning in this fashion and bringing to bear the results of our studies in the preparation of the Budget document itself, a degree of assistance was rendered which could not have been done if analyses of the activities and expenditures of the several departments of the State had not been made beforehand. With a Biennial Budget $88,610,366 less than the Budget submitted for the current biennium and showing a decrease of $64,264,452 below the actual and estimated total expenditure for the current biennium, there is not the same opportunity of making recommendations for as substantial economies as if the trend of expansion in the cost of State Government and in the biennial budgets which has existed over the past 10 years had continued.

It should be noted that in the Budget for 1943-45 there has been included a continuation of State employees' salary bonuses of $15 per month for the next biennium. This requires approximately $11,000,000 in the way of a new appropriation item not found in the previous Budget and only reflected in the actual expenditures of the current biennium for the last year. Automatic salary increases of approximately another $2,000,000 are likewise included.

Certain wartime expenditures appear in the new Budget for a full two years while they only cover one year in the current biennium. The appropriation for the State Guard is $4,552,554 over the previous two years. War emergency expenditures of the Division of Forestry, however, are reduced $545,657, making a net increase in these two items of approximately $4,000,000.

It should also be noted that the State has had an unprecedented growth in population during the past year as is shown from the following estimate prepared by the California Taxpayers' Association:

POPULATION GROWTH
From January 1943 Tax Digest

California—
Census, April, 1930	5,677,251
Census, April, 1940	6,907,387
Estimate, 1941	7,070,000
Estimate, 1942	7,425,000
Estimate, 1943	7,660,000

This sudden upswing in population reflects an increase in certain automatic charges for State Government. For these reasons the decrease in the Biennial Budget for 1943-45 actually represents a greater decrease than is apparent. It is also worth noting that the Budget as presented is a reduction of approximately $55,000,000 below the requested appropriations made by the several departments and agencies of the State.

As pointed out in our report of January 4th, the Governor's Budget for various reasons is not the final word on adequate planning for the expenditures of the State for the next biennium, and many possibilities for further economies, consolidation, reorganization, suspension and elimination of State activities exist.

Scope of This Report

In our first report, we contemplated the submission of additional partial reports covering specifically various sections of the 1943-45 Biennial Budget. The purpose of this second partial report is to present the following matters:

1. An overall analysis of the 1943-45 Budget.
2. Matters requiring policy decisions in order to determine the amount of certain items in the Budget and the corresponding amounts to be placed in the Appropriation Bill therefor.
3. Analysis of the revenue estimates and the resultant surplus at the end of the biennium.

4. Analysis of the proposed expenditures for the Legislature, the judiciary, the executive and the administrative officers, boards and commissions of the State.

This partial report is factual, presenting information in so far as it is available concerning these various items and pointing out certain conditions and situations which have not generally been brought to the attention of the Legislature. Possible savings are indicated, which can be accomplished if certain changes, consolidations, and eliminations are made and the actual amounts of these savings are shown. On the other hand, additional costs which will occur if proposed legislation is enacted or if existing conditions are continued, are indicated. In all of these matters, actual figures are presented based upon the best available information and on the most conservative estimates. We wish to call attention to the fact, however, that we are living in a period of continuous and sudden change, both in our private and governmental economy, and that these changes beyond our control, when they occur, immediately reflect on the State's business and on estimates made both as respects revenue and the cost of government.

A third partial report will follow as soon as possible, covering an additional number of administrative departments and agencies of the State. This will fit into the overall picture presented herewith.

I. GENERAL ANALYSIS OF THE 1943-45 BUDGET

The proposed Budget for the biennium July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1945, is the first State Budget of World War II. It is $88,610,366 smaller than its predecessor and it reflects the mark of war on the State Government in two ways. First, economies have been made in light of the war effort and in line with Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, presented in our First Partial Report. Secondly, added expenditures for the war effort are included. These are reflected directly in appropriations for the Council of Defense, the Fire Emergency Plan in the Division of Forestry, the State Guard, the Department of Public Health, the salary bonus of $15 a month for each State employee, the increased price of commodities which the State buys, particularly for institutions and prisons, and added activities for the war effort in practically every State department. Some of the economies have been forced by the war effort, such as the suspension of capital outlay and the inability to fill positions because of the demand for manpower arising from the war effort. Others occur from improved economic condition which has resulted in the elimination of expenditures for relief and a reduction in the cost for aid to the needy and the blind.

Impact on Manpower of State by War Effort

It should be pointed out at the very beginning that all of the savings forced through the inability to fill positions because of the demand for manpower arising from the war effort were consumed during the current biennium through paying the $15 per month bonus to the remaining State employees. It should also be recorded here in the beginning of our report that the full impact of the demand for manpower has not been felt in the State employment and that little or nothing has been done to actually cut down the number of employees in order to effectively assist in releasing manpower. The actual and estimated number of State employees budgeted for all funds in the current biennium ending June 30, 1943, is given as 26,944,* in the Budget, while the number provided for in the 1943-45 Budget is 26,102. The slight change in the number of employees during the first year of the war is as follows: On December 31, 1941, the employment records showed an increase of 2,322

* Note—This includes all regular full-time positions appearing in the Budget and an estimate for highway maintenance employees. For detailed analysis of number of employees, salaries and wages and contributions to the Retirement Fund for 1941-43 and 1943-45 see table below.
